After one year, Barbara's trail elusive

by DANN GIRE

It was on a warm Saturday night Aug. 21, 1976, that 14-year-old Barbara Glueckert and a girl friend decided to do something different for evening entertainment.

The girls told their parents they were going to a party in Des Plaines, but they had more exciting plans.

They accepted a ride from a man who Barbara had met only once before. He was Thomas Urlacher of Algonquin Shores who drove them to a rock concert near a farmsite near Huntley.

At the concert, both girls mingled freely with the crowd of about 500 while two bands beat out their sound over large amplifiers. Drugs were distributed freely at the concert, presented by a social group called "!Farnsworthy!!" The performance was scheduled to last until 12:30 a.m the next day, but partygoers mingled around long afterward.

IT WAS ONLY hours later that Robert and Gail Glueckert, 610 Russel St., Mount Prospect, awoke to find their daughter missing from her bed.

Barbara's girl friend had returned with another boy and knew nothing about where her friend could be. Barbara had disappeared in what was to become the most publicized child search in the Chicago area.

Police agencies including Mount Prospect, Kane County, the Metropolitan Enforcement Group and the Illinois Bureau of Investigation have spent an estimated 7,000 hours looking for Barbara so far. About 5,000 hours belong to Mount Prospect detectives alone

In the early days of the search, it was normal to see Sgt. Patrick Hallihan and Detectives Jack Gniot, Richard Pascoe, Ray Rohde, Bob Barrone and Bob Gibson with heavy rings around their bloodshot eyes. Sixteen- to 18-hour days were worked on a regular basis.

The shock of the disappearance and months of anxiety and frustration took its toll on the Glueckert family. Glueckert sacrificed time from his home and plastics business to search Kane County for the site where he believes his daughter is buried.

"THERE IS NO doubt in my mind that my daughter is dead. Our goal now is find the body and seek justice," Glueckert said. "I am confident that it will be solved. We may be closer to a solution than ever before."

Glueckert, a stocky man with a receding hairline, is in constant contact with persons professing psychic powers in hopes of locating his daughter. He half-heartedly admits that the psychics are the act of a desperate father seeking information on his lost daughter.

"I don't believe in psychics really. I

Rockets to travel two generations

by ROBERT COWEN

At Cape Canaveral, Florida, twin spacecraft Voyagers 1 and 2 — are ready to undertake a mission that the next generation will have to finish

They will visit Jupiter, Saturn, and some of their moons. Then, if all goes well, one of them, Voyager 2, will go on to Uranus and perhaps even distant Neptune. It will be a grand tour of the outer planets that, during the next decade and a half, could return more data than the project's scientists could sift through during the rest of their careers.

"We're getting into an era when projects are handled on from one generation to another," says Voyager science manager James E. Long. "It's like something you see on (the TV show) Star Trek, where expeditions visit distant worlds to send back materials on which Earth's scientists work for decades."

Once this mammoth data-gathering job is finished, both Voyagers will head out of the solar system carrying a cosmic greeting that includes the following message from President Jimmy Carter:

"THIS IS A PRESENT from a small world, a token of our sounds, our science, our images, our music, our thoughts and our feelings. We are attempting to survive our time so we may live into yours. We hope someday, having solved the problems we face, to join a community galactic civilizations. This record represents our hope and our determination, and our good will in a vast and awesome universe."

The message and a similar one from U.S. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim are on a record that also carries sounds of Earth — music, voices, natural sounds — plus TV-like pictures of earthly scenes. Should space travelers from another world ever recover and decode the record, they would have a glimpse of what our world is like today.

The challenging Voyager mission is made possible by a rare alignment of the outer planets plus the demonstrated reliability of this class of spacecraft. The 825-kilogram (1,819-pound) Voyagers are designed nominally to work for four years. But the success of American spacecraft and the fact that the Voyagers have a full array of on-board backup systems to take over if primary systems fail, give mission planners confidence that the craft can work for three to four times their nominal lifespan, Long said. This is why they expect to take advantage of the planetary alignment to stretch out a mission aimed primarily at Jupiter-Saturn to include Uranus-Neptune as well.

THE VOYAGERS could not even reach Saturn, if they had to depend on the rocket power available for direct flight. It's just too weak to get them there. Fortunately, Voyagers' navigators can use Voyager set for blastoff at 9:25 a.m.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A Voyager spacecraft equipped with super sensitive cameras was placed atop a Titan III Centaur rocket Friday in preparation for launch today on a two-year journey to Jupiter, Saturn and then out beyond the solar system.

Scheduled launch time is 9.25 a.m. Chicago time.

The interplanetary Voyager II rocket that will be blasted into the heavens today will be followed September 1 by Voyager I which, because it will be lofted on a faster flight path, will reach Jupiter ahead of Voyager II.

Each Voyager in the $500 million project will cary special cameras, able to photograph nearly 400,000 miles into space Each will take about 25,000 photos of Jupiter and 8,000 of Saturn

They will be able to photograph objects 10 miles in diameter on the planets' surface and a half-mile in diameter on satellites.

Pioneer 10 and 11 have sent back pictures of Jupiter, but Voyager's shots are expected to have 100 times better resolution.

The Voyager 1 will deploy its narrow-angle cameras as in September of 1978. When the craft is eight days away from Jupiter in late February of 1979, engineers will turn on the wide-angle cameras to take pictures of the entire surface.

Groucho dead at 86

LOS ANGELES (UPI) Groucho Marx, the ringleader of the hilarious Marx Brothers Movies going back to the 1930s, died Friday in Cedars-Sinai Medical Center at the age of 86 from a respiratory ailment that became critical in the last 24 hours.

A hospital spokesman said Marx, who was hospitalized in March for a hip operation for a fall at his home from which he never completely recovered, died at 7:15 p.m.

The cigar-chomping, loping lecher with the black grease-paint mustache, bouncing eye-brows and irreverent ad libs was the next to last survivor of the famous brothers whose first film 'Animal Crackers" launched a comedy zaniness that convulsed three generations

Marx was frail and often scarcely aware of what was going on around him in the last weeks. During his hospitalization,his long time companion Erin Fleming, 37, a red-haired former Canadian Showgirl, became embroiled in a court battle with his son Arthur over conservatorship of his estimated $2 million estate.

A court ruled in July that Marx's grandson Andrew, 27, should be permanent guardian.

Marx entered the hospital last June 22, one day after his release from the facility following his recovery from hip surgery last March.

He had remained in fair condition until Friday's sudden change.

A hospital spokesman said Marx had developed "pneumonitis" which he said could best be described in layman's terms as an inflammation of the lungs, "a mild form of pneumonia."

Plans stalled for land near track

Plans for the multimillion-dollar development of 244 acres bordering the Arlington Park Race Track have been stalled but not abandoned, track officials say Proposals for apartments, office buildings and an industrial park were submitted to the village in May 1975 by the Madison Square Garden Corp., owners of the land, along with plans for a 76,000-seat football stadium.

However, controversy over the stadium proposal pushed discussion of other plans into the background. The stadium plans were withdrawn in September 1975 and no action has been taken on the other proposals.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN officials this week refused to comment on their plans for the race track land, but Arlington Park Pres. Joseph Joyce insisted the project has not died.

"There is no question that at some time the master plan will be perfected and approved," Joyce said. "I'm sure that Madison Square Garden plans to develop that land eventually. It's just a matter of time," he said.

Track officials had proposed building 2,700 apartments units, 30 acres of offices, a 47-acre industrial site, a 15-acre park and a new school.

The project would have increased Arlington Heights' population by 10 per cent and its tax base by more than 30 per cent

Joyce said he did not know how long it might be before the development is brought up again.

"IT OBVIOUSLY is not something of a great immediate nature, but Madison Square Garden has not for-

Sandra Greenhill stared at the Chicago newspaper and finally raised her hand to her cheek, squeezing the cigaret between her fingers.

"This is unreal," she said.

But there it was in black and white, complete with a bold headline:

The Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services had filed a child neglect suit against Mrs. Greenhill, 4 Middlesex, Carpentersville, for leaving her three small children with a 12-year-old babysitter while she went to Memphis, Tenn., for Elvis Presley's funeral.

She put the paper down.

"THAT IS UNREAL. That is unreal," she said in a low voice."

"I'm going to----kill somebody for this."

She hurried out the door of her apartment and yelled angrily toward someone down the hall. The apartment is a cheap one, and it looks it. It is one of a number of apartments in the rows of complexes here. In general the buildings do not appear in poor Beatlemania '77— the beat goes on . . .

"I believe in yesterday" were more than just the lyrics of a song Friday for the thousands who flocked to the opening of "Beatlefest '77" in downtown Chicago.

Beatlefest, a trip back into the 1960s, held in defiance of those who decreed Beatlemania dead forever when the group broke up in 1970, will run through tonight at the Palmer House Hotel.

The event is the seventh in a series of successful conventions held in the United States since 1974, and the first such gathering in the Midwest, said organizer Mark Lapidos, 29, of River Edge, N.J.

WHY THE ENTHUSIASTIC reception for a convention honoring a rock group long disbanded?

"Because America fell in love with the Beatles in 1964, and the love affair with the Beatles never died," Lapidos said.

Encouraged by the success of similar Beatlefests on the East and West Coasts, Lapidos and his staff of 25 spent two months preparing the Chicago event, signing up authors, disc jockeys, 60 exhibitors of Beatle paraphernalia and even a rock band, "Abbey Rhode," that imitates the Beatles' every move from their Liverpool British accents to their ankle-high black boots.

Lapidos said he expects at least 4,000 Beatle fans to attend the Chicago gathering.

"What is a Beatle fan?" he asked. "A Beatle fan is anyone who likes the Beatles. And as you know, the Beatles are the best."

THOSE WHO attended Friday's opening, paying $8 admission, readily agreed.

"We love the Beatles. There'll never be nothing like them — never again," said Tim Brown, 21, who with his wife Cathy, 22, drove from Kansas City, Mo., to Chicago to attend Beatlefest.

Even the Browns' 3½-year-old son, John, is hooked on the Beatles, Tim Borwn said. Already the tot can pick their songs out of those by other rock groups, Brown said.

Most of those at the Beatlefest Friday were high school age youths, many of whom still were in diapers when the Beatles first became popular in this country in 1964.

While the younger fans missed the Beatles the first time around, they said they eagerly snatch up the opportunity to partake in their revival.

BECAUSE HE was only a pupil in elementary school when the Beatles were at the height of their popularity, Don Ventura, 17, of Glenview, said, "I cry at night.

"There's so much stuff I wanted: their early albums, newspaper articles. I wish I had it. That's why I came here, to get some of the paraphernalia," Ventura said.

"It's like a dying generation here," he said.

Ventura and others like him found more than enough goodies at Beatlefest to satiate their tastes. Exhibitors occupied an entire ballroom, displaying wares that included Beatle buttons, T-shirts, photographs, paintings, lunch boxes, sneakers, trading cards, dolls, books, magazines and record albums.

Patrick Carney, 28, of New York City, combined business with pleasure when he brought his bride to Chicago to celebrate their honeymoon while selling Carney's Beatle paintings out of a booth at Beatlefest.

PRICES FOR Carney's works range from $5 for reproductions to $100 for original tempera paintings.

"It's amazing to me — the fickle American public," said Carney, who makes his living selling paintings of rock musicians. "Of course I'm capitalizing on it."

He said, "Some early records here are going for $50 to $60. It's totally amazing people would buy them."

For those serious about buying and selling at the convention, two auctions are scheduled. Other diversions included showings of Beatle films, a Beatle trivia contest, a Beatle look-alike contest and talks by Beatle "experts" authors Ron Schaumburg, Walley Podrazik and Harry Castlemen and Jason Paige of WDAI-FM.

Barbara Fenick, 26, of St. Paul, Minn., represented one of the few surviving large Beatle fan clubs as president of "The Write Thing," an international group with 1,300 members in 21 countries.

However, while the number of clubs has diminished, the Beatles' popularity will continue to flourish, Ms. Fenick said.

"I think it's always going to be this way — forever," she said. "The fans, like us, grew up with them and will continue growing with them. We'll just keep growing. There's no end in sight — it's infinite.

The Fabulous Four live on in group

Four young brothers from New Jersey fell in love with the Beatles after the group's 1964 concert tour in this country and decided what they wanted to be when they grew up.

They decided to be the Beatles. Not just any East Coast rock band. No, they aimed high in their dream.

Today, their dream is reality.

"I had a dream someday I would have a band that would continue playing Beatles music when they broke up, and now it has happened," said Mike Volpe, 25, of Magnolia, N.J.

VOLPE AND HIS three brothers formed the band, "Abbey Rhode," and now earn their living playing at clubs and Beatlefests around the country.

The brothers' affair with the Beatles began in 1964, when their father, Angelo Volpe, was hired as the Beatles' personal chauffeur during the group's concert tour, Mike Volpe said.

The brothers began an intensive study of the Beatles, listening to their songs 16 hours a day, imitating them through their musical instruments and their vocal chords to perfect an exact duplicate of the group's style.

"We had their style of music down for years, but we didn't have any need to use it," Volpe said.

That is, until the group was "discovered" in February 1975 by Mark Lapidos, organizer of the Beatlefests.

LAPIDOS LEARNED of "Abbey Rhode" through a flood of letters from Beatle fans, who had seen them perform at clubs and directed him to the "new Beatles." Lapidos gave the group a hearing — and saw the fans were right.

Their performances are uncanny. They come across as the Beatles.

Even their on-stage clothes match the narrow-lapels, skinny ties, white shirts, black pegleg pants and ankle boots of the early Beatles.

Mike Volpe said, "We're not the Beatles, but we love dong it — just to keep their music alive."

BY DAWN'S EARLY light Sept. 1, 1976, police officials from Kane County patiently awaited the results of a thermograph test of the Kurtchzher farm site in Huntley, Ill., where 14-year-old Barbara Glueckert was last seen at a rock concert Aug. 21.

Glueckert case alive after year

don't disbelieve in them either," he said. "If they can get results, then that's all that's important."

Of one thing Robert Glueckert is sure.

"It won't be over for me until it is solved. Whether that means the rest of my life, next week, today or tomorrow, I won't rest until there's an answer," he said. "I know I'm not at peace as long as her body isn't found."

THE FATHER'S obsession to find Barbara is shared by another man who has devoted countless hours from his personal and professional life to solving the mystery: Sgt. Hallihan.

The tall, lanky Irishman with a touch of gray at his temples has been directing the search for Barbara since it began. Despite the thousands of deadend leads and scarce clues to where the girl is, the investigation is still going strong.

"We'll never quit. We never will," he said. "It's just a question of finding her body. That's the problem."

Even in those rare moments of relaxation, Hallihan still appears ill at ease. The unsolved Glueckert case hangs over the Mount Prospect detective office like a dark cloud.

"All I need is a skull to make a positive identification. That's all I need," he said. "I've got the whole case ready to go. All I need is a body."

BARBARA CREEPS into Hallihan's conversation at the most unexpected times. In the middle of a totally unrelated subject, the 42-year-old detective suddenly will insert a status report on the case or mention his wish of finding the body.

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney has given Hallihan total control over the investigation with full confidence in the ability of his detective.

"This is the type of crime where you take it personally as well as professionally. Here we want to not only find the perpetrator of the crime, if there is one, but to assure the family we're doing everything possible to clear the matter up," Doney said. "We want to be able to put the minds of the parents at ease."

But now the pace and intensity of the search has lessened. Massive land searches on foot and horseback have failed to find the body. Efforts with scuba divers and metal detectors have been futile.

Sophisticated heat detecting equipment flown over Huntley in a helicopter came up with nothing. Even less worthwhile have been consultations with so-called psychics.

But Hallihan remains optimistic that a break in the case will come, sooner or later.

"She'll be found sometime. It's just a question of when," he said.

AND IF ROBERT Gluckert could be granted any wish in the world, the choice would be easy for him.

"I would go back a year and a day and switch things around," he said. Instead of being away on a business trip that fateful weekend a year ago, Barbara's father said, "I wish I had been there at the time. I might have had more control over the situation. I just wish it hadn't happened for everyone's sake."

As for Urlacher, who police suspect knows more about the disappearance than he professes, Glueckert harbors no ill will.

"I don't have any real feeling for him. I don't really hate him. That's not for me to do. I just want to see justice done. I'm not even thinking about him. I'm thinking about finding my daughter," he said.

Urlacher, 25, has left Algonquin Shores and is employed at an undisclosed business, his mother, Joan Pugh, said this week. Urlacher had been charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor in connection with the disappearance, but was released by authorities for lack of evidence.

Mission to keep next generation busy with space

the planets to help. Jupiter's gravity will grab an incoming Voyager, whip it around on a new course, speed it up, and send it on to Saturn. At Saturn, the same slingshot effect can send Voyager 2 on to Uranus, and so on.

Although the mechanisms are different, the basic effect is similar to something that happens in tennis. If you hold your racket steady, your opponent's ball merely bounces back with the same speed with which it arrived. However, if you move your racket forward as the ball hits, you send it back with added speed. Likewise, Jupiter, if it were standing still, would merely change Voyager's direction of travel. But Jupiter does not stand still. It moves some 30,000 miles an hour along its orbit around the sun. When it whips Voyager around onto a new course, it also gives the spacecraft a push, like the racket throwing back the ball.

Right now, the outer planets are coming into an alignment that would allow navigators to use this gravity assist technique to visit all of them. Such an alignment will not recur for 171 years. To take advantage of it, missions must be launched between 1977 and 1978. Planners for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration mapped out several such Grand Tours, as they then called them, in the late 1960s and early 1970s. These were never funded. It looked as though a valuable opportunity would be lost. Then Voyager mission planners at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory became convinced that they could do it, using spacecraft nominally designed for a four-year Jupiter-Saturn mission, and at a cost of only about 6 per cent of Voyager's $338 million bill.

To do this, Voyager 2 will travel a slightly different and slower course than Voyager 1. Then if Voyager 1 fulfills its Jupiter-Saturn objectives and if Voyager 2 is working well as it approaches Saturn, it will be sent on to Uranus and perhaps eventually on to Neptune.

JPL navigators know the technique works because they have already used it with the earlier Pioneer 10 and 11 Jupiter missions. Jupiter sent Pioneer 10 out of the solar system. Then, on Dec. 3, 1974, although it wasn't originally designed for such a mission, Pioneer 11 was whipped around Jupiter on a course for Saturn. With two-thirds of the flight over, it will arrive in 1979 in time to give Voyager controllers a preview of their target.

THESE PIONEERS not only tested the gravity assist technique. They also showed that spacecraft can pass safely through the asteroid belt and can survive the intense radiation belts of Jupiter. Both of these hazards had once seemed intimidating. By mapping Jupiter's radiation zone, the Pioneers have enabled Voyager navigators to target their craft at Jupiter with greater confidence.

With a radius of 44,366 miles, 11.2 times that of Earth,and with 317.9 times Earth's mass, Jupiter is the giant planet. Indeed, it is more massive than all the other planets combined. It has 13 known moons, with a 14th being suspected, making it a solar system in miniature.

Saturn also is huge. Its 37,300-mile radius is 9.4 times that of Earth and its mass is 92.5 Earth masses. Saturn has 10 moons and a spectacular set of rings, which the Voyagers should enable us to see in detail.

Unlike the inner rocky planets, Jupiter and Saturn are largely giant balls of gas — mostly hydrogen. They have no solid surface, only a gradually increasing density of gas that eventually turns into a liquid and may overlie a small rocky core. Long said that these planets may retain many characteristics of the primitive solar system, giving scientists what amounts to an opportunity to look back at conditions that existed when planets formed 4.5 billion years ago.

Voyagers will look at several of Jupiter's moons and at Titan, the Saturnian moon which is the only known satellite with a substantial atmosphere.

Long expects to recover a wealth of data from Jupiter and Saturn that should shed further light on the evolution of our planetary system. But he does not know what to expect from Uranus or Neptune. Poorly known, these planets could hold major surprises, he says, noting that, only this year, Uranus was found to have rings.

Throughout their long journeys, both Voyagers will sample conditions in interplanetary space — particle fluxes, radiation, magnetic fields. Such data also help scientists understand the solar system.

Voyager data will come in an unprecedented flood. This is why Long thinks the Voyager mission inaugurates a new era of planetary exploration, even though earlier studies of planets have also yielded a wealth of information. Voyager scientists can't hope to do more than what Long calls "first-order science." "There will be many, many discoveries buried in the Voyager data that it will take generations to dig it out," he says. "I hope they'll work at it."

• U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist was issued a $22 ticket for speeding in Richmond, Vt., last week, according to the Chittenden County state's attorneys office. Attorneys said the couple, divorced last May, agreed on the arrangement to avoid "a bitter court fight which both felt would be detrimental to the best interests of the children." Miss Scott will retain primary custody of Daisy Ann, 8, and James Scott, 4.

The sale of the 54-acre Hammersmith Farms to Edward F. Sughrue, 46, a Whitinsville, Mass., attorney for $825,000 was announced by Sotheby Parke Bernet International Realty. Higher offers from persons wanting to use the historic estate for commercial development, horse farms and even a think tank were rejected, a real estate spokesman said. The purchase price was $160,000 less than the asking price of Janet Auchincloss, mother of Jacqueline Onassis and her sister Lee Radziwill.

Poor management, cost kills coal-into-oil plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inadequate planning, "incredibly poor" management and a 211 per cent cost overrun killed the government's first effort to turn coal into clean-burning synthetic oil, congressional investigators reported Friday.

A General Accounting Office report suggested that contractors tried to cover up problems as costs mounted, and that the government took no corrective action for about 10 months after learning of the trouble.

It said the coal conversion program was $10 million over the $4.7 million target cost for its first phase and 14½ months behind schedule when the Energy Research and Development Administration quietly killed it June 15.

THE REPORT made the first public announcement of the project's termination. ERDA has said only that it is reevaluating the effort, and agency officials had no comment on the GAO report Friday.

"ERDA's first attempt at demonstrating a synthetic fossil energy technology by converting coal into a clean burning liquid fuel has been a failure,", the GAO said.

As a result, it said, ERDA will be unable to meet its 1983 goal of showing that coal can be turned into fuel oil on a commercial scale to help replace foreign oil imports.

GAO the investigative arm of Congress, prepared its report for Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Commerce subcommittee on energy.

VOLPE AND HIS three brothers formed the band, "Abbey Rhode," and now earn their living playing at clubs and Beatlefests around the country.

The brothers' affair with the Beatles began in 1964, when their father, Angelo Volpe, was hired as the Beatles' personal chauffeur during the group's concert tour, Mike Volpe said.

The brothers began an intensive study of the Beatles, listening to their songs 16 hours a day, imitating them through their musical instruments and their vocal chords to perfect an exact duplicate of the group's style.

"We had their style of music down for years, but we didn't have any need to use it," Volpe said.

That is, until the group was "discovered" in February 1975 by Mark Lapidos, organizer of the Beatlefests.

LAPIDOS LEARNED of "Abbey Rhode" through a flood of letters from Beatle fans, who had seen them perform at clubs and directed him to the "new Beatles." Lapidos gave the group a hearing — and saw the fans were right.

Their performances are uncanny. They come across as the Beatles.

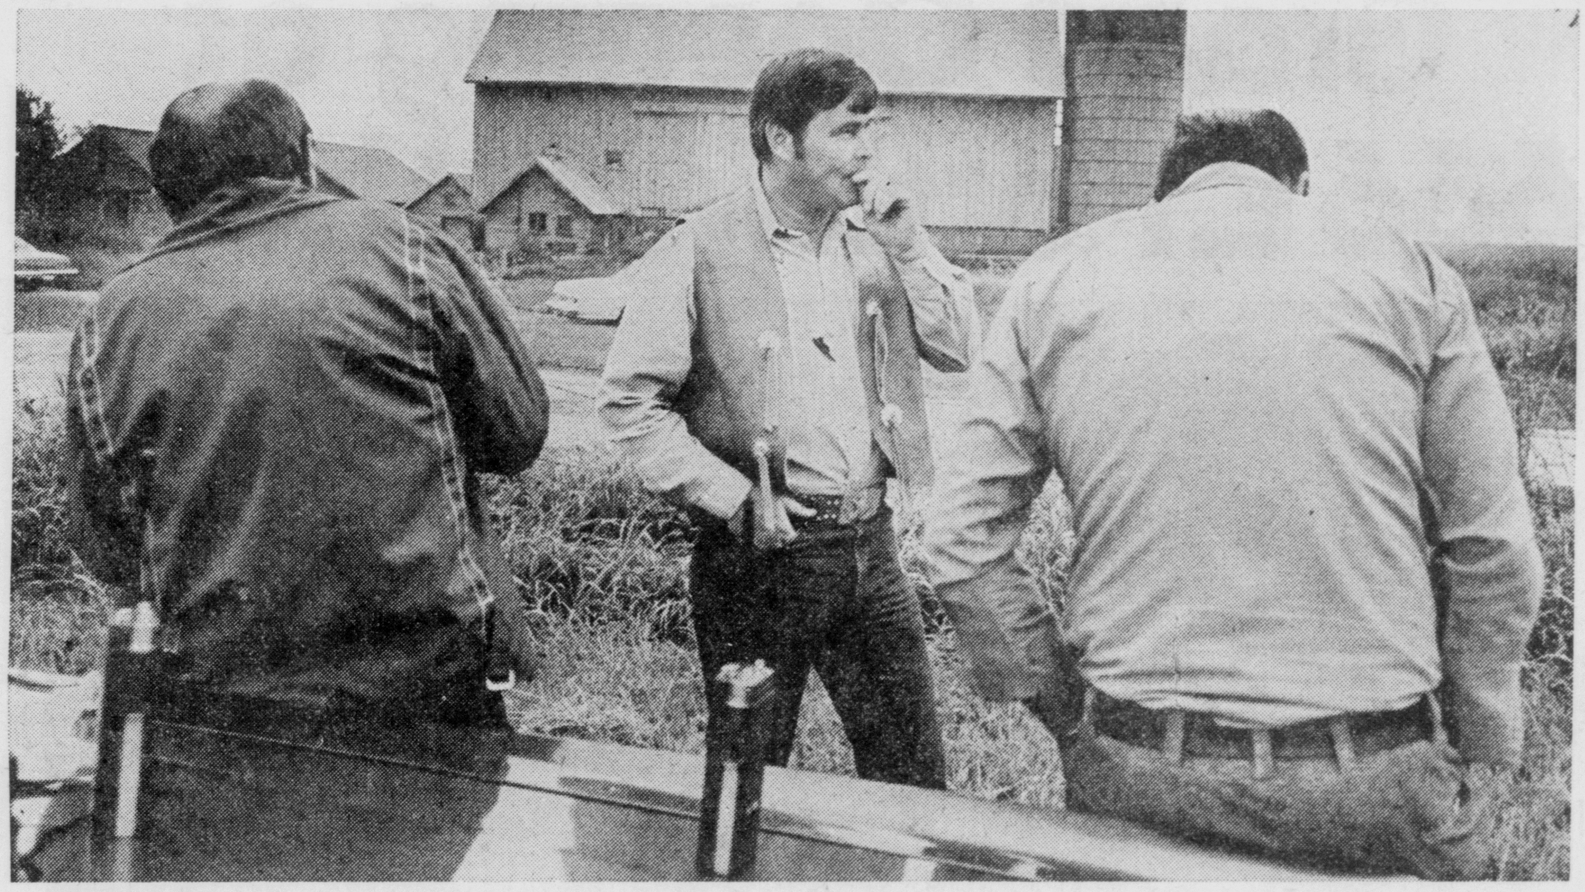
Even their on-stage clothes match the narrow-lapels, skinny ties, white shirts, black pegleg pants and ankle boots of the early Beatles.

Mike Volpe said, "We're not the Beatles, but we love dong it — just to keep their music alive."



BY DAWN'S EARLY light Sept. 1, 1976, police officials from Kane County patiently awaited the results of a thermograph test of the Kurtchzher farm site in Huntley, Ill., where 14-year-old Barbara Glueckert was last seen at a rock concert Aug. 21.

Glueckert case alive after year

don't disbelieve in them either," he said. "If they can get results, then that's all that's important."

Of one thing Robert Glueckert is sure.

"It won't be over for me until it is solved. Whether that means the rest of my life, next week, today or tomorrow, I won't rest until there's an answer," he said. "I know I'm not at peace as long as her body isn't found."

THE FATHER'S obsession to find Barbara is shared by another man who has devoted countless hours from his personal and professional life to solving the mystery: Sgt. Hallihan.

The tall, lanky Irishman with a touch of gray at his temples has been directing the search for Barbara since it began. Despite the thousands of deadend leads and scarce clues to where the girl is, the investigation is still going strong.

"We'll never quit. We never will," he said. "It's just a question of finding her body. That's the problem."

Even in those rare moments of relaxation, Hallihan still appears ill at ease. The unsolved Glueckert case hangs over the Mount Prospect detective office like a dark cloud.

"All I need is a skull to make a positive identification. That's all I need," he said. "I've got the whole case ready to go. All I need is a body."

BARBARA CREEPS into Hallihan's conversation at the most unexpected times. In the middle of a totally unrelated subject, the 42-year-old detective suddenly will insert a status report on the case or mention his wish of finding the body.

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney has given Hallihan total control over the investigation with full confidence in the ability of his detective.

"This is the type of crime where you take it personally as well as professionally. Here we want to not only find the perpetrator of the crime, if there is one, but to assure the family we're doing everything possible to clear the matter up," Doney said. "We want to be able to put the minds of the parents at ease."

But now the pace and intensity of the search has lessened. Massive land searches on foot and horseback have failed to find the body. Efforts with scuba divers and metal detectors have been futile.

Sophisticated heat detecting equipment flown over Huntley in a helicopter came up with nothing. Even less worthwhile have been consultations with so-called psychics.

But Hallihan remains optimistic that a break in the case will come, sooner or later.

"She'll be found sometime. It's just a question of when," he said.

AND IF ROBERT Gluckert could be granted any wish in the world, the choice would be easy for him.

"I would go back a year and a day and switch things around," he said. Instead of being away on a business trip that fateful weekend a year ago, Barbara's father said, "I wish I had been there at the time. I might have had more control over the situation. I just wish it hadn't happened for everyone's sake."

As for Urlacher, who police suspect knows more about the disappearance than he professes, Glueckert harbors no ill will.

"I don't have any real feeling for him. I don't really hate him. That's not for me to do. I just want to see justice done. I'm not even thinking about him. I'm thinking about finding my daughter," he said.

Urlacher, 25, has left Algonquin Shores and is employed at an undisclosed business, his mother, Joan Pugh, said this week. Urlacher had been charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor in connection with the disappearance, but was released by authorities for lack of evidence.

Mission to keep next generation busy with space

the planets to help. Jupiter's gravity will grab an incoming Voyager, whip it around on a new course, speed it up, and send it on to Saturn. At Saturn, the same slingshot effect can send Voyager 2 on to Uranus, and so on.

Although the mechanisms are different, the basic effect is similar to something that happens in tennis. If you hold your racket steady, your opponent's ball merely bounces back with the same speed with which it arrived. However, if you move your racket forward as the ball hits, you send it back with added speed. Likewise, Jupiter, if it were standing still, would merely change Voyager's direction of travel. But Jupiter does not stand still. It moves some 30,000 miles an hour along its orbit around the sun. When it whips Voyager around onto a new course, it also gives the spacecraft a push, like the racket throwing back the ball.

Right now, the outer planets are coming into an alignment that would allow navigators to use this gravity assist technique to visit all of them. Such an alignment will not recur for 171 years. To take advantage of it, missions must be launched between 1977 and 1978. Planners for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration mapped out several such Grand Tours, as they then called them, in the late 1960s and early 1970s. These were never funded. It looked as though a valuable opportunity would be lost. Then Voyager mission planners at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory became convinced that they could do it, using spacecraft nominally designed for a four-year Jupiter-Saturn mission, and at a cost of only about 6 per cent of Voyager's $338 million bill.

To do this, Voyager 2 will travel a slightly different and slower course than Voyager 1. Then if Voyager 1 fulfills its Jupiter-Saturn objectives and if Voyager 2 is working well as it approaches Saturn, it will be sent on to Uranus and perhaps eventually on to Neptune.

JPL navigators know the technique works because they have already used it with the earlier Pioneer 10 and 11 Jupiter missions. Jupiter sent Pioneer 10 out of the solar system. Then, on Dec. 3, 1974, although it wasn't originally designed for such a mission, Pioneer 11 was whipped around Jupiter on a course for Saturn. With two-thirds of the flight over, it will arrive in 1979 in time to give Voyager controllers a preview of their target.

THESE PIONEERS not only tested the gravity assist technique. They also showed that spacecraft can pass safely through the asteroid belt and can survive the intense radiation belts of Jupiter. Both of these hazards had once seemed intimidating. By mapping Jupiter's radiation zone, the Pioneers have enabled Voyager navigators to target their craft at Jupiter with greater confidence.

With a radius of 44,366 miles, 11.2 times that of Earth,and with 317.9 times Earth's mass, Jupiter is the giant planet. Indeed, it is more massive than all the other planets combined. It has 13 known moons, with a 14th being suspected, making it a solar system in miniature.

Saturn also is huge. Its 37,300-mile radius is 9.4 times that of Earth and its mass is 92.5 Earth masses. Saturn has 10 moons and a spectacular set of rings, which the Voyagers should enable us to see in detail.

Unlike the inner rocky planets, Jupiter and Saturn are largely giant balls of gas — mostly hydrogen. They have no solid surface, only a gradually increasing density of gas that eventually turns into a liquid and may overlie a small rocky core. Long said that these planets may retain many characteristics of the primitive solar system, giving scientists what amounts to an opportunity to look back at conditions that existed when planets formed 4.5 billion years ago.

Voyagers will look at several of Jupiter's moons and at Titan, the Saturnian moon which is the only known satellite with a substantial atmosphere.

Long expects to recover a wealth of data from Jupiter and Saturn that should shed further light on the evolution of our planetary system. But he does not know what to expect from Uranus or Neptune. Poorly known, these planets could hold major surprises, he says, noting that, only this year, Uranus was found to have rings.

Throughout their long journeys, both Voyagers will sample conditions in interplanetary space — particle fluxes, radiation, magnetic fields. Such data also help scientists understand the solar system.

Voyager data will come in an unprecedented flood. This is why Long thinks the Voyager mission inaugurates a new era of planetary exploration, even though earlier studies of planets have also yielded a wealth of information. Voyager scientists can't hope to do more than what Long calls "first-order science." "There will be many, many discoveries buried in the Voyager data that it will take generations to dig it out," he says. "I hope they'll work at it."

Poor management, cost kills coal-into-oil plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inadequate planning, "incredibly poor" management and a 211 per cent cost overrun killed the government's first effort to turn coal into clean-burning synthetic oil, congressional investigators reported Friday.

A General Accounting Office report suggested that contractors tried to cover up problems as costs mounted, and that the government took no corrective action for about 10 months after learning of the trouble.

It said the coal conversion program was $10 million over the $4.7 million target cost for its first phase and 14½ months behind schedule when the Energy Research and Development Administration quietly killed it June 15.

THE REPORT made the first public announcement of the project's termination. ERDA has said only that it is reevaluating the effort, and agency officials had no comment on the GAD report Friday.

"ERDA's first attempt at demonstrating a synthetic fossil energy technology by converting coal into a clean burning liquid fuel has been a failure,", the GAO said.

As a result, it said, ERDA will be unable to meet its 1983 goal of showing that coal can be turned into fuel oil on a commercial scale to help replace foreign oil imports.

GAO the investigative arm of Congress, prepared its report for Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Commerce subcommittee on energy.

Teachers threaten strike over salary

Public school teachers will go on strike in September if they are not given a pay increase, Chicago Teachers Union Pres. Robert M. Healey said Friday. A wage increase is "absolutely essential", Healey said, because the current contract, which expires Aug. 31, did not include any pay raises. The teacher's union will ask for a 7 per cent wage increase for its more than 26,000 members, Healey said during a taping of "At Issue," a WBBM Radio program to be aired Sunday.

'No Burnham Corridor this year'

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Friday there is "no way" construction on the proposed Chicago Burnham Corridor can begin this year because the requirements for federal funding have not yet been met. "There will be no construction as far as I'm concerned," Percy said in a Capitol news conference, until impact studies are submitted and public hearings are held. "There's no way as I interpret the law that they can go ahead and build that," he said. "No longer can we bulldoze through cities and just shove people aside and throw business out of business." Asked when construction might begin, Percy said it depends on how long the hearing process and approval of impact studies takes.

Use of swastika in Skokie asked

Skokie village officials said Friday they will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to deny a request by a neo-Nazi group that would allow the display of the swastika during a march in the predominantly Jewish suburb. "We think the case is being handled expeditiously by the Illinois courts and that there is no need for intrusion by the U.S. Supreme Court," said Harvey Schwartz, Skokie corporation counsel. Members of the neo-Nazi group the National Socialists Party of America, asked U.S. Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens Thursday to lift a ban on the swastika emblem while the question is being appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

Thompson leaning against Laetrile

Gov. James R. Thompson said Friday his mind is made up on Laetrile legislation allowing terminal cancer patients to use the controversial substance, but he is keeping his decision to himself for now. The governor, sounding as if he is leaning toward a veto, refused to make public his decision for "several days."

'This is unreal': woman copes with Elvis error

condition, just dreary.

Mrs. Greenhill is unemployed and separated fron her husband and depends on welfare to support herself and her three children. She is an expressive woman, often expressing her feelings in four-letter words that she literally spits when she is upset.

SHE CAME BACK into the apartment. She was calm now and offered her visitor a cup of coffee. Had she been to Memphis for the funeral?

"No, hell no."

The shape her car's in, she said, she'd be lucky to go five miles, let alone to Memphis. In fact, she said, she doesn't even care that much about Elvis. Oh, she likes him ok, but not all that much. Her boyfriend, now there is somebody who is crazy about Elvis.

"I sure as hell wouldn't have gone to Elvis' funeral," she said. "It wouldn't have done me any good."

She sat down in a chair with a cup of coffee. Seven weeks ago, Mrs. Greenhill said, she had to go into the hospital for a hysterectomy. The doctor said she'd have to have complete bed rest. She called family services to see if she could get some help around the house.

THERE WAS A knock at the door, and Mrs. Greenhill looked up at it with some irritation. She demanded to know who was there, and a woman's voice answered.

Mrs. Greenhill sat her cup down and took long steps to the door. The other woman said something.

"Oh, no, I want to see Hinda," Mrs. Greenhill shouted. "Tell Hinda to kiss my - - - - ass."

She came back to the chair and immediately was composed. She picked up the conversation again.

"Anyway, you known when I heard from family services?" she said. "Three weeks! Three weeks later! Now what good are they going to do me three weeks later?"

THE AGENCY promised to send a homemaker over to help with the housework, Mrs. Greenhill said, but she told them no, she didn't want the help any more. They sent her over anyway, and occasionally, Mrs. Greenhill said, the woman would help with the dishes.

"I felt like she was prying, and trying to find out everything they could about me, like she was trying to take my kids away from me."

Mrs. Greenhill put her hand to her forehead. Her voice waw softer now.

"This is unreal," she said. "As far as neglecting my kids, I think my kids are fine."

SHE HAD RECEIVED no notification from the state's attorney's office or from family services that she had been sued for neglect, Mrs. Greenhill said. Did she have any idea how family services may have had the idea that she was in Memphis?

She nodded. Her best friend's daughter is 12, she said. She always babysits for her when she goes to the store.

"Can't I even go to the store?"

THURSDAY, HER son cut the bottom of his foot, so she took him to the hospital, and the 12-eyar-old came over to take care of her other two children, Mrs. Greenhill said. While she was there, another woman, whom she knows only as Carol stopped by from family services.

Mrs. Greenhill started to light another cigaret when there was another knock at the door. It was her best friend, Hinda Watson, who lives across the street, and Mrs. Watson's daughter, Lyna.

They began a heated shouting match, all the while edging into the apartment.

"She's just a 12-year-old, remember that," Mrs. Watson said.

"That's right, she's - - - 12 years old," Mrs. Greenhill said. "Why'd she say that?"

LYNA DIDN'T TELL the woman from family services that they had gone to Memphis, Mrs. Watson said. She just told her, Mrs. Watson said, that Mrs. Watson had mentioned she would have liked to have gone.

"It's in the - - - - paper," Mrs. Greenhill said, and she went back to sit in the chair again, and again she cooled off quickly.

Lyna sat in the sofa. She was sobbing hard, and only had tried to speak once, quickly giving up that effort when she was cut off.

The discussion quieted now. Mrs. Watson tried to explain what happened. The woman at family services, she said, obviously was trying to get Mrs. Greenhill for some reason or another.

MRS. WATSON looked at Lyna and directed her to recount what she had told the person from family services. Lyna was sobbing still and there was a long pause as she tried to get the words out.

The woman had asked where Mrs. Greenhill was, she said, and she told her that Mrs. Greenhill was at the hospital; then, however, Lyna said, she added to her reply.

"But my Ma was talking about going to see Elvis' funeral," Lyna said she told the woman, "But they don't have any money."

Mrs. Greenhill stared straight ahead.

"I'M GOING TO KILL me some - - - - people," she said.

The tone was unemotional. And she talked about how she had always had an uneasy feeling about family servises. They apparently didn't even talk to anyone else before filing the neglect suit, she said.

"This is unreal," Mrs. Greenhill said.

Does she take good care of her children?

"I take damn good care of my kids," she said. She pointed at one of her sons and told him to pull his shirt up.

"See how fat he is?"

State investigates Dist. 214 picnic

BY SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The Cook County State's Attorney's office is investigating the possible misuse of funds for a picnic dinner High School Dist. 214 had to thank residents who worked to defeat the April 9 unit school district referendum, investigator Arthur Turner said Friday.

Some 2,000 persons attended the May 22 picnic at Elk Grove High School which ran up a tab of $2,681.30.

Although the picnic initially was to be paid for with taxpayer funds, the Dist. 214 Board of Education voted in June to seek public donations instead. The decision was made on the basis of legal advice and public sentiment.

"IF THEY'RE MAKING restitution there's a good chance our office won't be prosecuting," Turner said. "Intent is a big factor."

The state's attorney's investigation of the picnic was sparked by a call from Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education member Judith Zanca who questioned the appropriateness of using district funds for the event.

Her call to the state's attorney's office was made before the Dist. 214 board revised its plan for paying the picnic tab, she said.

Donations to cover picnic expenses now are being collected by Citizens Opposed to the Unit District Formation, a non profit corporation. The group has collected only $200 in the past two months, but intends to mount an extensive fund-raising campaign once school begins, member Richard Cherico said.

"The corporation is going to pay the whole bill," he said. "There's no question about it."

AS PROOF OF the group's good intentions, Cherico noted the corporation already has paid Dist. 214 $5,410.89 for release time given teachers who worked to defeat the unit district referendum this past spring.

"As long as the picnic isn't paid for with taxpayers' funds, I'm pleased," Mrs. Zanca said.

Dist. 214 Board Pres. Jack Costello said the state's attorney's office "is right to look into and explore any allegations" of misuse of public funds, but said he knows there has been no wrongdoing.

"The picnic won't be paid for by district funds," he said. "That's a certainty."

Defeated by better than a 2 to 1 margin, the unit district would have combined 21 Dist. 59 elementary and junior high schools, Forest View High School in Arlington Heights and Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village.

Plans stalled, not dead for 244 acres by track gotten it," he said. "The status of the project has more to do with the market conditions of the day than anything."

In 1969, as part of the preannexation agreement with the track, village officials agreed to allow the commercial and residential development of Arlington Park.

But in 1974, when that pact expired, village leaders refused to renew the agreement for another five years, saying that would give the track blanket approval to build almost anything on the site.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan, who said he has not heard from Madison Square Garden officials in two years, said he believes the 1975 plans may be dead. "I think because of the passage of time they may have lost interest in this part of the facility," Ryan said.

"I think they're probably more committed to the racing facility now then they were two years ago because of night racing," he said.

Beginning this October, Arlington Park, will have night harness racing.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson agreed with Ryan. "I haven't heard from them (Madison Square Garden) in about a year. They submitted the master plan with the stadium proposal and as far as I know the ball's in their court."

The Herald Friday incorrectly reported that Prospect Heights Dist. 23 students this year took the standardized Iowa Test of Basic Skills. The scores were reported correctly, but the test was the Stanford Achievement Test.

$4.6 million in gems stolen from dealer

Robbers lured a diamond dealer to his factory with threats to kill his wife and children then blinded him with acid and escaped with up to $4.6 million in small, uncut diamonds, police said Friday. The diamond robbery Thursday was the biggest in South Africa's criminal history. The stones, no bigger than the head of a match, totaled some 40,000 carats and weighed about 17.6 pounds, police said. Police said the robbers escaped with 280,000 tiny uncut diamonds which were valued at between $3.45 and $4.6 million. The diamond dealer, Bernard Rudnicki, was reported in satisfactory condition at a Cape Town hospital. Doctors said it would be two days before they could know whether they could save Rudnicki's sight.

Quakes shage Indonesia, Italy

An "unusually strong" earthquake accompanied by a small tidal wave jolted eastern Indonesia Friday and shook buildings 1,500 miles away in southern Australia with such force that office workers fled outdoors. Indonesian officials said, however, they have so far received no reports of casualties or damage from the stricken region. The quake, which registered 7.7 on the Richter scale by the U.S. Geological Survey in Washington but only 4.3 on the instruments of the Jakarta Seismographic Station, was felt in cities throughout eastern Indonesia. Meanwhile, a light earth tremor shook central Italy but no damage or injuries were reported, officials said.

Police recover Spanish jewels

Police searching a 19-year-old ex-convict at a crossing on the Portuguese border Friday recovered most and possibly all of the medieval jewels and gold stolen 10 days ago from the cathedral of Oviedo. The man, identified as Jose Dominguez Saavedra, a sailor, escaped in the early morning darkness by jumping over an embankment. He left behind a small bag containing 251 gems and 4.4 pounds of gold, national security police said.

China digging new bomb shelters

China said Friday it is expanding a nationwide maze of bomb shelters and tunnels in preparation for the outbreak of a new world war. The underground facilities include "factories, shops, hospitals and theaters" as well as storage areas for food and other goods, the New China News Agency said. It said experts are working to upgrade the network of tunnels running beneath major Chinese cities to make them more suited to modern warfare.

Vance leaves for Peking visit

Sec. of State Cyrus Vance's trip to Peking probably will not produce dramatic breakthroughs, U.S. officials said Friday, adding that the Chinese have shrouded their intentions in mystery. Vance leaves Andrews AFB at 10 a.m. Saturday for Tokyo, where he will rest one day before heading to Peking for the first high-level American contact with the new Chinese leadership. Vance will spend four days in Peking. U.S. officials said the Vance trip will be "exploratory," and no dramatic breakthroughs are expected on the key question of establishing full diplomatic relations between Washington and Peking.

S. Africa youth shot during riot

Riot police shot and killed a teen-aged black student Friday during a raid on a Soweto, South Africa, school where pupils were giving lessons in making firebombs and boobytrap devices, a police spokesman said. He said about 100 youths were crowded around the Moletsane high school when riot police arrived after being tipped off about the lessons. He said the youths huled rocks at the officers, their armoed vehicles and private cars. Killed was Desmond Thabe Mabuse, 19, the first fatality in the black township since Aug. 3 when police and black students clashed in running street battles.

Kappler extradition denied

West Germany Friday rejected Italy's demand for the return of Nazi war criminal Herebrt Kappler to serve out his life sentence for a 1944 mass execution of 335 Italian men, women and children. Justice Ministry spokesman Thomas Wagenetz told reporters that Rome's request for the extradition of Kappler, the former Gestapo chief of Rome who was smuggled out of an Italian hospital in a trunk by his wife Monday and driven to Germany, will be turned over to the courts.

Pennsylvania workers strike

About 8,000 unpaid state workers left their jobs at Pennsylvania prisons and hospitals Friday to protest the state's 50th day without a fiscal year budget and their fourth week without pay. Gov. Milton Shapp estimated more than 10 per cent of the members of the 70,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes refused to report to work. The Capitol vibrated with the demands of 1,000 state workers who marched through the halls shouting, "We want a budget."

Drinan urges Lance to resign

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., Friday said Bert Lance should save the nation embarrassment and resign as director of the Office of Management and Budget. Drinan said that while a report from Comptroller of Currency John Heimann found nothing "technigally illegal" in Lance's financial dealings, "I think that in this post-Watergate morality we should not go as low as the law allows." Drinan, who was in the forefront of the impeachment call against former President Richard Nixon, Congress will "probably continue to dig and dig" into Lance's background and financial practices. "He should resign. It's embarrassing for the nation," Drinan said.

Nuclear test blast successful

An underground nuclear blast postponed two days by a rare tropical storm and then delayed 35 minutes more by unfavorable winds was finally exploded Friday. Officials said the blast at 12:55 p.m. CDT was a success and there were no indications that any radiation had escaped into the atmosphere. The test, code named "scantling," was the fifth this year and the 304th underground test since the United States and the Soviet Union agreed in 1963 to ban all tests in the atmosphere.

$4.6 million in gems stolen from dealer

Robbers lured a diamond dealer to his factory with threats to kill his wife and children then blinded him with acid and escaped with up to $4.6 million in small, uncut diamonds, police said Friday. The diamond robbery Thursday was the biggest in South Africa's criminal history. The stones, no bigger than the head of a match, totaled some 40,000 carats and weighed about 17.6 pounds, polce said. Police said the robbers escaped with 280,000 tiny uncut diamonds which were valued at between $3.45 and $4.6 million. The diamond dealer, Bernard Rudnicki, was reported in satisfactory condition at a Cape Town hospital. Doctors said it would be two days before they could know whether they could save Rudnicki's sight.

Quakes shage Indonesia, Italy

An "unusually strong" earthquake accompanied by a small tidal wave jolted eastern Indonesia Friday and shook buildings 1,500 miles away in southern Australia with such force that office workers fled outdoors. Indonesian officials said, however, they have so far received no reports of casualties or damage from the stricken region. The quake, which registered 7.7 on the Richter scale by the U.S. Geological Survey in Washington but only 4.3 on the instruments of the Jakarta Seismographic Station, was felt in cities throughout eastern Indonesia. Meanwhile, a light earth tremor shook central Italy but no damage or injuries were reported, officials said.

Police recover Spanish jewels

Police searching a 19-year-old ex-convict at a crossing on the Portuguese border Friday recovered most and possibly all of the medieval jewels and gold stolen 10 days ago from the cathedral of Oviedo. The man, identified as Jose Dominguez Saavedra, a sailor, escaped in the early morning darkness by jumping over an embankment. He left behinl a small bag containing 251 gems and 4.4 pounds of gold, national security police said.

China digging new bomb shelters

China said Friday it is expanding a nationwide maze of bomb shelters and tunnels in preparation for the outbreak of a new world war. The underground facilities include "factories, shops, hospitals and theaters" as well as storage areas for food and other goods, the New China News Agency said. It said experts are working to upgrade the network of tunnels running beneath major Chinese cities to make them more suited to modern warfare.

Vance leaves for Peking visit

Sec. of State Cyrus Vance's trip to Peking probably will not produce dramatic breakthroughs, U.S. officials said Friday, adding that the Chinese have shrouded their intentions in mystery. Vance leaves Andrews AFB at 10 a.m. Saturday for Tokyo, where he will rest one day before heading to Peking for the first high-level American contact with the new Chinese leadership. Vance will spend four days in Peking. U.S. officials said the Vance trip will be "exploratory," and no dramatic breakthroughs are expected on the key question of establishing full diplomatic relations between Washington and Peking.

S. Africa youth shot during riot

Riot police shot and killed a teen-aged black student Friday during a raid on a Soweto, South Africa, school where pupils were giving lessons in making firebombs and boobytrap devices, a police spokesman said. He said about 100 youths were crowded around the Moletsane high school when riot police arrived after being tipped off about the lessons. He said the youths huled rocks at the officers, their armoed vehicles and private cars. Killed was Desmond Thabe Mabuse, 19, the first fatality in the black township since Aug. 3 when police and black students clashed in running street battles.

Kappler extradition denied

West Germany Friday rejected Italy's demand for the return of Nazi war criminal Herebrt Kappler to serve out his life sentence for a 1944 mass execution of 335 Italian men, women and children. Justice Ministry spokesman Thomas Wagenetz told reporters that Rome's request for the extradition of Kappler, the former Gestapo chief of Rome who was smuggled out of an Italian hospital in a trunk by his wife Monday and driven to Germany, will be turned over to the courts.

Pennsylvania workers strike

About 8,000 unpaid state workers left their jobs at Pennsylvania prisons and hospitals Friday to protest the state's 50th day without a fiscal year budget and their fourth week without pay. Gov. Milton Shapp estimated more than 10 per cent of the members of the 70,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes refused to report to work. The Capitol vibrated with the demands of 1,000 state workers who marched through the halls shouting, "We want a budget."

Drinan urges Lance to resign

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., Friday said Bert Lance should save the nation embarrassment and resign as director of the Office of Management and Budget. Drinan said that while a report from Comptroller of Currency John Heimann found nothing "technigally illegal" in Lance's financial dealings, "I think that in this post-Watergate morality we should not go as low as the law allows." Drinan, who was in the forefront of the impeachment call against former President Richard Nixon, Congress will "probably continue to dig and dig" into Lance's background and financial practices. "He should resign. It's embarrassing for the nation," Drinan said.

Nuclear test blast successful

An underground nuclear blast postponed two days by a rare tropical storm and then delayed 35 minutes more by unfavorable winds was finally exploded Friday. Officials said the blast at 12:55 p.m. CDT was a success and there were no indications that any radiation had escaped into the atmosphere. The test, code named "scantling," was the fifth this year and the 304th underground test since the United States and the Soviet Union agreed in 1963 to ban all tests in the atmosphere.

Humphrey plans return to Senate

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, suffering from terminal cancer, walked around his hospital room Friday and plans a return to the Senate shortly after Labor Day to work "vigorously"on the nation's "unfinished business," his aides said.

The Democratic "Happy Warrior," who learned after surgery Thursday that he has an inoperable malignant tumor in the pelvic area, wants to "vigorously pursue matters . . . of vital interest to Minnesota and the nation," a staff statement said.

"He said there is a great deal of unfinished business and he will be in Washington to play an important role in completing it."

DOCTORS SAID the former vice president is in good spirits and his over-all health is good enough that he should be able to return to the Senate next month with the help of cancer-slowing drug treatments.

"He's a remarkable man," said Dr. John Najarian, chief surgeon at the University of Minnesota Hospital. "He's so wonderfully alive."

A teaam of surgeons headed by Najarian found an inoperable malignant tumor in the pelvic area in surgery Thursday. Najarian said it probably originated in the senator's bladder, which was found cancerous and removed in New York last October.

NAJARIAN SAID it is "terminal cancer" but chemotherapy should slow the growth.

The husky surgeon said he's not sure how long the 66-year-old Humphrey can live — "it could be months, it could be years." But he added Humphrey probably can't take chemotherapy more than "four, five, maybe six years."

Dr. B. J. Kennedy, university cancer specialist, is planning a new drug treatment program for Humphrey. Experts at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., will assist.

CANCER DETECTION
HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood pressure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 issue of FORTUNE "If one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

Give yourself the best protection available today against cancer and heart disease by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Illinois (Near Woodfield Mall.) Master Charge accepted. Telephone (312) 885-1360.

"From where I'm sitting, love's in TROUBLE."

KIDS' KORNER

by MARILYN HALLMAN

JEANBAG, ANYONE?

When you cut off old jeans, save a leg. Leave the side seams as is. Cut a piece of leg about seven inches wide. Turn it inside out. Sew up the open sides with double thread and very small stitches. Fill the bag with dry navy beans. Sew up the hole. Play any bean-bag game with your jeanbag. See next week's Kid's Korner for some ideas.

Ask Andy

All fishermen respect the lure of the wily trout

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Jody Krisky, 9, of Staten Island, N.Y., for her question:

WHY IS IT SO HARD TO CATCH TROUT?

The fact that trout aren't too easy to catch, most fishermen agree, is part of what makes them so wonderful. They are classified as game fish, and being difficult to catch is part of their makeup.

Trout like to live in cool, clear waters where the bottom is gravel-covered. They spawn in fall or early spring and the eggs hatch when the temperature of the water goes up late in spring. During winter some of the fish go downstream and into the open sea. This is especially true of the salmon, a fish that is closely related to true trout.

Trout fall into two main groups: the chars and the true trout.

Chars include the brook or speckled which can be found from the Appalachian regions westward to the Great Lakes and Minnesota, in Canada from Labrador to the Saskatchewan River and in lakes and streams of the Upper Mississippi Valley and the Western States. The largest ever caught weighed almost 15 pounds and was from the north shore of Lake Superior.

Lake trout are also chars. They're much larger than the brook trout. They often weigh in between 15 and 20 pounds with an occasional fish coming in at 100 pounds.

True trout include the rainbows of western North America. They are especially hard to catch, and often an angler must change lines, hooks and bait to get the right combination. Also, they often fight hard and long for their freedom once they have been hooked.

Another true trout is the cutthroat. Much like the rainbow trout, it is a good fighter and excellent to eat. It has a brilliant red streak on each side of his jaw and can be found along the northwestern coast and throughout the Rocky Mountain region.

In California, the golden trout is the official state fish. It can be found in mountain waters through much of the western part of the United States.

Another true trout — and one that is as hard to catch as most of its relatives — is called the brown trout. It is actually a native of Europe but was brought to the streams and lakes of the United States and parts of Canada. Some fishermen like the brown trout while others do not rate him as high as other North American trout.

Andy sends the book "200 Illustrated Science Experiments" to Rodney Dority, 11, of Darlington, S.C., for his question:

WHAT IS MITOSIS?

Mitosis is a process by which most cells divide. First a cell will divide and form into two identical daughter cells. Each daughter cell then doubles in size and becomes capable of dividing. Most one-celled plants and animals reproduce by the process of mitosis.

Mitosis is also the way most cells in your body and in many-celled plants and animals reproduce. In animal cells there are four orderly stages: a prophase when chromosomes duplicate themselves, a metaphase when the chromosomes move to the middle of the cell, the anaphase when the sister chromosomes separate and move to opposite poles and the telophase when the cell splits at the equator. Two new cells are then produced with each having a full set of chromosomes and the same hereditary information as the original cell.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Play trump till it hurts

South's three-diamond bid is worthy of note. Even though North had responded one notrump there might well be a diamond slam if North held reasonably good diamonds. As it was, South arrived at the very normal spade game.

He ruffed the second club, led a diamond to dummy's ace and a diamond back to his king. Then he played his ace of trumps.

After that the rest of the play was easy. He ruffed his seven of diamonds with dummy's last trump, returned to his hand with the ace of hearts, eventually lost one trump and one heart, but had his contract safely in hand.

The game was duplicate and South was surprised to find that he had almost scored a top. It seems that most declarers had forgotten to play one round of trumps. This gave West a chance to ruff the seven of diamonds with his singleton 10 of trumps.

This fairly simple hand shows the rule for trump play. Declarer should play as many rounds of trumps as he can afford. In this case he could afford to play that one important round.

JEANBAG, ANYONE?

When you cut off old jeans, save a leg. Leave the side seams as is. Cut a piece of leg about seven inches wide. Turn it inside out. Sew up the open sides with double thread and very small stitches. Fill the bag with dry navy beans. Sew up the hole. Play any bean-bag game with your jeanbag. See next week's Kid's Korner for some ideas.

Ask Andy

All fishermen respect the lure of the wily trout

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Jody Krisky, 9, of Staten Island, N.Y., for her question:

WHY IS IT SO HARD TO CATCH TROUT?

The fact that trout aren't too easy to catch, most fishermen agree, is part of what makes them so wonderful. They are classified as game fish, and being difficult to catch is part of their makeup.

Trout like to live in cool, clear waters where the bottom is gravel-covered. They spawn in fall or early spring and the eggs hatch when the temperature of the water goes up late in spring. During winter some of the fish go downstream and into the open sea. This is especially true of the salmon, a fish that is closely related to true trout.

Trout fall into two main groups: the chars and the true trout.

Chars include the brook or speckled which can be found from the Appalachian regions westward to the Great Lakes and Minnesota, in Canada from Labrador to the Saskatchewan River and in lakes and streams of the Upper Mississippi Valley and the Western States. The largest ever caught weighed almost 15 pounds and was from the north shore of Lake Superior.

Lake trout are also chars. They're much larger than the brook trout. They often weigh in between 15 and 20 pounds with an occasional fish coming in at 100 pounds.

True trout include the rainbows of western North America. They are especially hard to catch, and often an angler must change lines, hooks and bait to get the right combination. Also, they often fight hard and long for their freedom once they have been hooked.

Another true trout is the cutthroat. Much like the rainbow trout, it is a good fighter and excellent to eat. It has a brilliant red streak on each side of his jaw and can be found along the northwestern coast and throughout the Rocky Mountain region.

In California, the golden trout is the official state fish. It can be found in mountain waters through much of the western part of the United States.

Another true trout — and one that is as hard to catch as most of its relatives — is called the brown trout. It is actually a native of Europe but was brought to the streams and lakes of the United States and parts of Canada. Some fishermen like the brown trout while others do not rate him as high as other North American trout.

Andy sends the book "200 Illustrated Science Experiments" to Rodney Dority, 14, of Darlington, S.C., for his question:

WHAT IS MITOSIS?

Mitosis is a process by which most cells divide. First a cell will divide and form into two identical daughter cells. Each daughter cell then doubles in size and becomes capable of dividing. Most one-celled plants and animals reproduce by the process of mitosis.

Mitosis is also the way most cells in your body and in many-celled plants and animals reproduce. In animal cells there are four orderly stages: a prophase when chromosomes duplicate themselves, a metaphase when the chromosomes move to the middle of the cell, the anaphase when the sister chromosomes separate and move to opposite poles and the telophase when the cell splits at the equator. Two new cells are then produced with each having a full set of chromosomes and the same hereditary information as the original cell.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Cleric finds vocations give insight into religion today

David E. Anderson

World of religion

Martin Marty styles himself a "historian-journalist" or a "journalist-historian," and while admitting that such a description has occasioned sneers, he admits to rather wallowing in enjoyment of the dual vocation.

Marty is many other things as well: a teacher, a prolific author which has made hm one of the most influential commentators on the contemporary American religious scene, a fair humorist and, for 25 years, an ordained clergyman.

In his biweekly newsletter, Context, published by Claretian Publications, Marty usually combines his roles of journalist and historian to provide insight on what is happening in the world of religion and how that impinges on the more secular American scene.

MARKING THE 25th anniversary of his ordination, however, Marty took a rather personal look back at quarter century that has transpired since his ordinatin.

"The theological theme that has emerged for many of us during these 25 years has to do not so much with the existence of God or the truth of Christianity as with how the particular relates to the general, the specific to the universal," he said.

In short, he said, the central theological problem has been less that of the various fads like the death of God but the question of "how is God active beyond his work in the Christian Gospel and Church."

He notes some basic changes that reflect a partial answer.

"IN 1962 our class of Protestants were still trained to be anti-Catholic," he said and, a little ruefully, remembered that he had prophesied that "little would come" of Vatican II. "Now all is changed," he said.

A look at his writings of the 1950s also showed, Marty said, they were concerned with "the puffy prosperity of mainline churches." In the 1960s, those same churches suffered assault from within and without and "some of them lost purpose, definition, core, energy, vision and yielded space to more aggressive if often more unlovely styles of Christianity and religion."

But he said, "For all the impressive growth of conservative Protestantism, the culture is not less secularized than before their surge. Only as the evangelicals move toward the exposure that the mainline demands are they taken seriously in the culture."

"The parish or local congregation," he said, "has roved remarkably durable."

A much needed legal crackdown

The Cook County Forest Preserve rangers have been conducting a crackdown on illegal drug traffic and gang activity in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in Elk Grove Township.

The rangers arrested 173 persons last Sunday at the forest preserve — 47 of those arrested face drug related charges and others were picked up for such offenses as illegal parking, speeding, battery, assault and illegal weapons possession.

The crackdown is welcome because of the increasing number of rowdies who have been making Ned Brown the center for their activities. On July 31 a fight broke out between two gangs, allegedly over control of drug traffic in the preserve. More than 100 persons were hurt in the fight.

The goal of the forest rangers and other law enforcement groups who have joined them is to restore Ned Brown to family use. As things stand now, families wanting to enjoy the preserve for a quiet picnic have been discouraged from going to Ned Brown.

It is important, certainly, for enforcement activities to be conducted with restraint to avoid unnecessary harassment of young people with peaceable intent who are using the forest preserve.

However, it is also important to ensure that the forest preserve is not converted into a major crime headquarters.

The forest rangers, who are often maligned as poorly trained and ill-equipped to handle major trouble, have so far conducted themselves well in the Ned Brown crackdown, using a 23-member team of specially trained officers who specialize in preventing disturbances in the forest preserves.

Residents of the Northwest suburbs can be thankful for the law enforcement job being done in Ned Brown. With continued vigilance, the preserve will once again become a pleasant family recreational spot.

Mrs. Slovik deserves aid

If Pres. Richard Nixon, Vietnam draft resisters and Tokyo Rose deserve special consideration of their cases by the President, why not Eddie Slovik?

That is the question that comes to mind with the news last week that the U.S. Army has upheld Pvt. Slovik's conviction and execution as a deserter during World War II.

The decision means that Antoinette Slovik, the widow of the only man executed by the military for desertion since the Civil War, cannot collect $70,000 in insurance benefits.

The military undoubtedly feared paying Mrs. Slovik the benefits might encourage many other ex-servicemen with less than honorable discharges, or their families, to try to collect benefits previously denied them.

Justice in this case, however, seems to demand more than adherence to bureaucratic rules. Mrs. Slovik is ill and living in poverty. For years she was kept in the dark about the circumstances surrounding her husband's death. She learned of the execution in 1954 when she was told by a journalist.

Because of the unique circumstances surrounding the case, Pres. Jimmy Carter should intervene to ensure justice in the Slovik case.

The Panama canal:

...America's rightful sovereignty surrendered

The text of a new Panama Canal treaty hasn't been released yet, but the self-congratulatory noises on its conclusion give every evidence that the treaty will be as bad as one had feared: The exercise of American sovereignty over the Panama Canal will be given up in exchange for some vague guarantees of the canal's defense.

And American diplomats will proclaim themselves gratified at the outcome. They've already begun; there is talk of a gala celebration and treaty signing even before the exact words of the agreement are released. One hopes the words can still be examined under all the confetti.

Ellsworth Bunker, who may be remembered for his long role in the gradual extinction of South Vietnam, joined with Sol Linowitz in celebrating the treaty they had negotiated on behalf of the United States. The two pronounced themselves "deeply gratified" and assured the American public that the new canal treaty "will not only protect but strengthen" national security. How the surrender of sovereign rights will do that remains to be seen, for the word is that the treaty gives full control over the canal to Panama — the most likely source of a threat to its security.

ONE CANNOT avoid a sinking feeling of Deja Vu. The verbiage emanating from the American negotiators brings to mind the assurances of Henry Kissinger back in 1973 ending the war in Vietnam, preparatory to ending South Vietnam not long after.

Paul Greenberg

What the American negotiators seem to have accomplished is to surrender a legally unassailable position, which granted the United States the exercise of sovereignty over the canal in perpetuity, for a separate, vague protocol that says something about the United States having some role in protecting the canal's neutrality in the future. (Perhaps if there is any question about the meaning of the agreement, the United Nations can be called on to interpret it in any future crisis. How assuring.) In exchange, the United States gets to give Panama about $50 million a year in benefits instead of the present $2.3 million.

The essential impetus behind Panama's bargaining position was illustrated by the reaction of Americans in the Canal Zone "welcoming" the announcement that a treaty was being concluded handing over the canal. "I hope they do ratify it," said Vicky Boatwright, student at the Canal Zone College, "or I will be killed along with others in the Canal Zone." And Ray Hull, a port captain, said he didn't know what the effect of the treaty would be, "but I sure don't want them to burn my house down." In the end, the Panamanian argument seemed to stem not so much from reasons of diplomacy, justice or legality, but the threat of force. And that, apparently, now suffices to cow the government of the United States.

IT SEEMS CLEAR that this Administration has bowed to vague threats of force from about a twelfth-rate dictator rather than defend an indisputable claim to the exercise of American sovereignty. That tendency does not bode good, in Panama or elsewhere.

This one-sided deal may be fuzzed over with vague language about the United States never having had the right to exercise its sovereignty over the canal — a claim that depends in the main on ignorance of the original treaty.

For those not so ignorant, some historical revisionism can be rolled out. It will be explained that the United States did not buy, build and maintain the Canal but somehow suckered Panama out of it. This theory showed up in an aside in a story on the new treaty the other day: "Some believe that the United States took unfair advantage of the weak, fledgling county of Panama in 1903." Which proves only that some people will believe anything.

THE ONLY advantage the United States took of Panama in 1903 was to make its independence possible — in return for the opportunity to create an American canal across the isthmus. Once again an American guilt complex is being manipulated, or perhaps manufactured, to justify an American retreat covered only by insubstantial words.

At least count, there were still 25 United States senators opposed to any such cave-in and 38 undecided. One hopes they won't be lulled by the doublespeak and will ask some pertinent questions about this treaty. Including: Is there any good reason for the United States to give up its perfectly legal exercise of sovereignty over the Panama Canal? One hopes the American public will encourage senators in putting the questions. Now is the time to ask. It may soon be too late.

...Or a sensible end to American colonialism

by B. J. CUTLER

After bloody riots in the Canal Zone that left 25 dead in 1964 and after tortuous negotiations since then, the United States and Panama at last have agreed "in principle" on the future of the Panama Canal.

In a historic and sensible step toward decolonialism, the Carter administration wishes to yield control over the waterway and the 533-square-mile Canal Zone to Panama in the year 2000.

The negotiators no doubt feel they have accomplished a difficult feat, but the hardest part lies ahead: to convince the required 67 U.S. senators that it is in the national interest to ratify a new canal treaty.

WHILE A word-by-word treaty hasn't been written, the outlined agreement seems fair to both sides.

The Panamanians made major concessions: letting the Americans run the canal for 23 more years; accepting a U.S. military presence until 2000; agreeing that U.S. forces could return after that date to defend the canal, and scaling down their annual rental demands to $50 million, which can be covered by canal tolls.

Unfortunately the canal issue is an emotional one in this country and a violent debate can be expected. Ronald Reagan and other conservatives are fond of declaiming, "We bought it, we paid for it, we built it and we ought to keep it."

In fact "we built it" is about the only accurate part of the statement. We didn't buy it; Teddy Roosevelt used to admit proudly that he "took" the Canal Zone and all but blackmailed Panama into ratifying the one-sided 1903 treaty giving the United States rights there "in perpetuity."

HOWEVER, it's pointless to argue about ancient history. What this country got away with in an era of imperialism is not what it should practice today. It makes more sense to argue about the canal's value, which is much exaggerated by its admirers.

Diplomatically it is a handicap. It is seen throughout Latin America as proof of "Yankee imperialism" and thus harms the nation's interests in the hemisphere.

Strategically it is obsolete. Big aircraft carriers, large naval vessels and modern tankers cannot fit through it. That is why this country built a two-ocean Navy. Also, the canal is indefensible; in wartime one Soviet submarine could close it with one nuclear missile.

Economically the canal is overrated. It now carries only 2 per cent of this country's coast-to-coast trade. And by the year 2000 its military and economic value will be less than today's.

AMERICANS ought to try to look at the canal through Panamanian eyes. It was stolen from them. It is an open wound dividing their country, diminishing their nationhood. It is their main natural resource — held by foreigners.

There are only 1.7 million Panamanians but they are united in their determination to regain the Canal Zone. If the Senate succumbs to demogoguery and jingoism and defeats the treaty, one can expect guerrilla warfare and sabotage of the canal.

In their struggle the Panamanians will have the backing of all Latin America. Should this country risk a nasty little tropical Vietnam over a waterway that isn't worth much anymore?

'History repeats in Wheeling fight'

Did you ever experience something and have the distinct feeling that you have lived through the same experience before?

History is repeating in Wheeling. Remember Mr. Golden, the other professional Village Manager Wheeling had, who tried to do what managers are supposed to do? He too was a good manager and he too was hassled by a village board who wanted to tell him what to do, who wanted to run his job. He was not fired, but life was made so miserable for him that he resigned. That was in 1969-70.

Then came Mr. Passolt after some years with no manager, and we still had no manager. Mr. Passolt always "went along." One wonders if his presence at the village board meeting on the same night the vote of "no confidence" was given our present manager Mr. Zerkle, has any significance. Time will tell. Could be he would be happy to be a "Yes-man" for this group and they would be happy to have a "yes-man" in that job.

A question for Mrs. Dahm and Mr. Ross, Trustees. What is meant by your statements that if a man "from within" isn't made chief of police we will have no police department? Does that mean that Ted Bracke is so popular and well liked by his fellow officers that they will all quit if he isn't their chief? Or does it mean that our force is so unsure of their own abilities as policemen that they are afraid a well-qualified man from "outside" would spot their inadequacies? Or does Mr. Bracke "have something" on somebody? Just what is meant by those statements?

It could be that Wheeling citizens who remember are a bit paranoid when events like these concerning Mr. Zerkle come to light. The first thing that comes to mind is that these new trustees have no ability to do their own thinking, that they do what Mr. Hein says and Mr. Hein, who has learned his lessons well from serving on the late unlamented Stavros dominated village boards, is still doing what he is told.

More tax questions

After reading Harriett Nilsson's letter of August 10 I think there are many more questions that need answering by the tax eaters.

What did they do with the millions of dollars they collected on prior years? Do you ever hear of them having any left over?

What are this year's increases of 50 per cent - 100 per cent - 300 per cent for?

We also have county sales tax, vehicle tax and one cent gasoline tax. With all these taxes, and all the new homes that were built on vacant property in the last ten years, our real estate taxes should decrease instead of increasing every year.

Do you see why they don't want us to pull out of Cook County and form Lincoln County? They want our tax dollars.

Slow justice keeps felons on the street

by TERRI GINNETTI
A news analysis

No one carries stopwatches in Cook County Circuit Court. That's because the wheels of justice grind so slowly that months, not minutes, mark the legal process.

Take, for example, the case of David J. Welch, 26. Welch has been waiting three months for his case to come up in court. By Cook County standards, that is not a long time.

But Welch's case is different. He is not a poor victim lost in the muddled mire of the legal world. He is not an innocent soul helplessly awaiting his turn for justice.

WELCH IS A convicted felon. He is serving a probationary sentence for sexually assaulting an Arlington Heighs boy and he is facing new charges that he took indecent liberties with another boy, a 14-year-old in his care as a foster child.

But Welch remains a free man. And on Thursday he walked from the courtroom of Judge Richard L. Curry still a free man and destined to remain that way at least another month, when his case will come up again.

Welch's story dates back to 1974 when he was charged by Arlington Heights police with abducting at knifepoint and sexually attacking a 16-year-old youth. After more than a year of pretrial wrangling, Welch agreed to plead guilty to charges of deviate sexual assault in the case, with the prosecution dropping other charges, including kidnapping and impersonating a police officer.

A compassionate Judge Curry sentenced the young man to five years of probation instead of jail, but with the sentence came the warning that if Welch was arrested during that time, he would face the full fury of the law.

ONLY 18 MONTHS after Judge Curry's Dec. 5, 1975 sentencing, Welch was apprehended by Chicago police in a crackdown on child prostitution and pornography. He was charged with four others in conection with the production of a pornographic film sold to an undercover agent, a film which allegedly featured his 14-year-old foster son.

Police charged Welch with taking indecent liberties with the boy.

A week after his arrest May 13, police learned of Welch's past record and the Cook County Probation Department said it would begin an immediate review.

BUT "IMMEDIATE" in Cook County does not necessarily follow Webster's definitions. Welch's arrest was not an automatic violation of probation, as the layman might expect. There would have to be a hearing.

First came the June 8 pretrial session. Then the June 22 arraignment for the new charge. Then the June 29 follow-up appearance. And then Thursday's appearance.

That lasted only briefly. Assistant Public Defender Paul Strolka asked for another continuance so he could review the 119-page transcript of the June 8 pretrial hearing.

Strolka said he would need until Sept. 29 to file more documents. After that the judge could set yet another court date for the actual hearing, he said.

ASSISTANT STATE'S ATTY. Terry Chiganos said the state would not object to the continuance request.

"I would hope we would be ready then to set a firm date for hearing," Judge Curry told the attorneys.

Would Welch be required to appear on the Sept. 29 date, his lawyer asked?

"I think Mr. Welch should be present during each proceeding," the judge said.

AND THEN IT WAS over. Welch, a short man dressed in a short-sleeved green shirt and tan slacks, had remained silent beside Strolka throughout the five-minute session. And he left equally mum, still free on bond.

Kids caught the firefly bug; I caught some summer rest

by DOROTHY MEYER

Dorothy Meyer

For many years a laboratory in these parts has been buying fireflies for scientific experiments, and for many years that lab kept me from going bananas the last two weeks before school started.

Of course it also has been many years since my kids spent their August evenings catching fireflies, but a recent article about the laboratory brought back memories.

Memories of my kids whining, "I don't know what to do," and then punching out a younger sibling just to relieve their late summer boredom.

MEMORIES OF THEIR almost-teetotaler father yelling, "Gimme a drink," when I came home with the bills after a back-to-school shopping session. (This was back in the days when kids were ashamed to go to school in scuffy shoes and ragged jeans or — ye gods — overalls).

Memories of me on my knees, praying for strength to keep from beating my husabnd over the head wth his kids. (The last two weeks of August they always were HIS kids.)

And then came Antonik Laboratories with an offer of a half-cent per firefly in mint condition. What a godsend.

When the kids started whining I could say, "Ayyhhh, go catch a firefly," and when they'd whine, "It isn't dark out yet," I'd con them into believing a firefly caught in broad daylight was worth a bundle.

AND WHEN MY husband began hs annual fiscal lament, I'd stick a butterfly net between his teeth and shove him out the back door to join the kids.

Eventually the kids caught ón — there weren't any fireflies to be found during the day. I had to put out a couldn't tell a glow worm from a box recall on their father because he elder bug.

But by then I'd learned to cope with the last two weeks of August — I went to work.

That was a long time ago, yet the memories linger.

- Memories of the kids showing me that first newspaper article about the laboratory paying for fireflies (which first had to be caught, then frozen and finally counted out in lots of 100). And me explaining the oogy difference between a bug in good condition and one that was too squashed.
- Memories of going to the freezer for a package of vegetables and throwing 100 freeze-dried box elder bugs into a pot of beef stew.

In The Herald of Aug. 15, with reference to land annexation for commercial use in the Plum Grove unincorporated area between Rolling Meadows and Palatine. Ald. James Huddleston is quoted: "I know some of the homeowners have been very vocal about commercial spread but I can't see where it would hurt anything. I think it would help the city."

Now Alderman, since you continue to press for commercial zoning along Plum Grove Road and areas to the east, how does it happen you haven't been pushing for the master plan map? It seems to me your views and your pledge as Alderman would compel you to inquire as to where this plan is!

Even if your main interest is tax revenue — let's lay it on the line — show us the locations you propose to sacrifice to the fast food franchisers, restaurant bars and gas stations! Where do you want to place the apartment houses? You know they will follow the commercial zoning. Please tell us now.

Senate confirmation sham

Lance investigation came too late

Clark Mollenhoff

Watch on Washington

The belated in-depth probe of the bank loans of Budget Director Bert Lance has demonstrated once again that the Senate confirmation process usually is a superficial sham.

Without challenging the legality of Bert Lance's loan from correspondent banks while he was president of the National Bank of Georgia, it can be stated that the probe has raised questions of propriety that should have been resolved at his earlier confirmation hearing.

It is unfortuante that the laxity of the Senate Government Operations Committee in the initial investigation is more the pattern of Senate confirmation hearings than the exception.

Presidential nominees are encouraged to make a personal visit to the private office of key senators before the actual confirmation hearing for the purpose of putting out any fires of hostility or skepticism in a forum that is not recorded.

THE WHOLE IMPACT of this procedure is to nullify the effectiveness of any investigation. Committee lawyers and investigators do not ask the extra question or request original documents, and accept the self-serving declarations by the nominee or his associates.

That was the pattern in Lance's initial confirmation hearing, and unfortunately the atmosphere continued through the July 25 hearing on the bank loss in which Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., committee chairman, denounced the press for a smear of Lance with innuendoes and half truths.

Other members of the Senate committee joined with Ribicoff in premature expressions of total confidence in the genial Georgia banker, only to have second thoughts on the subject within two weeks as new documents surfaced that were at odds with Lance's assurances at the July 25 hearing.

A PART OF LANCE'S problem today is the sharp fall in the value of his stock in the National Bank of Georgia — stock that he initially agreed to sell by the end of 1977. This unfortunate development has created a financial squeeze that could wipe out a major part of Lance's net worth.

Though the investigations of Comptroller of the Currency John G. Heimann have cleared Lance of law violations, the Georgia banker should plan his exit from the Carter administration at the earliest convenient time.

The piling together of the innumerable problems of the operation of the Calhoun First National Bank where Lance got his start, the questions of use of the funds and a bank plane in his unsuccessful run for Georgia governor, and the loans from the Hanover bank and the Chicago bank create a blurred image for a key Carter position.

Clearly, Bert Lance should be giving all of his attention to adjusting his personal affairs to meet the crisis of the drop in value of his stock.

PRESIDENT JIMMY Carter should not ask his Georgia banker friend to continue with responsibilities in government with accompanying temptations that inevitably will arise to use the broad powers of the Office of Management and Budget to recover his losses.

The Bert Lance experience demonstrates why the Senate Government Operations Committee and other Senate committees with confirmation responsibilities should appraoch all confirmations with a healthy skepticism that encourages depth investigations of every nominee.

It is incredible such laxity in confirmation continues to exist in the Senate in the immediate wake of the Watergate era.

It is time all of the Senate committees start to treat their confirmation responsibilities in a manner that will protect the administration from itself, the nominees from careless assurances, the reputations of the committee members, and the entire confirmation process.

Slow justice keeps felons on the street

by TERRI GINNETTI
A news analysis

No one carries stopwatches in Cook County Circuit Court. That's because the wheels of justice grind so slowly that months, not minutes, mark the legal process.

Take, for example, the case of David J. Welch, 26. Welch has been waiting three months for his case to come up in court. By Cook County standards, that is not a long time.

But Welch's case is different. He is not a poor victim lost in the muddled mire of the legal world. He is not an innocent soul helplessly awaiting his furn for justice.

WELCH IS A convicted felon. He is serving a probationary sentence for sexually assaulting an Arlington Heighs boy and he is facing new charges that he took indecent liberties with another boy, a 14-year-old in his care as a foster child.

But Welch remains a free man. And on Thursday he walked from the courtroom of Judge Richard L. Curry still a free man and destined to remain that way at least another month, when his case will come up again.

Welch's story dates back to 1974 when he was charged by Arlington Heights police with abducting at knifepoint and sexually attacking a 16-year-old youth. After more than a year of pretrial wrangling, Welch agreed to plead guilty to charges of deviate sexual assault in the case, with the prosecution dropping other charges, including kidnapping and impersonating a police officer.

A compassionate Judge Curry sentenced the young man to five years of probation instead of jail, but with the sentence came the warning that if Welch was arrested during that time, he would face the full fury of the law.

ONLY 18 MONTHS after Judge Curry's Dec. 5, 1975 sentencing, Welch was apprehended by Chicago police in a crackdown on child prostitution and pornography. He was charged with four others in conection with the production of a pornographic film sold to an undercover agent, a film which allegedly featured his 14-year-old foster son.

Police charged Welch with taking indecent liberties with the boy.

A week after his arrest May 13, police learned of Welch's past record and the Cook County Probation Department said it would begin an immediate review.

BUT "IMMEDIATE" in Cook County does not necessarily follow Webster's definitions. Welch's arrest was not an automatic violation of probation, as the layman might expect. There would have to be a hearing.

First came the June 8 pretrial session. Then the June 22 arraignment for the new charge. Then the June 29 follow-up appearance. And then Thursday's appearance.

That lasted only briefly. Assistant Public Defender Paul Strolka asked for another continuance so he could review the 119-page transcript of the June 8 pretrial hearing.

Strolka said he would need until Sept. 29 to file more documents. After that the judge could set yet another court date for the actual hearing, he said.

ASSISTANT STATE'S ATTY. Terry Chiganos said the state would not object to the continuance request.

"I would hope we would be ready then to set a firm date for hearing," Judge Curry told the attorneys.

Would Welch be required to appear on the Sept. 29 date, his lawyer asked?

"I think Mr. Welch should be present during each proceeding," the judge said.

AND THEN IT WAS over. Welch, a short man dressed in a short-sleeved green shirt and tan slacks, had remained silent beside Strolka throughout the five-minute session. And he left equally mum, still free on bond.

Kids caught the firefly bug; I caught some summer rest

Dorothy Meyer

For many years a laboratory in these parts has been buying fireflies for scientific experiments, and for many years that lab kept me from going bananas the last two weeks before school started.

Of course it also has been many years since my kids spent their August evenings catching fireflies, but a recent article about the laboratory brought back memories.

Memories of my kids whining, "I don't know what to do," and then punching out a younger sibling just to relieve their late summer boredom.

MEMORIES OF THEIR almost-teetotaler father yelling, "Gimme a drink," when I came home with the bills after a back-to-school shopping session. (This was back in the days when kids were ashamed to go to school in scuffy shoes and ragged jeans or — ye gods — overalls).

Memories of me on my knees, praying for strength to keep from beating my husabnd over the head wth his kids. (The last two weeks of August they always were HIS kids.)

And then came Antonik Laboratories with an offer of a half-cent per firefly in mint condition. What a godsend.

When the kids started whining I could say, "Ayyhhh, go catch a firefly," and when they'd whine, "It isn't dark out yet," I'd con them into believing a firefly caught in broad daylight was worth a bundle.

AND WHEN MY husband began hs annual fiscal lament, I'd stick a butterfly net between his teeth and shove him out the back door to join the kids.

Eventually the kids caught on — there weren't any fireflies to be found during the day. I had to put out a couldn't tell a glow worm from a box recall on their father because he elder bug.

But by then I'd learned to cope with the last two weeks of August — I went to work.

That was a long time ago, yet the memories linger.

- Memories of the kids showing me that first newspaper article about the laboratory paying for fireflies (which first had to be caught, then frozen and finally counted out in lots of 100). And me explaining the oogy difference between a bug in good condition and one that was too squashed.
- Memories of going to the freezer for a package of vegetables and throwing 100 freeze-dried box elder bugs into a pot of beef stew.
- Memories of me chasing my husbnd with the butterfly net because he didn't know one bug from another. Him chasing me with the net, saying that anyone who'd put fireflies in beef stew ought to be committed.

Since then the assessed valuation of fireflies and real estate has doubled. So don't just sit there — go get a butterfly net.

Trade show organizer deals for disabled market

by KURT BAER

Jack Powell is a burly, 29-year-old former Army captain who surveys the world from a wheelchair.

He is a motivated man who eight months ago began to put together the thousand-and-one pieces that go into producing a major trade show.

This weekend, the first International Disabled Expo is showing the largest collection of products and services for the disabled ever assembled in the United States.

"As a service officer for the Paralyzed Veterans of America, I learned there was a tremendous amount of technology available that a lot of handicapped persons know nothing about," Powell said Friday.

"Things are being developed in the laboratory very quickly that never make it into the market place Manufacturers aren't aware of the disabled market and they see no reason to invest money developing products they think they'll never be able to sell."

POWELL HAS BROUGHT the disabled public and the product manufacturers together at the Expo, which runs through Sunday at the O'Hare Exposition Center, Rosemont.

"There is a heck of a lot of money spent every year on rehabilitation, products and services for the 20 million disabled people in this country," Powell said. "We can bring people here, show them prototype services, and if they display a strong interest, there is a very good chance the products will be marketed."

Most of the products exhibited are intended to make life easier for the disabled or handicapped persons, to make them more independent and self-reliant.

There is a voice-activated dictating machine made by Sony operated by a magnetic wand that a quadriplegic can hold between his teeth. It sells for $950.

AN ELECTRIC-POWERED scooter by Amigo of Bridgeport, Mich., will run 120 miles or 15 hours on its rechargeable battery. It costs $900.

There is a bionic arm and hand manufactured by Fidelity Electronics of Chicago; a talking calculator for the blind and a half-track wheelchair that can go up and down stairs and over other barriers.

"The disabled have decided they are going to enter society, one way or another," Powell said. "I believe the next 10 or 15 years will be for the disabled what the 1950s and 60s were for the racial and ethnic minorities."

"An increasing number of disabled are not willing to be put on the back shelf. They are not ready to accept paternalism, or custodialism. The disabled want the opportunity to be full participants in society," he said.

SYMBOL OF THE DRIVE to greater self-reliance among the handicapped are badges worn by public visitors that proclaim, "I can do it."

Powell, who often works 15 or 16 hours a day, is the Expo's general manager. He was injured in 1971 during a third tour of duty in Vietnam when a Viet Cong bomb blew up his jeep.

Today he is an avid student of the handicapped. In 1946, he said, the life expectancy of paraplegics was measured in months.

"Then came the wonder drugs and other medical advances and we learned how to keep them alive. Now that we're keeping them alive, what are we going to do with them?"

The United States does very well in the manufacture of mass-produced devices to aid the disabled. In automotive technology for the handicapped, the United States is the best in the world, he said.

But in small, custom-designed equipment, the United States frequently lags behind European countries.

"Many Third World nations are in an appalling state with respect to caring for the disabled. I hope something can be done to show other parts of the world what is available."

General admission to the Expo is $4. Parking at the O'Hare Trade and Exposition Center is $2. Show hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

POWELL HAS BROUGHT the disabled public and the product manufacturers together at the Expo, which runs through Sunday at the O'Hare Exposition Center, Rosemont.

"There is a heck of a lot of money spent every year on rehabilitation, products and services for the 20 million disabled people in this country," Powell said. "We can bring people here, show them prototype services, and if they display a strong interest, there is a very good chance the products will be marketed."

Most of the products exhibited are intended to make life easier for the disabled or handicapped persons, to make them more independent and self-reliant.

There is a voice-activated dictating machine made by Sony operated by a magnetic wand that a quadriplegic can hold between his teeth. It sells for $950.

AN ELECTRIC-POWERED scooter by Amigo of Bridgeport, Mich., will run 120 miles or 15 hours on its rechargeable battery. It costs $900.

There is a bionic arm and hand manufactured by Fidelity Electronics of Chicago; a talking calculator for the blind and a half-track wheelchair that can go up and down stairs and over other barriers.

"The disabled have decided they are going to enter society, one way or another," Powell said. "I believe the next 10 or 15 years will be for the disabled what the 1950s and 60s were for the racial and ethnic minorities."

"An increasing number of disabled are not willing to be put on the back shelf. They are not ready to accept paternalism, or custodialism. The disabled want the opportunity to be full participants in society." he said.

SYMBOL OF THE DRIVE to greater self-reliance among the handicapped are badges worn by public visitors that proclaim, "I can do it."

Powell, who often works 15 or 16 hours a day, is the Expo's general manager. He was injured in 1971 during a third tour of duty in Vietnam when a Viet Cong bomb blew up his jeep.

Today he is an avid student of the handicapped. In 1946, he said, the life expectancy of paraplegics was measured in months.

"Then came the wonder drugs and other medical advances and we learned how to keep them alive. Now that we're keeping them alive, what are we going to do with them?"

The United States does very well in the manufacture of mass-produced devices to aid the disabled. In automotive technology for the handicapped, the United States is the best in the world, he said.

But in small, custom-designed equipment, the United States frequently lags behind European countries.

"Many Third World nations are in an appalling state with respect to caring for the disabled. I hope something can be done to show other parts of the world what is available."

General admission to the Expo is $4. Parking at the O'Hare Trade and Exposition Center is $2. Show hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

TWO-FISTED bunter Mike Krukow lays down a sacrifice that advanced a Cub runner into scoring position Friday at Wrigley Field. Krukow, a rookie righthander, pitched three-hit baseball for seven innings to earn his eighth win, a 6-2 victory over Dodgers. (Photo by Anne Cusack)

Billy Buck's bat bonanza boosts Cubs

by ART MUGALIAN

Bill Buckner, the best one-legged player in Cub history, made the ultimate sacrifice Friday. He pounded ex-teammate Tommy John and the Los Angeles Dodgers into submission at Wrigley Field, while at the same time, for all he knew, his Southern California home was slipping off the side of a mountain.

"I'm worried about all that rain they're getting," said Billy Buck. "My house is right in the middle of those floods, but I think it's alright."

THE 27-YEAR-OLD first baseman freed his mind of worry and the constant pain in his ankle to rap out four base hits during the Cub's 6-2 victory over the Western Division-leading Dodgers. Two of his four line drives were out of the ball park, his No. 8 and 9 home runs of the season. Buckner accounted for five runs batted in.

Buckner, who has developed a classy home-run limp, not only beat his old mates with the bat. He turned on them in the clubhouse, too, giving winning pitcher Mike Krukow the very best information concerning weaknesses in the LA lineup.

"Buckner and me talked before the game and we went over the Dodger hitters," said Krukow, who won his first game since June 26 with relief help from Dave Giusti. "That was the scouting report we used."

"In the very first inning, Buckner slammed a three-run homer onto the right-field catwalk following singles by Ivan DeJesus and Jose Cardenal. It was the beginning of a long, gruesome five-inning stint for John, 14-5, who gave up 13 hits before he was replaced by Elias Sosa.

"TOMMY JOHN is a tough pitcher and I didn't do too well against him the first time I faced him," said Buckner, who added a pair of singles off the lefthander. "He's had a super year. But even though we had all those hits, they were still in the game."

The Dodgers managed just one hit until the seventh off Krukow, now 8-10. Tom Lasorda's team had scored in the second on a walk, an error by Krukow on a pickoff attempt, and a broken-bat double by Dusty Baker.

But in the seventh, ex-Cub Rick Monday homered and Baker followed with a legitimate double. Krukow got out of the inning without further damage, but Cub manager Herman Franks decided to let Giusti protect the lead.

GIUSTI WALKED A batter in his two innings and was hit pretty hard, but he ended the game with a flashy catch of a line drivt back to the mound that he converted into a double play.

Giusti, at 37, the veteran of the Cub staff, praised 25-year-old Krukow, who had been having a rough time lately. "His breaking ball is super," said Giusti.

Krukow, in turn, gave much of the credit for his performance to Buckner's intelligence report and catcher George Mitterwald's superb handling.

"GEORGE CAUGHT sensational game, as usual," Krukow pointed out. "I can't think of a time I shook him off."

John, who had won eight in a row until Friday, is now 1-2 against the Cubs in 1977. His tantalizing array of curveballs presented no problem for the Cubs, especially the lefty-swinging Buckner.

"Lefties might bother some lefthanders but not Buckner," said Franks. "Lefties don't bother him. His adrenalin is pumped up all the time. He really crunched a couple, didn't he?'

BUCKNER'S second-inning single drove in Mitterwald, who had singled and advanced on Krukow's sacrifice. He wasted a single in the fourth and homered off Sosa in the sixth. In the eighth, Buckner received a standing ovation from 30,891 Ladies Day fans before and after he grounded out to short — legging it out all the way.

"In LA I batted second and I was just a small fish in a big sea," Buckner said. "but here I bat third and I'm expected to do more.

"I'm not upset about the trade," Buckner said of the deal that sent Monday to the Dodgers before the season. "I'm enjoying it too much in Chicago.

"But I really never thought I'd ever be traded," he added. "I thought I'd always be a Dodger."

Sox move back into first place

by BOB GALLAS

MILWAUKEE — Former White Sox pitching coach Ray Berres, now living in retirement near here, went back to work just long enough Friday to pump new life back into Wilbur Wood's knuckleball and help the Sox regain first place with a 3-1 win over the Brewers.

Berres, who spent 14 seasons as the Sox pitching mentor before stepping down after the 1970 season, came out to see his former team play Friday night and brought along a newspaper clipping, a picture showing Wood pitching against Texas a few weeks ago. That clip helped Wood snap a three-game personal losing streak.

Coupled with Texas and Minnesota losses, the win lifted the Sox into first by the merest of margins, .002 of a percentage point.

"THAT PICTURE RAY brought showed my hand wasn't on top of the ball. It was very clear," said Wood, who was a relief pitcher with the Sox for one year under Berres. "That was the same thing Stan (Williams, Sox pitching coach) was telling me the other day while I was throwing on the sidelines in New York. They both meant the same thing, they just said it differently."

Wood was near flawless, going the distance while yielding only five hits, striking out five and walking only one. At one point he retired seven straight Brewers, and he finished the game by mowing down the last 13 to face him.

Equally impressive was Milwaukee starter Jim Slaton, who likewise went nine, giving up only six hits, though it only took two to sink him.

Richie Zisk led off the Sox second inning with his 26th home run of the season and Oscar Gamble followed Zisk by belting his 25th out of the ballpark in right field. That proved to be all the offense necessary but the Sox added an insurance run in the fifth.

THE DOUBLE homer trick was the sixth straight game the South Siders have knocked out two home runs as their team homer total, already a club record, ran to 156.

The Brewers' only run came in the fifth as Steve Brye led off with a single and stole second. Jim Wohlford ruined Woodie's shootout with a two-out single up the middle.

That rally could have produced more damage save for a superb running catch by Zisk in right, which delighted many in the crowd of 28,402, at least half of which were pro Sox. With two out and runners at first and second, Robin Yount ripped a Wood pitch deep to right center, but Zisk, not known for his speed, made a running catch after a long haul to the warning track.

"I knew right away the ball was staying in the park," said the Polish Prince, refreshed after back-to-back open dates in the schedule "It was just a matter of locating where the wall was and getting to the ball."

ZISK TOOK SOME kidding from his teammates after the game on his sacrifice bunt in the eighth inning. It marked the first time he'd sacrificed a runner along with a bunt this season.

Gamble's home run helped him keep his league in home runs per time at bat. Gamble is averaging a round tripper every 11.86 times at the plate, a pace on par with Babe Ruth, for one season at any rate.

Manager Bob Lemon was also in better spirits as his club, which had lost 13 of its last 17 going in to action Friday, regained the division lead.

"I dunno if the rest helped, we only scored three runs instead of our usual 10," said Lemon with a smile. When told the win boosted the Sox back into first, Lemon said, "I only wish the season ended today."

SOX SHORTS: White Sox President Bill Veeck commemorated the anniversary of one of his most famous stunts Friday . . . Exactly 26 years ago, on Aug. 19, 1951, Veeck sent up pinch hitter Eddie Gaedel, a midget, in the second game of a St. Louis Browns doubleheader . . . pitcher Steve Renko, who joined the Sox Friday after coming over from the Cubs in a trade for Larry Anderson, will start one of the two games here Sunday . . . Steve Stone (13-7) will start for the Sox this afternoon against the Brewers' Jerry Augustine (10-14).

Bruins off to fast tourney start

SATELLITE BEACH, Fla. — The defending champion Buffalo Grove Bruins moved off to a fast start here in the National 12-inch softball tournament.

Buffalo Grove, sponsored by World of Recreation of Addison, defeated Columbus, Ohio 9-2 late Thursday and Miami, Fla. 5-4, Friday morning.

In the Columbus game, Phil Czosnyka, Tim Prokof, Scott Campbell, and Andy Farrissey led the Bruin hitting attack. Czosnyka was two-for-four with a double and two runs scored. Prokof two-for-three, Campbell two-for-three, and Farrissey two-for-four.

BUFFALO GROVE won the game in the first inning when the Bruins scored four runs. Columbus, the Ohio state champs, could produce only one run each in the first and second innings. The Bruins added two third-inning runs and three fifth-inning tallies. Mike Ledna was the winning Buffalo Grove pitcher.

Final totals showed Buffalo Grove with nine runs, 11 hits and one error. Columbus had two runs, 10 hits, and one error.

It was a come-from-behind effort that beat Miami, the Florida state champions. Trailing 4-2 in the bottom of the seventh, the Bruins staged a game-winning, three-run rally.

Pinch hitter Don Pufano started the rally with a single. The bases then became loaded when Prokof reached on a throwing error and Campbell walked.

AL CYMBAL'S sacrifice fly scored Pufano, making the count 4-3. On the play, all runners were able to advance one base.

Ledna was then walked intentionally to get to Bob Ramo. However, that strategy failed as Ramo came through with another sacrifice fly scoring Prokof with the tying run.

Czosnyka became the hero when he slapped a single in the hole between third and short, scoring Campbell and the winning run.

Ledna led the Buffalo Grove effort, going three-for-three with a walk.

Final totals had Buffalo Grove with five runs, 10 hits, and two errors while Miami produced four runs on eight hits and two errors.

Buffalo Grove scored single runs respectively in the first and second. Miami notched two runs each in the first and second.

Arlington to play West Allis

When Arlington Heights continues its quest for a national American Legion championship, the players will be competing against a team from West Allis, Wis.

It will be the opening contest for Arlington in the Great Lakes Regional tournament, which starts Wednesday in Bellwood. Game time is scheduled for 4.30 p.m.

The last time Arlington played on the Bellwood field they came from behind twice to defeat Logan Square for the Cook County title. That allowed the team to advance to the state tourney in Galesburg, where it won for the second straight year over Granite City.

West Allis lost its opening game in the Wisconsin state tourney, but then came out of the loser's bracket to capture the title.

Bears, Houston to battle in Astrodome

In what could be called the second of two grudge matches they have encountered in as many weeks, the Bears travel to the Houston Astrodome tonight looking for their third victory in four starts.

Last week, the Houston Oilers were defeated by the Baltimore Colts 14-7 in the Astrodome.

Two years ago, when Houston and Chicago met, the Oilers' 35 defense confused and embarrassed the then inexperienced Bears 24-13. Seventeen rookies were on that first Jack Pardee squad.

However, a 20-13 win at Oakland last weekend, only the ninth preseason defeat for the Raiders in nine years, indicates that the Bears have done some growing up.

"WE'RE STARTING to do things we need to do if we're going to amount to anything in this league," Pardee said.

"The 35 defense used to turn out lineman in circles. Now, at least against the Raiders, we're staying at home, picking up stunts well, and team blocking better than ever. There's still a lot of work to do . . . but the progress is there."

Considerable progress was noted in right linebacker Waymond Bryant's play in Oakland. The four-year veteran from Tennessee State leads the Bears preseason defense with 24 tackles, 19 of them unassisted. In addition, he has recovered one of the four Bear fumble recoveries and forced another.

"BRYANT PLAYED the best game (Oakland) he's ever played at outside linebacker," Pardee said. "His drops on pass coverage were good and he did an equally good job fighting off blocks."

Against Oakland, the Bears managed six quarterback sacks for 40 yards and two pass interceptions, while limiting the Super Bowl Champions to one touchdown and a pair of field goals.

"The defensive improvement is primarily due to experience," Pardee explained. "We're doing things defensively well that we were struggling with a year ago."

Chicago's defensive performance at Oakland was even more surprising considering the Bears played without the services of five 1976 starters for all but a few plays. Defensive tackle Wally Chambers, linebacker Doug Buffone and defensive end Mike Hartenstine saw no action while cornerback Virgil Livers and middle linebacker Don Rives spent all but a few plays on the sidelines.

PARDEE SAID the injured Livers could see action against the Oilers after recovering from a hyperextended knee suffered the first day of training camp.

However, the injury was not what kept Livers from one day of practice this week as the three-year veteran left camp to return to his home in Bowling Green, Ky., which was burglarized.

Rookie Mike Spivey will start at cornerback if Livers is forced to remain on the sidelines. And Hartenstine will return to his familiar defensive left end position.

"To be good, a defense needs playing time together," Pardee remakred. "But because of the way Ron Rydalch, Tom Hicks, Jerry Meyers and Spivey have played, it's easy to see we're going to have more depth than we've had in the past."

CHAMBERS AND Lionel Antoine, both nagged by knee injuries, have again been forced from the starting lineups. No date has been set for their return.

Ex-Cleveland Brown and hero of last week's victory at Oakland, Mike Phipps, will draw the opening quarterback assignment in the Astrodome. The Bears' upset of the Raiders came on the strength of a Phipps to Randall Burks 60-yard bomb with 1:38 to play. Third-year man Bob Avellini and Phipps have alternated starts this preseason.

"Neither Mike nor Bob are a Ken Stabler," Pardee said, after watching the Snake connect on 8 of 9 passes for 81 yards in just two series of play against the Bears.

"However, we feel comfortable with either of them at quarterback. They're both winners we can win with. Oakland has Stabler but we have two good ones."

This past week's practice at the Bears camp saw considerable time spent on the passing attack, which they'll use in Houston.

"For the offense to go, we need to get more open and catch the ball better," Pardee said.

"WE WERE CLOSE to getting more than just one bomb Saturday night against the Raiders but we never connected. It's there though. Our biggest offensive problem is in the intermediate passing game."

All-pro running back Walter Payton is a question mark for tonight's game with the Oilers. He missed two days of practice because of an ankle injury suffered in last week's victory.

If Payton is unable to start in Houston, Roland Harper and rookie Robin Earl may see considerable action in the Bears backfield.

The game will be telecast live starting at 8 p.m. on Channel 2. Pregame radio show on WBBM (780) will begin at 7 p.m.

Sox move back into first place

ZISK TOOK SOME kidding from his teammates after the game on his sacrifice bunt in the eighth inning. It marked the first time he'd sacrificed a runner along with a bunt this season.

Gamble's home run helped him keep his league in home runs per time at bat. Gamble is averaging a round tripper every 11.86 times at the plate, a pace on par with Babe Ruth, for one season at any rate.

Manager Bob Lemon was also in better spirits as his club, which had lost 13 of its last 17 going in to action Friday, regained the division lead.

"I dunno if the rest helped, we only scored three runs instead of our usual 10," said Lemon with a smile. When told the win boosted the Sox back into first, Lemon said, "I only wish the season ended today."

SOX SHORTS: White Sox President Bill Veeck commemorated the anniversary of one of his most famous stunts Friday . . . Exactly 26 years ago, on Aug. 19, 1951, Veeck sent up pinch hitter Eddie Gaedel, a midget, in the second game of a St. Louis Browns doubleheader . . . pitcher Steve Renko, who joined the Sox Friday after coming over from the Cubs in a trade for Larry Anderson, will start one of the two games here Sunday . . . Steve Stone (13-7) will start for the Sox this afternoon against the Brewers' Jerry Augustine (10-14).

Bruins off to fast tourney start

SATELLITE BEACH, Fla. — The defending champion Buffalo Grove Bruins moved off to a fast start here in the National 12-inch softball tournament.

Buffalo Grove, sponsored by World of Recreation of Addison, defeated Columbus, Ohio 9-2 late Thursday and Miami, Fla. 5-4, Friday morning.

In the Columbus game, Phil Czosnyka, Tim Prokof, Scott Campbell, and Andy Farrissey led the Bruin hitting attack. Czosnyka was two-for-four with a double and two runs scored, Prokof two-for-three, Campbell two-for-three, and Farrissey two-for-four.

BUFFALO GROVE won the game in the first inning when the Bruins scored four runs. Columbus, the Ohio state champs, could produce only one run each in the first and second innings. The Bruins added two third-inning runs and three fifth-inning tallies. Mike Ledna was the winning Buffalo Grove pitcher.

Final totals showed Buffalo Grove with nine runs, 11 hits and one error. Columbus had two runs, 10 hits, and one error.

It was a come-from-behind effort that beat Miami, the Florida state champions. Trailing 4-2 in the bottom of the seventh, the Bruins staged a game-winning, three-run rally.

Pinch hitter Don Pufano started the rally with a single. The bases then became loaded when Prokof reached on a throwing error and Campbell walked.

AL CYMBAL'S sacrifice fly scored Pufano, making the count 4-3. On the play, all runners were able to advance one base.

Ledna was then walked intentionally to get to Bob Ramo. However, that strategy failed as Ramo came through with another sacrifice fly scoring Prokof with the tying run.

Czosnyka became the hero when he slapped a single in the hole between third and short, scoring Campbell and the winning run.

Ledna led the Buffalo Grove effort, going three-for-three with a walk.

Final totals had Buffalo Grove with five runs, 10 hits, and two errors while Miami produced four runs on eight hits and two errors.

Buffalo Grove scored single runs respectively in the first and second. Miami notched two runs each in the first and second.

Arlington to play West Allis

When Arlington Heights continues its quest for a national American Legion championship, the players will be competing against a team from West Allis, Wis.

It will be the opening contest for Arlington in the Great Lakes Regional tournament, which starts Wednesday in Bellwood. Game time is scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

The last time Arlington played on the Bellwood field they came from behind twice to defeat Logan Square for the Cook County title. That allowed the team to advance to the state tourney in Galesburg, where it won for the second straight year over Granite City.

West Allis lost its opening game in the Wisconsin state tourney, but then came out of the loser's bracket to capture the title.

Bears, Houston to battle in Astrodome

In what could be called the second of two grudge matches they have encountered in as many weeks, the Bears travel to the Houston Astrodome tonight looking for their third victory in four starts.

Last week, the Houston Oilers were defeated by the Baltimore Colts 14-7 in the Astrodome.

Two years ago, when Houston and Chicago met, the Oilers' 35 defense confused and embarrassed the then inexperienced Bears 24-13. Seventeen rookies were on that first Jack Pardee squad.

However, a 20-13 win at Oakland last weekend, only the ninth preseason defeat for the Raiders in nine years, indicates that the Bears have done some growing up.

"WE'RE STARTING to do things we need to do if we're going to amount to anything in this league," Pardee said.

"The 35 defense used to turn out lineman in circles. Now, at least against the Raiders, we're staying at home, picking up stunts well, and team blocking better than ever. There's still a lot of work to do . . . but the progress is there."

Considerable progress was noted in right linebacker Waymond Bryant's play in Oakland. The four-year veteran from Tennessee State leads the Bears preseason defense with 24 tackles, 19 of them unassisted. In addition, he has recovered one of the four Bear fumble recoveries and forced another.

"BRYANT PLAYED the best game (Oakland) he's ever played at outside linebacker," Pardee said. "His drops on pass coverage were good and he did an equally good job fighting off blocks."

Against Oakland, the Bears managed six quarterback sacks for 40 yards and two pass interceptions, while limiting the Super Bowl Champions to one touchdown and a pair of field goals.

"The defensive improvement is primarily due to experience," Pardee explained. "We're doing things defensively well that we were struggling with a year ago."

Chicago's defensive performance at Oakland was even more surprising considering the Bears played without the services of five 1976 starters for all but a few plays. Defensive tackle Wally Chambers, linebacker Doug Buffone and defensive end Mike Hartenstine saw no action while cornerback Virgil Livers and middle linebacker Don Rives spent all but a few plays on the sidelines.

PARDEE SAID the injured Livers could see action against the Oilers after recovering from a hyperextended knee suffered the first day of training camp.

However, the injury was not what kept Livers from one day of practice this week as the three-year veteran left camp to return to his home in Bowling Green, Ky., which was burglarized.

Rookie Mike Spivey will start at cornerback if Livers is forced to remain on the sidelines. And Hartenstine will return to his familiar defensive left end position.

"To be good, a defense needs playing time together," Pardee remakred. "But because of the way Ron Rydalch, Tom Hicks, Jerry Meyers and Spivey have played, it's easy to see we're going to have more depth than we've had in the past."

CHAMBERS AND Lionel Antoine, both nagged by knee injuries, have again been forced from the starting lineups. No date has been set for their return.

Ex-Cleveland Brown and hero of last week's victory at Oakland, Mike Phipps, will draw the opening quarterback assignment in the Astrodome. The Bears' upset of the Raiders came on the strength of a Phipps to Randall Burks 60-yard bomb with 1:38 to play. Third-year man Bob Avellini and Phipps have alternated starts this preseason.

"Neither Mike nor Bob are a Ken Stabler," Pardee said, after watching the Snake connect on 8 of 9 passes for 81 yards in just two series of play against the Bears.

"However, we feel comfortable with either of them at quarterback. They're both winners we can win with. Oakland has Stabler but we have two good ones."

This past week's practice at the Bears camp saw considerable time spent on the passing attack, which they'll use in Houston.

"For the offense to go, we need to get more open and catch the ball better," Pardee said.

"WE WERE CLOSE to getting more than just one bomb Saturday night against the Raiders but we never connected. It's there though. Our biggest offensive problem is in the intermediate passing game."

All-pro running back Walter Payton is a question mark for tonight's game with the Oilers. He missed two days of practice because of an ankle injury suffered in last week's victory.

If Payton is unable to start in Houston, Roland Harper and rookie Robin Earl may see considerable action in the Bears backfield.

The game will be telecast live starting at 8 p.m. on Channel 2. Pregame radio show on WBBM (780) will begin at 7 p.m.

Classic field may not include two favorites

If you were expecting to see Honest Pleasure and Majestic Light in the 46th running of the Arlington Classic, you're probably going to be very disappointed.

The late word Friday was that neither horse would run in the $150,000 event that will be contested over 1¼ miles on the main dirt course at Arlington Park.

Majestic Light reportedly will run at Monmouth Park. The Monmouth publicity staff has confirmed that Sandy Hawley, jockey for Majestic Light, made plane reservations to fly out of Buffalo at 7:00 last night and reserved a room at the Holiday Inn.

Monmouth officials had trouble coming up with a firm commitment from LeRoy Jolley. The unpredictable trainer told them that Honest Pleasure is going to run in the Haskell but the horse was not there Friday.

The Classic participants today will be saddled in front of the grandstand on the main turf course.

Johnny Sellers and Eddie Arcaro will be officially inducted into the Arlington Park Hall of Fame in ceremonies in the winner's circle at 1:15 p.m.

A three-foot high, 500-pound 50th anniversary cake will be on display in the winner's circle during the induction ceremonies. The cake, an exact replica of Arlington Park, will then be moved to the third floor Hall of Fame Museum where it will be cut and made available to the public at no charge.

Special old-time cars will be on display in the paddock area. A Ford, Packard and Chevrolet touring car — all from Arlington's opening year 1927 — will grace the grounds for "Classic Day."

Gates open at 11 a.m. today and Dixieland Band music will be played before the races.

Voice of Arlington Park

Georgeff—master of ceremonies

by JEFF TRIMBLE

Arlington Park 50th anniversary

He strides into the cramped booth and glances down six stories to the empty track.

Smiling broadly, he says hello and complains about the summer's stifling heat.

He clips on his microphone and fills the air with the familiar phrase: "Good afternoon, and welcome to another exciting afternoon of racing at Arlington Park."

PHIL GEORGEFF, the voice of Arlington Park, has begun another day's work.

In 19 years as a race caller, Georgeff has brought good and bad news to bettors and fans in 67,000 races. Until this year, when he cut back on harness race announcing, Georgeff called virtually every horse race in the Chicago area.

In those years, he has called such memorable races as the 1973 Secretariot visit to the park and the 1968 world record mile by Dr. Fager.

As he prepared for the day's races, Georgeff talked about his career.

HIS LOVE FOR racing goes back to his boyhood days in Chicago, when he worked as a groom and hoped to be a jockey.

"But by the time I was 17, I weighed 132 pounds," he said. That ended the dream.

When he got a job at Arlington Park while a student at Northwestern's Medill School of Journalism, he was again around horses.

Veteran announcer Harry Henson left Arlington in 1956, and Georgeff saw his chance to mix his broadcasting studies with his love for racing. He auditioned for the job along with six veteran announcers. Georgeff had never called a race, but he got the job.

"IT WAS BECAUSE of my voice," he said. "They were trying to stay away from baritones. I'm no boy soprano, but my voice is not very deep."

Georgeff has instantaneous memory and rarely makes mistakes while calling races. But he scoffs at stories that he has never made an error in a race.

"I made one already this year, a few weeks ago," he said. But he quickly added the error had not been among the front runners, and that he has only made a dozen errors in 67,000 races.

Georgeff also prides himself on missing only one day of racing because of illness in 19 years.

HE DOES NOT include missing the 1969 season in his absence record. He was replaced after a dispute with track owner Marje Everett during that summer.

But after Mrs. Everett sold her interest in the track that year, the new management immediately rehired Georgeff.

As the horses moved onto the track for the first race, Georgeff began his ritual of memorization.

He recited the names and called imaginary portions of races to impress each animal into his memory.

"SUNNY GAY on the outside . . . Sunny Gay, Sunny Gay . . . Mike's Dream second with Grand Date and Sunny Gay," he chanted softly.

Georgeff says he can learn the horses in a field quickly, but he also forgets them as soon as the race ends. This ability to "erase" leaves his mind clear to concentrate on the next race.

The most difficult races to call are in adverse weather, Georgeff says. Fog and driving rain obscure markings he uses for identification. So instead of being able to watch the jockey's silks or the color of the horses' blinders, he has to resort to bandages on the animal or even an individual jockey's riding style.

By now the horses were in the gate for the first race, and Georgeff announced "Aaaaand — they're off!"

WHAT FOLLOWED epitomized the Georgeff style. He ran through positions in the first turn, flawlessly identifying even the distant horses.

When a jockey made a move, Georgeff told the fans with a simple inflection in his voice. And a horse was not just "second by a length," it was "second with a flourish."

Georgeff says his job is to entertain, as well as to inform. "I have to keep people apprised of the progress of the race, but I have to entertain them too," he said.

He is critical of many other prominent announcers, calling them "dull" and chastising them for making many mistakes. But because of contract difficulties with other tracks and networks, Georgeff has never been able to achieve his goal — to try his hand at calling Triple Crown races.

Although Georgeff said his job is demanding and fans are unforgiving about errors, he has no plans to quit in the forseeable future.

One announcement Georgeff makes soon after the races have ended could be his motto: "Have fun, thank you, and good racing!"

Phil Georgeff brings them to the wire.

Classic field may not include two favorites

If you were expecting to see Honest Pleasure and Majestic Light in the 46th running of the Arlington Classic, you're probably going to be very disappointed.

The late word Friday was that neither horse would run in the $150,000 event that will be contested over 1¼ miles on the main dirt course at Arlington Park.

Majestic Light reportedly will run at Monmouth Park. The Monmouth publicity staff has confirmed that Sandy Hawley, jockey for Majestic Light, made plane reservations to fly out of Buffalo at 7:00 last night and reserved a room at the Holiday Inn.

Monmouth officials had trouble coming up with a firm commitment from LeRoy Jolley. The unpredictable trainer told them that Honest Pleasure is going to run in the Haskell but the horse was not there Friday.

The Classic participants today will be saddled in front of the grandstand on the main turf course.

Johnny Sellers and Eddie Arcaro will be officially inducted into the Arlington Park Hall of Fame in ceremonies in the winner's circle at 1:15 p.m.

A three-foot high, 500-pound 50th anniversary cake will be on display in the winner's circle during the induction ceremonies. The cake, an exact replica of Arlington Park, will then be moved to the third floor Hall of Fame Museum where it will be cut and made available to the public at no charge.

Special old-time cars will be on display in the paddock area. A Ford, Packard and Chevrolet touring car — all from Arlington's opening year 1927 — will grace the grounds for "Classic Day."

Gates open at 11 a.m. today and Dixieland Band music will be played before the races.

Voice of Arlington Park

Georgeff—master of ceremonies

by JEFF TRIMBLE

Arlington Park 50th anniversary

He strides into the cramped booth and glances down six stories to the empty track.

Smiling broadly, he says hello and complains about the summer's stifling heat.

He clips on his microphone and fills the air with the familiar phrase: "Good afternoon, and welcome to another exciting afternoon of racing at Arlington Park."

PHIL GEORGEFF, the voice of Arlington Park, has begun another day's work.

In 19 years as a race caller, Georgeff has brought good and bad news to bettors and fans in 67,000 races. Until this year, when he cut back on harness race announcing, Georgeff called virtually every horse race in the Chicago area.

In those years, he has called such memorable races as the 1973 Secretariot visit to the park and the 1968 world record mile by Dr. Fager.

As he prepared for the day's races, Georgeff talked about his career.

HIS LOVE FOR racing goes back to his boyhood days in Chicago, when he worked as a groom and hoped to be a jockey.

"But by the time I was 17, I weighed 132 pounds," he said. That ended the dream.

When he got a job at Arlington Park while a student at Northwestern's Medill School of Journalism, he was again around horses.

Veteran announcer Harry Henson left Arlington in 1958, and Georgeff saw his chance to mix his broadcasting studies with his love for racing. He auditioned for the job along with six veteran announcers. Georgeff had never called a race, but he got the job.

"IT WAS BECAUSE of my voice," he said. "They were trying to stay away from baritones. I'm no boy soprano, but my voice is not very deep."

Georgeff has instantaneous memory and rarely makes mistakes while calling races. But he scoffs at stories that he has never made an error in a race.

"I made one already this year, a few weeks ago," he said. But he quickly added the error had not been among the front runners, and that he has only made a dozen errors in 67,000 races.

Georgeff also prides himself on missing only one day of racing because of illness in 19 years.

HE DOES NOT include missing the 1969 season in his absence record. He was replaced after a dispute with track owner Marje Everett during that summer.

But after Mrs. Everett sold her interest in the track that year, the new management immediately rehired Georgeff.

As the horses moved onto the track for the first race, Georgeff began his ritual of memorization.

He recited the names and called imaginary portions of races to impress each animal into his memory.

"SUNNY GAY on the outside . . . Sunny Gay, Sunny Gay . . . Mike's Dream second with Grand Date and Sunny Gay," he chanted softly.

Georgeff says he can learn the horses in a field quickly, but he also forgets them as soon as the race ends. This ability to "erase" leaves his mind clear to concentrate on the next race.

The most difficult races to call are in adverse weather, Georgeff says. Fog and driving rain obscure markings he uses for identification. So instead of being able to watch the jockey's silks or the color of the horses' blinders, he has to resort to bandages on the animal or even an individual jockey's riding style.

By now the horses were in the gate for the first race, and Georgeff announced "Aaaaand — they're off!"

WHAT FOLLOWED epitomized the Georgeff style. He ran through positions in the first turn, flawlessly identifying even the distant horses.

When a jockey made a move, Georgeff told the fans with a simple inflection in his voice. And a horse was not just "second by a length," it was "second with a flourish."

Georgeff says his job is to entertain, as well as to inform. "I have to keep people apprised of the progress of the race, but I have to entertain them too," he said.

He is critical of many other prominent announcers, calling them "dull" and chastising them for making many mistakes. But because of contract difficulties with other tracks and networks, Georgeff has never been able to achieve his goal — to try his hand at calling Triple Crown races.

Although Georgeff said his job is demanding and fans are unforgiving about errors, he has no plans to quit in the forseeable future.

One announcement Georgeff makes soon after the races have ended could be his motto: "Have fun, thank you, and good racing!"

Phil Georgeff brings them to the wire.

FROM HERALD WIRE SERVICES

MIKE TORREZ cooled off Texas on a four-hitter Friday night and Reggie Jackson drove in three runs to help the New York Yankees rout the Rangers 8-1, for their sixth straight victory.

It was the sixth consecutive complete game triumph for Torrez, who carried a one-hitter into the eighth and improved his record to 14-10. The loss snapped the Rangers' four game winning streak.

In other American League games Baltimore edged Minnesota, 3-2; and Kansas City beat Boston, 9-3.

In the National League, Philadelphia clobbered Houston, 9-5; St. Louis won easily over San Diego, 12-4; Pittsburgh beat San Francisco, 6-1; Cincinnati took two from New York, 4-1 and 4-3; and Montreal split with the Braves, 3-5 and 7-2.

Major league baseball

IN BLOOMINGTON, MINN., Andres Mora banged a two-run homer with two out in the sixth inning to give the Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins behind the six-hit pitching of Mike Flanagan.

Mora hit his 10th homer deep into the left field seats off starter and loser Dave Goltz, 15-7, and scored behind Lee May, who had singled.

IN KANSAS CITY Amos Otis hit a three-run homer, John Mayberry added a two-run blast and George Brett belted a solo shot to power the Kansas City Royals to a 9-3 victory over the AL East Division Leading Boston Red Sox.

Brett's 15th homer came in the first inning and Otis, who entered the game in a 2-for-40 slump, broke the game open with his 14th homer in the sixth to make it 5-1, Mayberry's 19th homer capped a four-run seventh inning.

IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE, home runs by Jay Johnstone, Richie Hebner, Bob Boone and winning pitcher Larry Christenson powered the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

Johnstone triggered a four run sixth inning against loser Joe Niekro with his ninth homer and Christenson capped the rally with a three-run blast following a walk to Boone and a single by Ted Sizemore.

IN ST. LOUIS Mike Tyson knocked in six runs with a single, double and homer to give rookie pitcher John Urrea and the St. Louis Cardinals a 12-4 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The Cardinals battered five pitchers for 16 hits and put together five-run rallies in the first and fifth innings.

Urrea, now 5-3 allowed 11 hits, struck out three and walked two over seven innings. Urrea now has had six major league starts with St. Louis and won all of them.

IN PITTSBURGH John Candelaria tossed a five-hitter and Bill Robinson slammed a two-run homer and stole home. Leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Candelaria struck out five to gain his 13th victory against four losses as the Pirates won the 21st of their last 22 home games dating back to July 6. The Pirates are 46-15 at home this season and the crowd of 16,831 pushed them over the one million mark in attendance for the season.

IN NEW YORK, George Foster hit his 41st homer and drove in three runs to back the eight-hit pitching of Paul Moskau and Pedro Borbon in the second game to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets which completed a sweep of their doubleheader.

Foster, who leads the majors in runs batted in with 116 as well as home runs, hit a solo blast in the opener to back rookie Doug Capilla's six-hit pitching and face the Reds to a 4-1 triumph. Foster is the first player since 1973 to reach the 40-homer plateau in a season.

IN MONTREAL Tony Perez hit a three-run single in a four-run fifth inning of the second game enabling the Montreal Expos to defeat Atlanta 7-2 after the Braves won the opener, 5-3, behind the six-hit pitching of Phil Niekro.

Weiskopf shares Westchester lead

HARRISON, N.Y. — Tom Weiskopf birdied four of the last six holes for a 7-under-par 64 Friday and moved into a seven-way tie for the second round lead in the Westchester Golf Classic.

"It was a perfect round as far as I'm concerned," said Weiskopf, who had a chance to take the lead all by himself but failed to birdie the easy, 509-yard 18th hole.

With a 36-hole total of 135, Weiskopf was tied with:

— First round co-leader Miller Barber, who produced an up-and-down, "very trying" 69 that included just four pars on the last dozen holes;

— Charles Coody, the 1971 Masters champion, who shot 68 and said he felt "fortunate";

— Plus Jim Wiechers, a non-contender in 25 starts on tour this year; Rod Curl, who lost his exempt status this year; Howard Twitty, a three-year non-winner, and Leonard Thompson, who has won once in six years on tour.

Wiechers one-putted 10 times in shooting 67 Friday while Curl also had 67, Twitty 68 and Thompson 66.

Bengals' Clark wins football lawsuit

WILMINGTON, Ohio — Cincinnati Bengals' fullback Boobie Clark was all smiles Friday after learning a federal judge in Denver had ruled in favor of both him and the Bengals in a $1 million lawsuit.

The suit had been filed more than three years ago by former Denver Broncos' safety Dale Hackbart, who claimed he suffered a neck injury in a 1973 game when struck by Clark's forearm after a pass interception.

Hackbart charged Clark with "outrageous conduct" and sought to collect a total of $1 million from Clark and the Bengals.

But U.S. District Court Judge Richard P. Matsch ruled against Hackbart and said, "Civil courts cannot be expected to control the violence in professional football."

"They were suing me for $500,000 and the Bengals for $500,000," said Clark. "If I had lost, I was gonna retire. I wouldn't make that kind of money the rest of my career.

"It's an important judgment for myself and for football. It (the suit) does not make any sense because football is an intense game."

Color animation on new scoreboard

WASHINGTON — A $1 million scoreboard capable of showing color animation is planned for Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, according to the manager of the District of Columbia Armory Board.

Robert Sigholtz said Wednesday night the scoreboard, which will hang from the upper deck in the center field portion of the baseball diamond, will be comparable to those in Cincinnati and Pontiac, Mich., except that it will be able to show color cartoons.

The scoreboard is expected to be installed for the 1978 football season, he said.

Illinois medalist sets swim record

MISSION VIEJO, CALIF. Olympic Champion Jim Montgomery, 21, of the Cummins Engine Swim Club of Bloomington, Ill., clocked the fastest time in the world this year in the 200-meter freestyle Friday in qualifying for the finals of the AAU Senior National Long Course Swimming Championships.

Montgomery, an Olympic gold medal winner at Montreal in the 100-meter freestyle, swam in 1:52.54 to win his qualifying heat. The time was well off the world record of 1:50.32 set by Bruce Furniss at the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Furniss, who is suffering from a case of shingles, failed to qualify for the finals of the 200-meter freestyle.

Rick DeMont, 22, swimming for the Beach Swim Club of Long Beach, Calif., was the second fastest qualifier with a 1:52.95.

Colts smash Vikings in exhibition

Baltimore Colts' running back Lydell Mitchell scored on a 12-yard burst in the first quarter Friday night to lead the Colts to a 29-7 preseason win over the Minnesota Vikings at Minnesota.

Leading 16-7 at halftime, on the strength of Toni Linhart's 28 yard field goal and Bert Jones six yard touchdown pass to Glen Doughty, the Colts put the game out of reach in the fourth quarter with a 13-point explosion.

A four-yard touchdown pass from reserve quarterback Bill Troup to Freddie Scott and a 22-yard scoring run by David Lee closed out the Colts scoring.

Minnesota's lone score came in the second quarter on a four-yard touchdown run by Sammy Johnson.

In Cleveland, Brian Sipe threw two touchdowns passes to lead the Cleveland Browns to their first preseason victory, a 19-10 win over the St Louis Cardinals.

Sipe threw an 18-yard scoring pass to Reggie Rucker late in the first half and a six-yarder to rookie Charlie Nash four minutes in the final quarter.

Athletes should contact schools

Because of the changes made by the Illinois High School Assn. in the 1977-78 sports schedules, it is imperative for athletes to contact their respective schools for the latest information.

The biggest changes are in swimming, where the girls' season has been moved from the fall to the winter and the boys' season from winter to spring.

Rangers, Twins stumble

FROM HERALD WIRE SERVICES

MIKE TORREZ cooled off Texas on a four-hitter Friday night and Reggie Jackson drove in three runs to help the New York Yankees rout the Rangers 8-1, for their sixth straight victory.

It was the sixth consecutive complete game triumph for Torrez, who carried a one-hitter into the eighth and improved his record to 14-10. The loss snapped the Rangers' four game winning streak.

In other American League games Baltimore edged Minnesota, 3-2; and Kansas City beat Boston, 9-3.

In the National League, Philadelphia clobbered Houston, 9-5; St. Louis won easily over San Diego, 12-4; Pittsburgh beat San Francisco, 6-1; Cincinnati took two from New York, 4-1 and 4-3; and Montreal split with the Braves, 3-5 and 7-2.

Major league baseball

IN BLOOMINGTON, MINN., Andres Mora banged a two-run homer with two out in the sixth inning to give the Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins behind the six-hit pitching of Mike Flanagan.

Mora hit his 10th homer deep into the left field seats off starter and loser Dave Goltz, 15-7, and scored behind Lee May, who had singled.

IN KANSAS CITY Amos Otis hit a three-run homer, John Mayberry added a two-run blast and George Brett belted a solo shot to power the Kansas City Royals to a 9-3 victory over the AL East Division Leading Boston Red Sox.

Brett's 15th homer came in the first inning and Otis, who entered the game in a 2-for-40 slump, broke the game open with his 14th homer in the sixth to make it 5-1, Mayberry's 19th homer capped a four-run seventh inning.

IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE, home runs by Jay Johnstone, Richie Hebner, Bob Boone and winning pitcher Larry Christenson powered the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

Johnstone triggered a four run sixth inning against loser Joe Niekro with his ninth homer and Christenson capped the rally with a three-run blast following a walk to Boone and a single by Ted Sizemore.

IN ST. LOUIS Mike Tyson knocked in six runs with a single, double and homer to give rookie pitcher John Urrea and the St. Louis Cardinals a 12-4 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The Cardinals battered five pitchers for 16 hits and put together five-run rallies in the first and fifth innings.

Urrea, now 5-3 allowed 11 hits, struck out three and walked two over seven innings. Urrea now has had six major league starts with St. Louis and won all of them.

IN PITTSBURGH John Candelaria tossed a five-hitter and Bill Robinson slammed a two-run homer and stole home. Leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Candelaria struck out five to gain his 13th victory against four losses as the Pirates won the 21st of their last 22 home games dating back to July 6. The Pirates are 46-15 at home this season and the crowd of 16,831 pushed them over the one million mark in attendance for the season.

IN NEW YORK, George Foster hit his 41st homer and drove in three runs to back the eight-hit pitching of Paul Moskau and Pedro Borbon in the second game to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets which completed a sweep of their doubleheader.

Foster, who leads the majors in runs batted in with 116 as well as home runs, hit a solo blast in the opener to back rookie Doug Capilla's six-hit pitching and face the Reds to a 4-1 triumph. Foster is the first player since 1973 to reach the 40-homer plateau in a season.

IN MONTREAL Tony Perez hit a three-run single in a four-run fifth inning of the second game enabling the Montreal Expos to defeat Atlanta 7-2 after the Braves won the opener, 5-3, behind the six-hit pitching of Phil Niekro.

Weiskopf shares Westchester lead

HARRISON, N.Y. — Tom Weiskopf birdied four of the last six holes for a 7-under-par 64 Friday and moved into a seven-way tie for the second round lead in the Westchester Golf Classic.

"It was a perfect round as far as I'm concerned," said Weiskopf, who had a chance to take the lead all by himself but failed to birdie the easy, 509-yard 18th hole.

With a 36-hole total of 135, Weiskopf was tied with:

— First round co-leader Miller Barber, who produced an up-and-down, "very trying" 69 that included just four pars on the last dozen holes;

— Charles Coody, the 1971 Masters champion, who shot 68 and said he felt "fortunate";

— Plus Jim Wiechers, a non-contender in 25 starts on tour this year; Rod Curl, who lost his exempt status this year; Howard Twitty, a three-year non-winner, and Leonard Thompson, who has won once in six years on tour.

Wiechers one-putted 10 times in shooting 67 Friday while Curl also had 67, Twitty 68 and Thompson 66.

Bengals' Clark wins football lawsuit

WILMINGTON, Ohio — Cincinnati Bengals' fullback Boobie Clark was all smiles Friday after learning a federal judge in Denver had ruled in favor of both him and the Bengals in a $1 million lawsuit.

The suit had been filed more than three years ago by former Denver Broncos' safety Dale Hackbart, who claimed he suffered a neck injury in a 1973 game when struck by Clark's forearm after a pass interception.

Hackbart charged Clark with "outrageous conduct" and sought to collect a total of $1 million from Clark and the Bengals.

But U.S. District Court Judge Richard P. Matsch ruled against Hackbart and said, "Civil courts cannot be expected to control the violence in professional football."

"They were suing me for $500,000 and the Bengals for $500,000," said Clark. "If I had lost, I was gonna retire. I wouldn't make that kind of money the rest of my career.

"It's an important judgment for myself and for football. It (the suit) does not make any sense because football is an intense game."

Color animation on new scoreboard

WASHINGTON — A $1 million scoreboard capable of showing color animation is planned for Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, according to the manager of the District of Columbia Armory Board.

Robert Sigholtz said Wednesday night the scoreboard, which will hang from the upper deck in the center field portion of the baseball diamond, will be comparable to those in Cincinnati and Pontiac, Mich., except that it will be able to show color cartoons.

The scoreboard is expected to be installed for the 1978 football season, he said.

Illinois medalist sets swim record

MISSION VIEJO, CALIF. Olympic Champion Jim Montgomery, 21, of the Cummins Engine Swim Club of Bloomington, Ill., clocked the fastest time in the world this year in the 200-meter freestyle Friday in qualifying for the finals of the AAU Senior National Long Course Swimming Championships.

Montgomery, an Olympic gold medal winner at Montreal in the 100-meter freestyle, swam in 1:52.54 to win his qualifying heat. The time was well off the world record of 1:50.32 set by Bruce Furniss at the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Furniss, who is suffering from a case of shingles, failed to qualify for the finals of the 200-meter freestyle.

Rick DeMont, 22, swimming for the Beach Swim Club of Long Beach, Calif., was the second fastest qualifier with a 1:52.95.

Colts smash Vikings in exhibition

Baltimore Colts' running back Lydell Mitchell scored on a 12-yard burst in the first quarter Friday night to lead the Colts to a 29-7 preseason win over the Minnesota Vikings at Minnesota.

Leading 16-7 at halftime, on the strength of Toni Linhart's 28 yard field goal and Bert Jones six yard touchdown pass to Glen Doughty, the Colts put the game out of reach in the fourth quarter with a 13-point explosion.

A four-yard touchdown pass from reserve quarterback Bill Troup to Freddie Scott and a 22-yard scoring run by David Lee closed out the Colts scoring.

Minnesota's lone score came in the second quarter on a four-yard touchdown run by Sammy Johnson.

In Cleveland, Brian Sipe threw two touchdowns passes to lead the Cleveland Browns to their first preseason victory, a 19-10 win over the St Louis Cardinals.

Sipe threw an 18-yard scoring pass to Reggie Rucker late in the first half and a six-yarder to rookie Charlie Nash four minutes in the final quarter.

Athletes should contact schools

Because of the changes made by the Illinois High School Assn. in the 1977-78 sports schedules, it is imperative for athletes to contact their respective schools for the latest information.

The biggest changes are in swimming, where the girls' season has been moved from the fall to the winter and the boys' season from winter to spring.

Waterfowl seasons slated

Waterfowl regulations and hunting dates, which include an experimental zoned duck season and an increased goose harvest for the southern Illinois quota zone, have been set by the Illois Dept. of Conservation.

DUCK SEASON

Duck hunters will have a 45-day hunting season in each of the two newly established zones. Shooting in the northern zone begins Saturday, Oct. 22 and continues through Dec. 5. Southern zone shooters begin hunting Saturday, Nov. 5 and conclude their season at sunset on Dec. 19. Hunting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

The north-south zone will be separated by the southern boundary of the counties through which U.S. Highway 50 passes. (St Clair, Clinton, Marion, Clay, Richland and Lawrence counties are the southernmost northern zone counties.

The Baldwin Fish & Wildlife1 Area, which straddles the north-south boundary, will be considered part of the southern zone.

"IN A STATE that is almost 400 miles long, we have always before been forced to set opening and closing dates at times which were not always conducive to quality hunting for all parts of the state during the entire season," said Dr. David Kenney, director of the Department of Conservation.

"The northern part of the state mostly benefited early in the season, while southern shooters usually had good hunting during the latter portion of the alloted season. The new experimental zones allow us to set hunting seasons at times when the duck populations are at high levels at various parts of the state, thus ensuring longer hunting opportunities for Illinois sportsmen."

Illinois will once again use the point system for daily bag and possession limits. The daily bag limit is reached when the point value of the last bird taken, added to the sum of the point value of birds already taken, equals or exceeds 100 points. The possession limit is the maximum number of birds which legally could have been taken during two days of hunting.

Point values of species are:

100 POINTS — canvasback and redhead; 70 points — mallard hen, wood duck, black duck, hooded merganser; 23 points — mallard drake, wigeon, ringneck, goldeneye, bufflehead, old squaw, ruddy, all scoters and all other species not covered; 10 points — pintail, blue-winged teal, green-winged teal, cinnamon teal, gadwall, shoveler, scaup and mergansers (except hooded mergansers).

Coots are not included in the point system, and hunters will be allowed 15 birds per day and 30 in possession.

The Mississippi River from Alton north to the Wisconsin boundary will be closed to the taking of canvasback and redhead ducks.

GOOSE SEASON

Goose hunters will have a 70-day season outside the goose hunting quota zone. The season begins October 22 and continues through December 30. Shooting hours are one half hour before sunrise to sunset.

The hunting season in the goose quota zone (Alexander, Jackson, Union and Williamson counties) is November 21 through January 20, or until 29,000 geese have been harvested. Shooting hours in the quota area are sunrise to 3 p m.

Hunters may take two Canada geese per day and have four in possession following opening day. The daily bag limit allows up to five geese per day, which may not include more than two Canada geese or their subspecies, or two white-fronted geese, or one of each, plus three geese of another species. The possession limit also is five, which may not include more than four Canada geese or two white-fronted geese.

IT IS ILLEGAL to take Canada geese, or any white-cheeked geese, in all of Knox County; Greenfield and Braceville townships in Grundy County, Alba, Annawan, Atkinson and Cornwall townships in Henry County; Essex Township in Kankakee County; and Buckhert, Canton, Cass, Deerfield, Fairview, Farmington, Joshua, Orion and Putman townships, and that portion of Banner Township bounded on the north by Ill. Rt. 9 and on the east by U.S. Rte. 24 in Fulton County.

Because the Canada goose population continues to increase, the federal guidelines allowed for a harvest increase of 7,000 birds more than last year's total. "Southern Illinois has long been the major southern terminal for Canada goose migration. Last winter, nearly 480,000 Canada geese were censused in the Mississippi Flyway, by far the most ever recorded.

STEEL SHOT REGULATIONS

Federal steel shot regulations will be in effect during the upcoming waterfowl season. The new regulations make it illegal to have 12 gauge shotgun shells in possession, except those containing non-toxic (steel) shot, while hunting waterfowl in the designated steel shot areas.

Only 12 gauge shotguns will be required to use steel shot during the 1977 waterfowl season. All other sizes of shotgun, including 10 gauge, are exempt from the steel shot requirements during this year's season.

AREAS INCLUDED in the steel shot zone for 1977 include: on or within 150 yards of waters in Marshall, Putnam, Henderson, Rock Island, Calhoun and Jersey counties; all state and federal managed properties, including Anderson Lake, Baldwin Fish & Wildlife area, Bluff Lake, Carlyle Lake and subimpoundments, Chain O'Lakes, Crab Orchard, Stephen Forbes States Park, Grass Lake, Horseshoo Lake (Alexander County), Horseshoe Lake (Madison County), Kankakee River public shooting area, Lake DuPue, Lake Shelbyville and sub-impoundments.

LaRue Scatters, Marshall County public shooting area, Mermet Lake, Oakwood Bottoms, Potters Marsh, Rend Lake and subimpoundments, Rice Lake, Saline County Conservation Area, Sanganois Conservation Area, Sangchris Lake State Park, Savanna Ordnance, Sinnissippi Lake, Sparland, Spring Lake (Tazewell County), Union County public shooting area, William Powers and Woodford County public shooting area are also included.

Other steel shot areas are waters managed for waterfowl hunting by the Department of Conservation on the Illinois River, the Rock River and the Mississippi River from pool 12 at East Dubuque to Lock and Dam 26 near Alton.

LICENSES AND STAMPS

All waterfowl hunters are required to have a valid hunting license, plus 1977 state and federal migratory waterfowl hunting stamps, unless they are exempt by law from these requirements.

Hunters not required to have either the state waterfowl stamp or hunting license include those 65 years old or older, disabled persons, and landowners or tenants hunting on property where they reside.

Hunters 15 years of age or younger are not required to obtain either the state or federal waterfowl stamps, but they must have a valid hunting license, unless they are disabled or hunting on property where they reside.

Migratory game bird regulations

Seasons, shooting hours and bag limits for mourning dove, rail, woodcock and snipe have been established. The regulations were set in accordance with rules established by the U S. Fish and Wildlife Service governing migratory game birds.

Dove and rail season begins Sept. 1 and continues through Nov. 9. Dove hunting is from noon to sunset daily, with bag limits of 12 per day and 24 in possession. Rail hunting is from sunrise to sunset with a daily bag limit and possession limit of 25.

Woodcock season begins Oct. 15 and continues through Dec. 19. Hunting is sunrise to sunset, with limits set at five per day and ten in possession.

Snipe season is Oct. 15 through Jan. 29. Hunting hours are sunrise to sunset, and sportsmen can take eight birds per day and have 16 in possession.

Hunters get shot at teal season

A special nine-day teal season will be held Sept. 10 through Sept. 18. Blue-wing, green-wing and cinnamon teal may be hunted from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. The bag limit is four teal per day and eight in possession after opening day.

Teal are early migrators, traditionally moving through Illinois in September enroute to their wintering grounds in Central and South America. By the time Illinois' regular waterfowl season begins, most teal have passed through the state. The special season gives hunters an opportunity to hunt this tough target.

The new federal steel shot regulations would be in effect during the special season, and that Conservation Police will be intensively patrolling teal hunting areas. Waterfowl hunters are urged to be sure they could identify teal prior to the hunt. Wood ducks are oftentimes mistaken for the bright colored teal by the inexperienced hunter.

The new steel shot regulations make it illegal to have any 12 gauge shotgun shells in possession, except those containing non-toxic (steel) shot, while hunting ducks in the designated steel shot areas. Only 12 gauge shotguns will be required to use steel shot during the 1977 waterfowl season. All other gauge of shotgun, including 10 gauge, are exempt from the non-toxic shot requirements during the upcoming season.

Geese carrying shot

More than 500 Canada geese were trapped, banded and fluoroscoped at the Union County Wildlife Refuge by biologists from the Illinois Dept. of Conservation during March.

The x-rays showed that 12 per cent of the more than 300 immature geese fluoroscoped were carrying body shot, and 43 per cent of the adult birds were carrying shot.

This compared with 16 per cent and 43 per cent respectively of the birds checked following the 1975 season. Following the banding and fluoroscoping the birds were released back into the wild.

"The data collected should be valuable to compare against next year's statistics when many waterfowlers will be using steel shot," said Jack Ellis, supervisor of the Division of Wildlife Resources.

Migratory game bird regulations

Seasons, shooting hours and bag limits for mourning dove, rail, woodcock and snipe have been established. The regulations were set in accordance with rules established by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service governing migratory game birds.

Dove and rail season begins Sept. 1 and continues through Nov. 9. Dove hunting is from noon to sunset daily, with bag limits of 12 per day and 24 in possession. Rail hunting is from sunrise to sunset with a daily bag limit and possession limit of 25.

Woodcock season begins Oct. 15 and continues through Dec. 19. Hunting is sunrise to sunset, with limits set at five per day and ten in possession.

Snipe season is Oct. 15 through Jan. 29. Hunting hours are sunrise to sunset, and sportsmen can take eight birds per day and have 16 in possession.

Hunters get shot at teal season

A special nine-day teal season will be held Sept. 10 through Sept. 18. Blue-wing, green-wing and cinnamon teal may be hunted from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. The bag limit is four teal per day and eight in possession after opening day.

Teal are early migrators, traditionally moving through Illinois in September enroute to their wintering grounds in Central and South America. By the time Illinois' regular waterfowl season begins, most teal have passed through the state. The special season gives hunters an opportunity to hunt this tough target.

The new federal steel shot regulations would be in effect during the special season, and that Conservation Police will be intensively patrolling teal hunting areas. Waterfowl hunters are urged to be sure they could identify teal prior to the hunt. Wood ducks are oftentimes mistaken for the bright colored teal by the inexperienced hunter.

The new steel shot regulations make it illegal to have any 12 gauge shotgun shells in possession, except those containing non-toxic (steel) shot, while hunting ducks in the designated steel shot areas. Only 12 gauge shotguns will be required to use steel shot during the 1977 waterfowl season. All other gauge of shotgun, including 10 gauge, are exempt from the non-toxic shot requirements during the upcoming season.

Geese carrying shot

More than 500 Canada geese were trapped, banded and fluoroscoped at the Union County Wildlife Refuge by biologists from the Illinois Dept. of Conservation during March.

The x-rays showed that 12 per cent of the more than 300 immature geese fluoroscoped were carrying body shot, and 43 per cent of the adult birds were carrying shot.

This compared with 16 per cent and 43 per cent respectively of the birds checked following the 1975 season. Following the banding and fluoroscoping the birds were released back into the wild.

"The data collected should be valuable to compare against next year's statistics when many waterfowlers will be using steel shot," said Jack Ellis, supervisor of the Division of Wildlife Resources.

WOODEN DECKS ARE booming in popularity in the Northwest suburbs. Mrs. Frank Hines, right, of Elk Grove Village, relaxes on her newly built deck with Alice Sobeck. The Hines' deck, built by Terry Hunt, replaces a stone patio and features open lattice work, railings and benches.

Expensive wooden decks highlight summer days

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Wood patio decks are a rapidly growing trend for outdoor enjoyment in the Northwest suburbs.

Beautiful to look at, comfortable to sit or lie upon, durable and natural, wood decks have been around about 15 to 20 years, observes Bob Heller, owner of Heller Lumber Co. in Arlington Heights.

"Wood decks are very popular and rising here. People like them because wood is warm and attractive," he said.

Paul Nilsen, contractor-salesman at Edward Hines Lumber Co. in Mount Prospect, agrees.

"Wood decks have esthetic appeal. We get lots of calls for them," he said.

Lumber companies such as Heller and Hines sell materials and provide or work out designs and plans for do-it-yourselfers. They also build-to-order, a more expensive proposition.

EXCEPT FOR THOSE smallest and most simply constructed, however, wood decks seldom are a cheap addition to anyone's home. You get what you pay for, says Heller.

"Properly constructed with good, durable materials, a wood deck will last 30 to 50 years, but it is not cheap," he said.

Homeowners are choosing to build decks from a simple 10 by 10 extension beyond a patio door to elaborate multi-level beauties with railings, benches, planters, lattice work ceilings, and dividers and decorative fences.

Terry Hunt, carpenter-contractor who designs and builds all kinds of decks at a variety of costs, even builds around trees. His expertise is in such demand, he works 18 hours daily from April until the snow flies, he said. This season he no longer finds time for building and remodeling houses and cabinet making, he added.

The most popular deck Hunt constructs is an extension off the back of a house with access from a kitchen, dining room or family room through sliding glass doors. "The deck extends the room, and everyone likes it. I am now building from 60 per cent referrals."

COST DEPENDS ON size, materials and design frills. Hunt charges $500 to $600 for materials and labor for a 10 by 10 deck with no railings or benches. And he now is bidding an $8,000 creation.

Hunt's average job costs about $1,800. He likes best to work with cedar because of its natural beauty, aromatic fragrance and versatility.

He prefers to leave the wood natural, to weather out to a natural silver gray. But it can be stained in 36 different colors in transparent semi-stains that let the beauty of the grain show through. Such wood does not rot, and Hunt guarantees his wood decks for as long as a person owns his home.

Lumber companies sell several kinds of wood for outdoor decks all resistant to rot. Heller and Hines sell mostly redwood, whitewood and specially-treated Southern yellow pine.

WOOD DECKS hereabouts are built to individual tastes and bank accounts. Sales indicate fast-rising popularity.

Mrs. Frank Hines, Elk Grove Village, is certainly happy with her new multi-level outdoor relaxation and entertainment center.

"It is much more attractive and more practical than our previous patio stones," she said.

The cedar wood structure with open lattice work, railings, and benches wraps around the Hines' screened-in porch. They use it for family gatherings, sunning and entertaining, Mrs. Hines said.

How to control three common weeds

George Creed

It's your landscape

Three of the most persistent and troublesome weeds are illustrated here. The one in the top sketch is purslane — also called pusley. This is a ground-hugging annual plant with many reddish bronze stems radiating from a central root. Its leaves are fleshy, shaped like a spatula and approximately one inch long.

Purslane spreads by tiny seeds that are formed in great abundance (as many as 50,000 on one plant) in urn-shaped capsules with lids that pop open when seeds are ripe. The slightest motion causes the seeds to spill from the capsules. Seeds germinate when surface soil is warm and they may remain viable for many years, germinating only when conditions are favorable. Fleshy stems and leaves of this plant are edible and can be used in salads and as a vegetable.

YOU CAN control purslane in laws with 2, 4-D, but in gardens where this chemical would do more harm than good along desirable plants, you have to keep it in check by hand removal or by hoeing. The important thing is never to let it go to seed. If you use a hoe simply scrape off the tops of the plants and remove them from your garden. If you don't do this the fleshy stems and leaves contain enough sap to allow even the uprooted plants to produce seed.

The common mouse-ear chickweed is a shallow rooted perennial weed that flourishes in many a lawn throughout the United States. Leaves of this variety of chickweed are small and hairy (thus the common name) and occur in opposite pairs as shown in the sketch at the lower left. Its flowers are tiny with five white petals and these are followed by cylindrical seed pods filled with many seeds.

TO CONTROL: spot spray in the fall after the middle of October and again in April with 2, 4-D combined with Silvex. To be effective make two to three treatments at two to three week intervals.

As with purslane, if you find it in your garden remove by hand or hoe before seed production. The same control for common chickweed is recommended with only spring application of the chemicals.

At the lower right, black medic, also called yellow trefoil, is sketched. This annual weed with blue green leaves is a low-growing spreading plant that crowds out desirable grasses in lawns. Its yellow flowers are formed in clusters at the ends of short branches originating from the stems. Seeds ar formed in black pods with one seed to a pod. Control by applying Silvex or Dicamba in early spring.

Before applying any of the chemicals mentioned here — read the labels!

Q. I want to make a hedge of Four O'Clocks. How far apart shall I plant the seeds?

A. About 18 inches.

Q. What kind of flower can I plant where it is hot and dry and where the soil is poor?

A. Try nasturtiums, ice plant or portulaca.

Mary B. Good

Potting shed

You think you're hot and miserable? What about your houseplants? Try working in tandem with them to cool your cool.

Some plants grow like a jungle hypo in summer, but others, like piggyback, fatsia, ferns, and a host of others do not like warmer temperatures

Consider location Many people leave their houseplants in the same spot all year long The direct rays of the sun that were doing great things for the begonias and asparagus fern in winter in a southern exposure may be all but burning the leaves in the same window in summer (Plunking plants on the patio to pick up bugs and possibly contract sunscald is not the best vacation for a prized pet) But good ventilation indoors is essential

WHEN IT S TOO hot for a houseplant, it can develop leaf drop or leggy growth, or if the sun is too much to handle, the houseplant may yellow, develop tip burns, or just plain stop growing

Perhaps the leafy trees and foundation plantings outside your windows are cutting off sunlight through the windows Then, not enough light can also cause leggy growth, defoliation, and a halt in growth If your houseplants are suffering, move them to a more compatible summer location

One idea is to group your plants in a room where you spend the most time so you won't neglect them in the midst of all your summer activities

If light and temperature conditions are satisfactory, try bringing life to the kitchen or television area, two rooms where Americans spend the most time You can't help but pay attention to your houseplants, when they are occupying some of your square footage

YOU CAN ACHIEVE a sunny kitchen without painting the walls yellow by bringing in the foliage from other rooms A few plants hung over the sink or arranged on a display rack can make just about any kitchen look bright and outdoorsy Try placing a pot of air ferns (needs no soil or water) in a wire mesh vegetable basket or use available flowering houseplants color-keyed to your decor

I believe that clutter and jungle create an atmosphere of chaos and make people feel tired I have never completed anh controlled testing on this, but I've spent enough time studying plants and people and observing what kinds of houseplants people buy in hot weather — if they buy at all Let me tell you, crown of thorns is not a big seller in August Hairy and furry-leaved plants like the velvet plant and teddy bear, as well as prickly leaved plants like cactus, and witchy-looking plants like the Florida strangler may make you feel hot and uncomfortable

YOU'L WANT TO stay away from plants that look like they are suffering from runaway anxiety with their rampant growth habits, unless you need the stimulation. Some of these might include spider plants, Swedish ivy, grape ivy, and wandering Jew, unless they are well-pruned and graceful You will feel somehow cooled and less harassed in hot weather if you surround yourself with serene-looking airy houseplants, such as aralia, palms, watermelon-peperomia, small ferns, coral berry, gardemas, slow-growing hoya, and similar restful looking plants

Grouping plants together, instead of stringing them haphazardly from one end of the house to the other creates an organized, tranquil look if you are brimming with plants

CUTTING DOWN, not cutting out completely, on the number of houseplants you keep over the summer will give you more free time to pursue the remainder of summer time fun In my experience with retail sales of houseplants, I've noticed that people are just not interested in acquiring houseplants in summer anyway, because there is too much green outdoors

If you have too many plants and not enough time to care for them in these busy days of summer, give excess foliar baggage to rummage sales, flea markets, church fund-raising events, friends and neighbors, or have a plant sale in your backyard ala garage sale

Once the cooler weather comes, and interest in houseplants is on the rise again, you can refurbish your supply with a fresh acquisition of new green challenges.

Unusual split-level living room incorporates size with function

Jean-Paul Saint-Michel

Home of your own

The objective was to conceive a home incorporating a special feature of interest . something new and different a conversation piece for guests and a living pleasure for the family The answer was a split level living room 30 feet long, located across the rear of a split level house

In the usual split level design, the lower portion of the split living room most often is a recreation room Here, for a new twist is a room size usually limited to homes in the "mansion" class It may be entered directly from the lower reception hall, down two steps from the kitchen hall or down two steps from the dining room In other words, it is a split within a split

There are 390 square feet of split level area with an angled balcony and splayed steps splitting it almost in half, either portion being the equivalent size of a modest living room It has access to outdoors from both levels through sliding doors or a screened porch door

THREE FULL-SIZED bedrooms and two baths are located on the upper level with their windows well above the street to provide absolute privacy

A 15 foot long kitchen and adjoining laundry is the efficient hub of house duties The service entrance is at the side but near the front of the house for easy entry Three large windows in front provide plenty of light and ventilation for the entire area, including the breakfast niche All rooms are readily accessible from the kitchen A lavatory is quickly reached and also acts as a powder room for the reception hall

There are three 'casual' areas, all to the rear for added privacy A screened porch off the living room has a sliding wall recessed into the garage The covered porch off the dining room extends the apparent length

Cool off houseplants in summer

Mary B. Good

Potting shed

You think you're hot and miserable? What about your houseplants? Try working in tandem with them to cool your cool.

Some plants grow like a jungle hypo in summer, but others, like piggyback, fatsia, ferns, and a host of others do not like warmer temperatures.

Consider location: Many people leave their houseplants in the same spot all year long. The direct rays of the sun that were doing great things for the begonias and asparagus fern in winter in a southern exposure may be all but burning the leaves in the same window in summer. (Plunking plants on the patio to pick up bugs and possibly contract sunscald is not the best vacation for a prized pet.) But good ventilation indoors is essential.

WHEN IT'S TOO hot for a houseplant, it can develop leaf drop or leggy growth; or if the sun is too much to handle, the houseplant may yellow, develop tip burns, or just plain stop growing.

Perhaps the leafy trees and foundation plantings outside your windows are cutting off sunlight through the windows. Then, not enough light can also cause leggy growth, defoliation, and a halt in growth. If your houseplants are suffering, move them to a more compatible summer location.

One idea is to group your plants in a room where you spend the most time so you won't neglect them in the midst of all your summer activities.

If light and temperature conditions are satisfactory, try bringing life to the kitchen or television area, two rooms where Americans spend the most time. You can't help but pay attention to your houseplants, when they are occupying some of your square footage.

YOU CAN ACHIEVE a sunny kitchen without painting the walls yellow by bringing in the foliage from other rooms. A few plants hung over the sink or arranged on a display rack can make just about any kitchen look bright and outdoorsy. Try placing a pot of air ferns (needs no soil or water) in a wire mesh vegetable basket or use available flowering houseplants color-keyed to your decor.

I believe that clutter and jungle create an atmosphere of chaos and make people feel tired. I have never completed anh controlled testing on this, but I've spent enough time studying plants and people and observing what kinds of houseplants people buy in hot weather — if they buy at all. Let me tell you, crown of thorns is not a big seller in August. Hairy and fury-leaved plants like the velvet plant and teddy bear, as well as prickly leaved plants like cactus, and witchy-looking plants like the Florida strangler may make you feel hot and uncomfortable.

YOU'L WANT TO stay away from plants that look like they are suffering from runaway anxiety with their rampant growth habits, unless you need the stimulation. Some of these might include spider plants, Swedish ivy, grape ivy, and wandering Jew, unless they are well-pruned and graceful. You will feel somehow cooled and less harassed in hot weather if you surround yourself with serene-looking airy houseplants, such as aralia, palms, watermelon-peperomia, small ferns, coral berry, gardenias, slow-growing hoya, and similar restful-looking plants.

Grouping plants together, instead of stringing them haphazardly from one end of the house to the other creates an organized, tranquil look if you are brimming with plants.

CUTTING DOWN, not cutting out completely, on the number of houseplants you keep over the summer will give you more free time to pursue the remainder of summer time fun. In my experience with retail sales of houseplants, I've noticed that people are just not interested in acquiring houseplants in summer anyway, because there is too much green outdoors.

If you have too many plants and not enough time to care for them in these busy days of summer, give excess foliar baggage to rummage sales, flea markets, church fund-raising events, friends and neighbors, or have a plant sale in your backyard ala garage sale.

Once the cooler weather comes, and interest in houseplants is on the rise again, you can refurbish your supply with a fresh acquisition of new green challenges.

Unusual split-level living room incorporates size with function

Jean-Paul Saint-Michel

Home of your own

The objective was to conceive a home incorporating a special feature of interest . . . something new and different . . . a conversation piece for guests and a living pleasure for the family. The answer was a split level living room 30 feet long, located across the rear of a split level house.

In the usual split level design, the lower portion of the split living room most often is a recreation room. Here, for a new twist, is a room size usually limited to homes in the "mansion" class. It may be entered directly from the lower reception hall, down two steps from the kitchen hall or down two steps from the dining room. In other words, it is a split within a split.

There are 390 square feet of split level area with an angled balcony and splayed steps splitting it almost in half, either portion being the equivalent size of a modest living room. It has access to outdoors from both levels through sliding doors or a screened porch door.

THREE FULL-SIZED bedrooms and two baths are located on the upper level with their windows well above the street to provide absolute privacy.

A 15 foot long kitchen and adjoining laundry is the efficient hub of house duties. The service entrance is at the side but near the front of the house for easy entry. Three large windows in front provide plenty of light and ventilation for the entire area, including the breakfast niche. All rooms are readily accessible from the kitchen. A lavatory is quickly reached and also acts as a powder room for the reception hall.

There are three "casual" areas, all to the rear for added privacy. A screened porch off the living room has a sliding wall recessed into the garage. The covered porch off the dining room extends the apparent length

The doctor says

Reader embarrassed by problem with gas

For several years now I have had gas pains in my stomach area. Lately I have been expelling gas as much as 10 times a day. There is a bad odor and it seems to be quite uncontrollable and embarrassing. Is there anything that can be done to prevent gas in the first place?

I do take pills to help eliminate the gas when the pains get bad, but I have not needed to use these lately. I am 35.

Gas problems affect at least 10 per cent of the population—those are the ones who complain. Almost everyone has some of these problems.

You can't escape the problem entirely as we all swallow some air when we eat and drink. Some people swallow air as a nervous habit.

The problem is usually made worse by an improperly functioning colon. When the colon goes into spasm, it traps the gas and the pressure of the trapped gas in the colon causes the pain. Your colon is horseshoe shaped—running around the outer edge of the entire abdomen — including the top of the abdomen just under the ribs. Pain in the upper abdomen where most people think the stomach is located is commonly caused by the colon.

The gas that causes odors is not the air you swallow, but a very small amount of other gases. The human nose is a better detector of these than the most sensitive measuring devices that science has yet devised.

You need the information in two issues of The Health Letters. I am sending you number 2-1, Irritable and Spastic Colon and Constipation and number 6-8 Controlling Gaseousness. Others who want these two issues can send 50 cents for either one with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Meanwhile try to eliminate the foods you have learned cause you to have gas. You might find that milk products are a major factor. Also try to increase the bulk in your diet by increasing the bran and whole cereal fibers in your menu.

Could you please give me some information on poison ivy and what to do for it?

It is a contact dermatitis, meaning a skin allergy to oils in the poison ivy plant. The first exposure will not suually cause a problem but sensitizes the person to the irritant. Subsequent exposure causes the blisters and rash. The sensitivity of the person actually increases with repeated exposure.

The best treatment is to avoid the plant. This is not always possible and some sensitive people may react to oils that have been picked up by family pets or even to smoke from burning plants.

Once the exposure and reaction has occurred the best treatment is really with corticosteroids — the adrenal cortex hormones. These can be given by mouth and a short four-day treatment usually elimnates the problem in most people. In a few patients a smaller dose may need to be given for an additional three or four days.

Those who for any reason are chronically exposed to poison ivy may be desensitized by repeated injections of very dilute solutions of small amounts of the offending oil.

Poison oak and poison sumac contain the same irritating oils as poison ivy.

Alloy in gold makes it stronger, last longer

Dear Roberta: When we married, I could afford only the cheapest wedding band for my bride. She's never complained. But, for our coming anniversary, I want to surprise her with a really fine gold ring. Thought 24-karat gold was the best. However, I've been advised not to buy one with so high a number. Hope you can explain why, and also tell me what the numbers mean. Sign me "Still in Love."

The sentiment behind the wish is beautiful, but the advice you got is right. A 24-karat ring is pure gold, which bends and scratches easily and won't wear long. On the other hand, an 18-karat ring is made of gold alloy — 75 per cent gold and 25 per cent other metal. Those alloys strengthen gold.

Dear Roberta: Watching a friend unbag her groceries, I was surprised to see her slip packaged hot dogs into the freezer section. I'd always thought one shouldn't freeze processed meats. Have I been wrong? — Dian Foster.

I, too, was surprised when a nutritionist told me freezing isn't recommended for ready-to-eat meats. She says that the already heavy seasoning in these is accentuated by freezing. Frankly, I've always stored wieners and sausages in the freezer. They taste fine to us when heated up. And, of course, you have to keep frozen the wieners bought in health food stores, as these contain no preservatives.

Dear Roberta: Is yogurt a safe item for a brown bag lunch in hot weather? — Lee Lewin.

Yes, if you slip it into one of those low, wide-mouth insulated jars. Pre-chill that jar, too. As yogurt is a cultured milk product, heat encourages both harmful and beneficial bacteria to multiply.

of the room by using sliding glass doors. The adjoining terrace is an outdoor extension of the living room.

THE STORAGE facilities are impressive — 17 closets on just the bedroom level total 72 square feet. Four additional closets bring the total to 98 square feet of floor area. This excludes the usual base and hanging cabinet area in the kitchen. A basement is under the one story portion and offers almost 620 square feet of storage and heater space.

Other special features include: split level living room and balcony, recessed sliding wall to porch, interior garage access-to-house.

The front entrance design gives exceptional importance to the front elevation. There are double front doors, pierced flanking masonry walls, overhead trellis, splayed planters and fluted glass lites.

HELP — HURRY — HELP

We have set up the most beautiful Music Center in Chicagoland and vacated 75% of our former space. In the wake are large and small desks, much used chairs, extra piano and organ benches — (NEW and slightly used) AND JUST THINGS — Like a flea market.

Must be cash and carry. No checks, no credit cards, no refunds. We're not asking much so you better hurry to the new entrance on the southside of our building and ask for Huckster Ed or Carl. Phone calls will get you nowhere.

HELP — HURRY — HELP
We have set up the most beautiful Music Center in Chicagoland and vacated 75% of our former space. In the wake are large and small desks, much used chairs, extra piano and organ benches — (NEW and slightly used) AND JUST THINGS — Like a flea market.
Must be cash and carry. No checks, no credit cards, no refunds. We're not asking much so you better hurry to the new entrance on the southside of our building and ask for Huckster Ed or Carl. Phone calls will get you nowhere.

'Give Congress power to block postal cutbacks'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress should be given the authority to block any attempt to eliminate Saturday mail delivery, Chairman Robert N. C. Nix of the House Post Office Committee said Friday.

"Such policy decisions should not be left to the discretion of the Postmaster General," Nix, D-Pa., said.

Nix made his remarks, which included criticism of Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar, in a speech to letter carriers in Philadelphia. The text was released in Washington.

ELIMINATION OF Saturday delivery was proposed last April by the Commission on Postal Services.

"The time has come for Congress to reassert its constitutional responsibility and role in determining postal policy," Nix said.

"If the people are willing to give up Saturday delivery, then through the system of representative government, that will be done. But the day of decisions by those who do not represent the people must come to an end."

Nix said he would introduce a bill when Congress reconvenes next month to require the postmaster general to submit any such proposal to the lawmakers.

CONGRESS WOULD have 60 days to consider the Saturday delivery change or any other major change in postal service. If either the House or Senate passed a resolution of disapproval, the change would be vetoed.

Nix criticized Bailar for calling in union officials to discuss the Saturday delivery cutback the day after the report was issued.

"Needless to say, his diplomacy was not universally admired, least of all by me, and I so informed him," Nix said.

Nix said he could support another, administration-backed, proposal to boost some rates, leaving personal correspondence at 13 cents, but increasing business mail to 16 cents.

But he said his support for the so-called "citizen's stamp" would come only if service levels were not decreased.

'Give Congress power to block postal cutbacks'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress should be given the authority to block any attempt to eliminate Saturday mail delivery, Chairman Robert N. C. Nix of the House Post Office Committee said Friday.

"Such policy decisions should not be left to the discretion of the Postmaster General," Nix, D-Pa., said.

Nix made his remarks, which included criticism of Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar, in a speech to letter carriers in Philadelphia. The text was released in Washington.

ELIMINATION OF Saturday delivery was proposed last April by the Commission on Postal Services.

"The time has come for Congress to reassert its constitutional responsibility and role in determining postal policy," Nix said.

"If the people are willing to give up Saturday delivery, then through the system of representative government, that will be done. But the day of decisions by those who do not represent the people must come to an end."

Nix said he would introduce a bill when Congress reconvenes next month to require the postmaster general to submit any such proposal to the lawmakers.

CONGRESS WOULD have 60 days to consider the Saturday delivery change or any other major change in postal service. If either the House or Senate passed a resolution of disapproval, the change would be vetoed.

Nix criticized Bailar for calling in union officials to discuss the Saturday delivery cutback the day after the report was issued.

"Needless to say, his diplomacy was not universally admired, least of all by me, and I so informed him," Nix said.

Nix said he could support another, administration-backed, proposal to boost some rates, leaving personal correspondence at 13 cents, but increasing business mail to 16 cents.

But he said his support for the so-called "citizen's stamp" would come only if service levels were not decreased.

That's all Volks—it's bye-bye Beetle here

GOODBY, BUG. Volkswagen has decided to halt exports of the venerable Beetle to the United States, citing declining sales because of soaring prices. But sales in the United States total 5 million since 1949.

by DAVE IBATA

The Bug is dead. Long live the Bug.

That is, the Volkswagen Bug. The ubiquitous "Beetle," first marketed in the United States in 1949, no longer will be imported from West Germany, Volkswagen has decreed.

The reason? Economics — soaring prices that led to plummeting sales.

But the Beetle's passing will be noted with sadness by many devotees of the Bug in this country.

"I HATE TO SEE it go. It's been a nice little car, it's been a fun little car — but it's one of those things. What can you do?" said Adolph Hanson, trustee of the Chicago chapter of the Volkswagen Club of America.

John J. Buchmiller, of 311 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, another Beetle fan, took the news of the Bug's demise positively.

"Great," he said. "It makes mine worth more. We're going to keep it — forever, hopefully. I'll drive it 'til the wheels fall off."

Baron Bates, a spokesman for Volkswagen, said VW of America has decided to stop importing the sub-compact because "we have limited production capability of the Beetle in Germany since we diversified into various models. Federal emission standards and increasing prices have made it difficult to keep on importing the Beetle."

THE BEETLE WAS designed by Ferdinand Porsche in the 1930s as a "People's Car" which the name, Volkswagen, means when translated into English.

Porsche's basic design changed little during the years. The squat, little car introduced the idea of economy driving when, it was first imported to this country in 1949.

Since then, VW has sold 5 million of the air-cooled, rear-engine Beetle sedans in this country, Bates said. But so far this year, fewer than 15,000 have been sold, a fraction of the sales it enjoyed a decade ago, Bates said.

He said the last Beetle shipment arrived in this country last month, and only 2,000 cars remain in dealer inventories.

AREA DEALERS reported only a handful still in stock. And once they are sold, the era of the Bug will end.

"The VW was the first imported car that was a lot of fun," Hanson said. "But today, it's just another car. Guys just buy it and drive it for the sake of driving a car."

Why the popularity of this not-so-attractive little machine?

"Reliability, mainly," Buchmiller said. "It was the cheapest, most reliable car on the market that we've bought. Its life expectancy far surpasses other economy cars.

"They just grow on you," Buchmiller said.

A different clientele buying economy imports is another factor in decreased sales of the Beetle, Hanson said.

"EVERYBODY'S GETTING economy-minded, while we had been this way for the last 20 years," Hanson said.

Hanson, who bought his first Beetle in 1955 and is still driving his 1966 Bug, said, "Now you've got Toyota and Datsun giving us a pretty good runaround."

Even the ranks of hard-core Beetle fans have diminished, Hanson said. The Volkswagen Club of America, formed in 1955, boasted between 3,000 and 4,000 members between 1958 and 1960. But national membership has declined to 2,000, he said.

The local chapter listed 200 members through 1970, but membership has decreased to between 50 and 70, Hanson said.

"THE BEETLE HAS changed, people have changed, and you have a generation that didn't buy the car for fun," he said. "They're just not interested in this type of entertainment."

Entertainment offered by the club, and its Chicago-area affiliate, included once-a-month rallies, hill climbs and winter competitions on ice, Hanson said.

Beetle fans, however, may find some solace in the fact VW will continue to import about 9,000 Beetle convertibles a year priced at $5,000 each, $1,300 more than the sedan.

And for those really desperate souls, new Beetle sedans still will be found in Europe, Asia and Latin America, where they will sell at a rate of about 1,000 a day.

Business briefs

Steel import fight gets under way

The Bethlehem, Pa., Chamber of Commerce and District 9 of the United Steelworkers of America said Friday they were joining forces to fight foreign steel imports in what could become a nationwide campaign. They said at a joint news conference that they were starting their "grass roots" campaign in Bethlehem, where the city's largest employer, Bethlehem Steel Corp., announced Thursday it was laying off 3,500 workers at its Lackawanna, N.Y., steel plant in addition to 3,800 announced earlier at its Johnstown, Pa., plant. The company cited heavy competition from imported steel, which it said was 26 per cent higher than last year.

Panel warns against Tris sales

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has issued a new warning to retailers who still may be selling children's sleepwear treated with the banned flame retardant Tris. But it may be almost impossible for the agency to enforce the now legally entangled ban, even though there are indications nightgowns containing the suspected cancer-causing chemical still can be found on store shelves.

A federal appeals court last week upheld a lower federal court which scrapped the commission's April 8 ban on Tris-treated nightgowns. The appeals panel will not rule on the merits of what the lower court did until later this year. "The commission warns that any one who persists in selling tris-treated children's garments will be in violation of the federal hazardous substances act and will be subject to enforcement action by the commission," the agency is now saying.

Prices here rise more than 0.4% national hike

American consumers paid less for food and gasoline during July than the previous month, and the Consumer Price Index rose a moderate 0.4 per cent, the U.S. Labor Dept. reported Thursday.

As the national indicator of consumer prices rose at its slowest pace for the year, consumer prices in the Chicago area rose 0.7 per cent during July. This contributes to the local 6.5 per cent boost in consumer prices from year-ago levels.

Meanwhile, the good news for consumers was coupled with Friday reports of a jump in corporate profits. A hike in the prime lending rate by major U.S. banks and reports of slower growth in the nation's economy tempered the Friday news.

THE OVER-ALL MONTHLY increase in U.S. consumer prices, reflecting a 4.8 per cent annual inflation rate, appeared to be the start of a cooling trend that economists have been predicting for the last half of 1977.

The July figure compared with large monthly increaes averaging 0.7 per cent — or an 8.4 per cent annual rate — during the first half of the year. But economists believe the underlying inflation rate is somewhere between these two extremes at about 6 per cent.

Food costs, the chief source of soaring prices during the first half of the year, have also been responsible for the recent slowdown. All food prices — including restaurant bills — rose a bare 0.1 per cent last month.

In Illinois, cost of the total increase was in housing costs, William E. Rice, regional commissioner, said. Most of the rest was in higher food prices. Lower costs for clothing and transportation moderated the increase, Rice said.

Housing costs rose 1.2 per cent, including hikes in purchase price, interest rates and costs of utilities in Illinois.

CORPORATE PROFITS rose 11.4 per cent in the second quarter for the biggest increase in almost two years, the U.S. Commerce Dept. said Friday. However, the Commerce Dept. also said the Gross National Product grew more slowly and inflation was worse in the second quarter than previously estimated. The GNP adjusted for inflation, rose 6.1 per cent while it earlier has been estimated to grow 6.4 per cent.

Citibank, the country's second largest bank, Friday raised its interest rate for prime business loans to 7 per cent from 6¾ per cent, effective at once. The 6¾ per cent prime rate has been more or less general since mid-June.

Other banks announcing hikes included Continental Illinois of Chicago, the eighth largest bank; Harris Bank of Chicago, the 28th largest; and Central National Bank of Chicago.

That's all Volks—it's bye-bye Beetle here

GOODBY, BUG. Volkswagen has decided to halt exports of the venerable Beetle to the United States, citing declining sales because of soaring prices. But sales in the United States total 5 million since 1949.

by DAVE IBATA

The Bug is dead. Long live the Bug.

That is, the Volkswagen Bug. The ubiquitous "Beetle," first marketed in the United States in 1949, no longer will be imported from West Germany, Volkswagen has decreed.

The reason? Economics — soaring prices that led to plummeting sales.

But the Beetle's passing will be noted with sadness by many devotees of the Bug in this country.

"I HATE TO SEE it go. It's been a nice little car, it's been a fun little car — but it's one of those things. What can you do?" said Adolph Hanson, trustee of the Chicago chapter of the Volkswagen Club of America.

John J. Buchmiller, of 311 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, another Beetle fan, took the news of the Bug's demise positively.

"Great," he said. "It makes mine worth more. We're going to keep it — forever, hopefully. I'll drive it 'til the wheels fall off."

Baron Bates, a spokesman for Volkswagen, said VW of America has decided to stop importing the sub-compact because "we have limited production capability of the Beetle in Germany since we diversified into various models. Federal emission standards and increasing prices have made it difficult to keep on importing the Beetle."

THE BEETLE WAS designed by Ferdinand Porsche in the 1930s as a "People's Car" which the name, Volkswagen, means when translated into English.

Porsche's basic design changed little during the years. The squat, little car introduced the idea of economy driving when, it was first imported to this country in 1949.

Since then, VW has sold 5 million of the air-cooled, rear-engine Beetle sedans in this country, Bates said. But so far this year, fewer than 15,000 have been sold, a fraction of the sales it enjoyed a decade ago, Bates said.

He said the last Beetle shipment arrived in this country last month, and only 2,000 cars remain in dealer inventories.

AREA DEALERS reported only a handful still in stock. And once they are sold, the era of the Bug will end.

"The VW was the first imported car that was a lot of fun," Hanson said. "But today, it's just another car. Guys just buy it and drive it for the sake of driving a car."

Why the popularity of this not-so-attractive little machine?

"Reliability, mainly," Buchmiller said. "It was the cheapest, most reliable car on the market that we've bought. Its life expectancy far surpasses other economy cars.

"They just grow on you," Buchmiller said.

A different clientele buying economy imports is another factor in decreased sales of the Beetle, Hanson said.

"EVERYBODY'S GETTING economy-minded, while we had been this way for the last 20 years," Hanson said.

Hanson, who bought his first Beetle in 1955 and is still driving his 1966 Bug, said, "Now you've got Toyota and Datsun giving us a pretty good runaround."

Even the ranks of hard-core Beetle fans have diminished, Hanson said. The Volkswagen Club of America, formed in 1955, boasted between 3,000 and 4,000 members between 1958 and 1960. But national membership has declined to 2,000, he said.

The local chapter listed 200 members through 1970, but membership has decreased to between 50 and 70, Hanson said.

"THE BEETLE HAS changed, people have changed, and you have a generation that didn't buy the car for fun," he said. "They're just not interested in this type of entertainment."

Entertainment offered by the club, and its Chicago-area affiliate, included once-a-month rallies, hill climbs and winter competitions on ice, Hanson said.

Beetle fans, however, may find some solace in the fact VW will continue to import about 9,000 Beetle convertibles a year priced at $5,000 each, $1,300 more than the sedan.

And for those really desperate souls, new Beetle sedans still will be found in Europe, Asia and Latin America, where they will sell at a rate of about 1,000 a day.

Business briefs

Steel import fight gets under way

The Bethlehem, Pa., Chamber of Commerce and District 9 of the United Steelworkers of America said Friday they were joining forces to fight foreign steel imports in what could become a nationwide campaign. They said at a joint news conference that they were starting their "grass roots" campaign in Bethlehem, where the city's largest employer, Bethlehem Steel Corp., announced Thursday it was laying off 3,500 workers at its Lackawanna, N.Y., steel plant in addition to 3,800 announced earlier at its Johnstown, Pa., plant. The company cited heavy competition from imported steel, which it said was 26 per cent higher than last year.

Panel warns against Tris sales

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has issued a new warning to retailers who still may be selling children's sleepwear treated with the banned flame retardant Tris. But it may be almost impossible for the agency to enforce the now legally entangled ban, even though there are indications nightgowns containing the suspected cancer-causing chemical still can be found on store shelves.

A federal appeals court last week upheld a lower federal court which scrapped the commission's April 8 ban on Tris-treated nightgowns. The appeals panel will not rule on the merits of what the lower court did until later this year. "The commission warns that any one who persists in selling tris-treated children's garments will be in violation of the federal hazardous substances act and will be subject to enforcement action by the commission," the agency is now saying.

Prices here rise more than 0.4% national hike

American consumers paid less for food and gasoline during July than the previous month, and the Consumer Price Index rose a moderate 0.4 per cent, the U.S. Labor Dept. reported Thursday.

As the national indicator of consumer prices rose at its slowest pace for the year, consumer prices in the Chicago area rose 0.7 per cent during July. This contributes to the local 6.5 per cent boost in consumer prices from year-ago levels.

Meanwhile, the good news for consumers was coupled with Friday reports of a jump in corporate profits. A hike in the prime lending rate by major U.S. banks and reports of slower growth in the nation's economy tempered the Friday news.

THE OVER-ALL MONTHLY increase in U.S. consumer prices, reflecting a 4.8 per cent annual inflation rate, appeared to be the start of a cooling trend that economists have been predicting for the last half of 1977.

The July figure compared with large monthly increaes averaging 0.7 per cent — or an 8.4 per cent annual rate — during the first half of the year. But economists believe the underlying inflation rate is somewhere between these two extremes at about 6 per cent.

Food costs, the chief source of soaring prices during the first half of the year, have also been responsible for the recent slowdown. All food prices — including restaurant bills — rose a bare 0.1 per cent last month.

In Illinois, cost of the total increase was in housing costs, William E. Rice, regional commissioner, said. Most of the rest was in higher food prices. Lower costs for clothing and transportation moderated the increase, Rice said.

Housing costs rose 1.2 per cent, including hikes in purchase price, interest rates and costs of utilities in Illinois.

CORPORATE PROFITS rose 11.4 per cent in the second quarter for the biggest increase in almost two years, the U.S. Commerce Dept. said Friday. However, the Commerce Dept. also said the Gross National Product grew more slowly and inflation was worse in the second quarter than previously estimated. The GNP adjusted for inflation, rose 6.1 per cent while it earlier has been estimated to grow 6.4 per cent.

Citibank, the country's second largest bank, Friday raised its interest rate for prime business loans to 7 per cent from 6¾ per cent, effective at once. The 6¾ per cent prime rate has been more or less general since mid-June.

Other banks announcing hikes included Continental Illinois of Chicago, the eighth largest bank; Harris Bank of Chicago, the 28th largest; and Central National Bank of Chicago.

Small businessman endangered species

NEW YORK—Conservationists who fret about the fate of the sperm whale, bald eagle and whooping crane ought to add another endangered species to their list: the U.S. small businessman.

The independent entrepreneur—the little fellow who carved out a business of his own—has been an essential part of the American dream. And his drive for success enriched us, not just with new products and services but with the possibility that we, or our children, could emulate him.

Now the small businessman is in trouble, the victim of overkill not by hunters but by bureaucrats. Survey after survey spotlights the trend away from his kind of activity; more and more bright young Americans opt for security over risk, and sign up with the giant established corporations. The pension plans are terrific, and you don't have all that hassle.

IN SEEKING the reason for the decline of the entrepreneurial instinct in America, we now have the testimony of that eminent authority, Billy Carter, who observed recently that the "greatest problem the small businessman has to contend with" is "government at all levels, but especially at the Federal level."

Louis Rukeyser

What's more, the President's younger brother complained, "a lot of what they ask for in those government forms they send out is nobody's damned business."

While Billy Carter's language may be strong, and undoubtedly will be offensive to those who can't wait to think up still more ways for government to intervene in the marketplace, the present burdens on existing businessmen, and discouragement to potential entrepreneurs, are undeniable. Government reporting requirements alone cost the small businessman an estimated $18 billion a year—money that otherwise could go to expand the economy and employment. (An Oregon-based company reports that its application for license renewals on its three small television stations weighed 45 pounds.)

But if the small businessman is an endangered species, he is certainly not yet extinct. About 400,000 Americans will start new businesses this year, even though the increasingly hostile terrain will wipe out as many as two thirds of them within five years. Entrepreneurs will never be a voting majority in our (or any) society, but they are a tough group to extinguish.

TAKE THEODORE G. Schad, Jr., who six years ago left a comfortable job with a leading accounting firm and is now chairman and president of Lou Ana Foods, Inc., the nation's largest independent refiner of vegetable oils. Schad, who says he previously felt dissatisfied because "I didn't build anything myself," has a clear idea of what kind of person usually becomes this kind of high achiever ("independent, ego-oriented and materially motivated individuals"), and he has some hard advice for those who are tempted to try:

Be willing to risk all assets and take a step down in living style. Prepare financially; don't drain the new venture of cash. Have the stamina and commitment to work whatever hours are necessary during the launch period. Be sure you have the skills your business needs. Plan realistically and commit your plans to paper before you begin.

Still, Schad maintains, government may present the biggest hurdle. "Government regulations are written with corporate giants in mind, so the little guy who can't afford outside counsel to interpret the complexities of government forms and requirements is caught in a tight squeeze," he told me. "The problem of handling the record-keeping, the petitions and the strict accounting required by government agencies is often insurmountable."

Schad fears that as the economy improves, the governmental threat to small-business survival will intensify, rather than lessen. He points to such present excesses as the Occupational Health and Safety Administration (which, he notes, devotes 65 pages of regulations just to ladders) and to overlapping and conflicting red tape that requires some companies to fill out as many as 17,000 Federal forms each year.

"One wonders, with a casualty rate so high, why the typical entrepreneur even bothers," Schad concludes. The answer is clear: he wants control of his own life. In that sense, his fate is of significance far beyond that of a narrow economic class; for his future is a metaphor for America's.

People in business

DAVID O. WILLIAMS of Hanover Park has joined the Chemetron Corp. Chemical Products division as market development manager. He will be located at the divisional headquarters near Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. Before joining Chemetron, he was development manager for Great Lakes Chemical Co.

RICHARD SCHENCK has been named national marketing manager of leasing for Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., Schaumburg. He assumes responsibility for the development and implementation of marketing strategies aimed at expanding the volume of leasing business through Addressograph-Multigraph Finance Corp. AMFC is a wholly owned subsidiary of the company which finances certain equipment leases and installment contracts with A-M Customers.

HENRY GRAEF of Mount Prospect recently received recognition and was presented with a watch for 40 years of service with United States Steel Supply Div. He started with the company at age 16 as an office boy and is now manager of commercial planning.

New laws may delay retirement

WASHINGTON — "My doctor tell me I am 'in very good shape.' My mind is teeming with ideas, but no one wants them. I don't want to fill in the time before I die. I want to use the time. I need to work, not makework, not a hobby, not volunteer work. I need job. I want my old job back. I was good at it."..

Such was the poignant demand of a former assistant professor of English in an anonymous Op-ed article in the New York Times.

It expresses succinctly the irrationality of a system which enforces retirement at age 65 on persons who are competent at their jobs — maybe even at the peak of their skills and experience — and who want to stay at them.

HAPPILY, this problem is getting increased attention, and it begins to look as if legislation initiated by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., that bars mandatory retirement before the age 70 (and bans it entirely in the federal sector) has a good chance of passing this year.

But not everybody wants to work longer. Only one out of five now delays retirement until 65, and the trend toward an earlier exit from work has been accelerating. A Congressional Budget Office study attributes this development in part to the recent recession, as well as rising Social Security and disability benefits.

Coincidentally, a comment by Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps that seemed to link elimination of the mandatory 65-year retirement age with postponement of the age for full Social Security benefits to age 68 caused a good deal of concern.

Hobart Rowen

It worries those people who have planned to retire at 65, or whose health bars further work, whatever their preference might be. It also worried Pepper, who saw it as "a cruel breach of faith" with those who anticipate getting full benefits at age 65.

IN AN INTERVIEW, the soft-spoken Kreps made several things clear. For at least "the next quarter century," she believes it whould be a voluntary, not a mandatory choice, for a worker to postpone full Social Security benefits to age 68.

As she has written for many years, Kreps believes that the "work life" of the average person ought to be extendable, considering that the life span itself is lengthening. Thus she supports the Pepper bill that would eliminate enforced retirement at age 65.

But like other economists who want to shore up Social Security, Kreps points out that at the turn of the century, the system will have severe financing problems.

The key to the oncoming difficulty is that a declining birth rate will reduce the relative number of young persons available for jobs. Thus, the ratio of retired workers to active workers is going to increase, and the outgo (benefits paid) will exceed the income (taxes paid in).

YOU CAN DEAL with this kind of problem in one of two classic ways. One is to raise taxes. The other is to reduce benefits. But as Kreps suggests, an acceptable option is "the possible postponement of the age of eligibility (for benefits)." At a minimum, payments into the system by those who otherwise would be getting benefits would reduce dependence on additional payroll taxes or general Treasury revenues.

"If compulsory retirement were eliminated," Kreps says, "the tax burden would be shared among a larger group of workers, while total taxes collected would need to cover benefits for a smaller group of beneficiaries."

Pepper admits that the problems of footing Social Security bills after the year 2000 might make it appropriate to start full Social Security benefits at age 68 instead of age 65.

For now, he understandably wants to concentrate on his bill to eliminate compulsory retirement at age 65. Equally logically, Kreps knows that it may take 18 to 20 years to phase in a new full-benefit age, and that it's not too early to start a public debate about it

Both the Pepper Bill and Kreps' analysis make sense. Life expectancy at age 65 now averages 14 years for men, 18 years for women. Those for whom liesure, travel or other activities are important or desirable should be free to quit work at an early stage. But those who want to continue at their jobs should be encouraged to do so — for the financial strength that would add to the Social Security system, but above all, for themselves.

As that professor of English so painfully discovered, society hasn't yet found for the individual what Kreps calls "the functional equivalent of work."

Big board volume totaled 97,847,230 shares, compared with 92,652,740 traded last week and 84,001,410 traded during the same week a year ago.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 114,173,760 shares, compared with 109,145,640 last week.

Brokers said investors are getting a muddled picture on inflation. Consumer and wholesale prices have fallen. But interest rates have risen as a result of Federal Reserve Board credit tightening, which could cause a slowdown in the economy.

The Fed confirmed late Friday it has been forced to pull in the credit reins because of an inflationary surge recently in the nation's money supply. The basic money supply, however, dipped $1.5 billion in the latest reporting week.

Fewer tax options open to single persons now

Money Wise

You previously wrote about the need to review estate planning as a result of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 for couples. How about planning for singles?

—A.D.

Planning to convey one's estate to heirs as a single person can be more complex than for a couple for two reasons: (1) A single person must decide how many and which relatives, charities, or others are to receive assets. A couple's planning usually involves finding the best way to leave assets to a surviving spouse. (2) Fewer options are available to a single person to save on taxes.

The new tax law now effectivt provides tax credits of $30,000 that offset gift and estate taxes of $121,667 for 1977. This crtdit increases yearly to 1981 when the tax credit is $47,000 — enough to offset gift-estate taxes on $175,625 of taxable assets. For singles with assets beyond these exclusions, two opportunities exist for reducing taxes. (1) You may givt up to $3,000 to individual donees each year without reporting the gifts. For example, you could give each of any number of relatives or friends $3,000 each year without reporting the gifts or paying a federal gift tax. (2) You may give substantial assets through a charitable remainder trust or unitrust to a university, church, or other qualified institution. Under this system, you donate property to a charity that agrees to provide income during your lifetime. The donation qualifies as a tax deduction to reduce current taxes. These trusts are far too varied and complicated to cover here; see a qualified tax attorney or ask at a university or church for assistance.

The Dow Jones industrial average — up about two points at the outset and down more than four in the early afternoon — lost 0.78 point to 863.48, the lowest level since it closed at 858.71 Jan. 2, 1976. It fell 7.62 for the week including 0.43 point Thursday.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index lost 0.10 to 53.38 and the average price of a share dipped 6 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, shed to 97.51.

Small businessman endangered species

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK—Conservationists who fret about the fate of the sperm whale, bald eagle and whooping crane ought to add another endangered species to their list: the U.S. small businessman.

The independent entrepreneur—the little fellow who carved out a business of his own—has been an essential part of the American dream. And his drive for success enriched us, not just with new products and services but with the possibility that we, or our children, could emulate him.

Now the small businessman is in trouble, the victim of overkill not by hunters but by bureaucrats. Survey after survey spotlights the trend away from his kind of activity; more and more bright young Americans opt for security over risk, and sign up with the giant established corporations. The pension plans are terrific, and you don't have all that hassle.

IN SEEKING the reason for the decline of the entrepreneurial instinct in America, we now have the testimony of that eminent authority, Billy Carter, who observed recently that the "greatest problem the small businessman has to contend with" is "government at all levels, but especially at the Federal level."

What's more, the President's younger brother complained, "a lot of what they ask for in those government forms they send out is nobody's damned business."

While Billy Carter's language may be strong, and undoubtedly will be offensive to those who can't wait to think up still more ways for government to intervene in the marketplace, the present burdens on existing businessmen, and discouragement to potential entrepreneurs, are undeniable. Government reporting requirements alone cost the small businessman an estimated $18 billion a year—money that otherwise could go to expand the economy and employment. (An Oregon-based company reports that its application for license renewals on its three small television stations weighed 45 pounds.)

But if the small businessman is an endangered species, he is certainly not yet extinct. About 400,000 Americans will start new businesses this year, even though the increasingly hostile terrain will wipe out as many as two thirds of them within five years. Entrepreneurs will never be a voting majority in our (or any) society, but they are a tough group to extinguish.

TAKE THEODORE G. Schad, Jr., who six years ago left a comfortable job with a leading accounting firm and is now chairman and president of Lou Ana Foods, Inc., the nation's largest independent refiner of vegetable oils. Schad, who says he previously felt dissatisfied because "I didn't build anything myself," has a clear idea of what kind of person usually becomes this kind of high achiever ("independent, ego-oriented and materially motivated individuals"), and he has some hard advice for those who are tempted to try:

Be willing to risk all assets and take a step down in living style. Prepare financially; don't drain the new venture of cash. Have the stamina and commitment to work whatever hours are necessary during the launch period. Be sure you have the skills your business needs. Plan realistically and commit your plans to paper before you begin.

Still, Schad maintains, government may present the biggest hurdle. "Government regulations are written with corporate giants in mind, so the little guy who can't afford outside counsel to interpret the complexities of government forms and requirements is caught in a tight squeeze," he told me. "The problem of handling the record-keeping, the petitions and the strict accounting required by government agencies is often insurmountable."

Schad fears that as the economy improves, the governmental threat to small-business survival will intensify, rather than lessen. He points to such present excesses as the Occupational Health and Safety Administration (which, he notes, devotes 65 pages of regulations just to ladders) and to overlapping and conflicting red tape that requires some companies to fill out as many as 17,000 Federal forms each year.

"One wonders, with a casualty rate so high, why the typical entrepreneur even bothers," Schad concludes. The answer is clear: he wants control of his own life. In that sense, his fate is of significance far beyond that of a narrow economic class; for his future is a metaphor for America's.

New laws may delay retirement

Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON — "My doctor tell me I am 'in very good shape.' My mind is teeming with ideas, but no one wants them. I don't want to fill in the time before I die. I want to use the time. I need to work, not makework, not a hobby, not volunteer work. I need job. I want my old job back. I was good at it.".

Such was the poignant demand of a former assistant professor of English in an anonymous Op-ed article in the New York Times.

It expresses succinctly the irrationality of a system which enforces retirement at age 65 on persons who are competent at their jobs — maybe even at the peak of their skills and experience — and who want to stay at them.

HAPPILY, this problem is getting increased attention, and it begins to look as if legislation initiated by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., that bars mandatory retirement before the age 70 (and bans it entirely in the federal sector) has a good chance of passing this year.

But not everybody wants to work longer. Only one out of five now delays retirement until 65, and the trend toward an earlier exit from work has been accelerating. A Congressional Budget Office study attributes this development in part to the recent recession, as well as rising Social Security and disability benefits.

Coincidentally, a comment by Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps that seemed to link elimination of the mandatory 65-year retirement age with postponement of the age for full Social Security benefits to age 68 caused a good deal of concern.

It worries those people who have planned to retire at 65, or whose health bars further work, whatever their preference might be. It also worried Pepper, who saw it as "a crutl breach of faith" with those who anticipate getting full benefits at age 65.

IN AN INTERVIEW, the soft-spoken Kreps made several things clear. For at least "the next quarter century," she believes it whould be a voluntary, not a mandatory choice, for a worker to postpone full Social Security benefits to age 68.

As she has written for many years, Kreps believes that the "work life" of the average person ought to be extendable, considering that the life span itself is lengthening. Thus she supports the Pepper bill that would eliminate enforced retirement at age 65.

But like other economists who want to shore up Social Security, Kreps points out that at the turn of the century, the system will have severe financing problems.

The key to the oncoming difficulty is that a declining birth rate will reduce the relative number of young persons available for jobs. Thus, the ratio of retired workers to active workers is going to increase, and the outgo (benefits paid) will exceed the income (taxes paid in).

YOU CAN DEAL with this kind of problem in one of two classic ways. One is to raise taxes. The other is to reduce benefits. But as Kreps suggests, an acceptable option is "the possible postponement of the age of eligibility (for benefits)." At a minimum, payments into the system by those who otherwise would be getting benefits would reduce dependence on additional payroll taxes or general Treasury revenues.

"If compulsory retirement were eliminated," Kreps says, "the tax burden would be shared among a larger group of workers, while total taxes collected would need to cover benefits for a smaller group of beneficiaries."

Pepper admits that the problems of footing Social Security bills after the year 2000 might make it appropriate to start full Social Security benefits at age 68 instead of age 65.

For now, he understandably wants to concentrate on his bill to eliminate compulsory retirement at age 65. Equally logically, Kreps knows that it may take 18 to 20 years to phase in a new full-benefit age, and that it's not too early to start a public debate about it.

Both the Pepper Bill and Kreps' analysis make sense. Life expectancy at age 65 now averages 14 years for men, 18 years for women. Those for whom liesure, travel or other activities are important or desirable should be free to quit work at an early stage. But those who want to continue at their jobs should be encouraged to do so — for the financial strength that would add to the Social Security system, but above all, for themselves.

As that professor of English so painfully discovered, society hasn't yet found for the individual what Kreps calls "the functional equivalent of work."

Economic doubts cause stock's fall

New York (UPI) — The stock market fell to a 19-month low this week amid persistent investor concern over rising interest rates and fear the economy will slow down. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which plunged 17.59 points last week, lost another 7.62 points to 863.48, the lowest level since it closed at 858.71 on Jan. 2, 1976.

The closely watched average has dropped 59.94 points since July 22, when its latest upswing ended, and 141.17 points since the first of the year.

The New York Stock Exchange Common Stock Index shed 0.23 to 53.38 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, fell 0.27 to 97.51.

Declines routed advances, 1,073 to 683, among the 2,085 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big board volume totaled 97,847,230 shares, compared with 92,652,740 traded last week and 84,001,410 traded during the same week a year ago.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 114,173,760 shares, compared with 109,145,640 last week.

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.
It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.
The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.
Find out more about a whole new generation in copiers, call or write us today.
For $2,975,* it's the biggest bargain in plain paper copier history.

Mull is "Fernwood's" best asset

by Joan Hanauer

Martin Mull wrote a comedy album called "I'm Everyone I ever love," which just about sums up the character he now plays in "Fernwood 2-Night."

Mull, who had cut records and worked the night club circuit for seven years, suddenly became a familiar television face in millions of homes when he played the late wife-beater Garth Gimble on the late "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" show.

Norman Lear, who followed up his "MHs MH" soap opera spoof with this summer's "Fernwood 2-Night" take-off on talk shows, decided to bring Mull back as Garth's identical twin brother, Barth Gimble, and make him host of the show, using the same kind of tacky furniture on stage that Mull used in his night club act.

Promoting big business and tourism in Fernwood is the subject being discussed by cast members Tom Waits, Kenneth Mars, Martin Mull and Fred Willard (left to right) on "Fernwood Tonight" the five-times a week fictional talk-variety show.

"Barth Gimble is a character who almost totally lacks reflection, sensitivity, inner thought," Mull said, summing up the vastly egocentric character he plays. "He's also very avaricious. But he has that same redeeming quality that almost everyone has — given his limited supply of sensitivity and talent, his goal is to better his life without really meaning to hurt anybody."

Mull, who was raised in North Olmstead, Ohio, says that the show has gotten no great response from that state. There was an incident, however. On the premiere program they introduced a character who was stopped for speeding in Fernwood and asked to be on the program because he was Jewish, to give the folks in Fernwood what for some would be their first chance "to talk to a Jew."

"We used a '555' telephone exchange," Mull said. "Apparently that exchange is used by a Cincinnati hot line of some sort. They were beseiged with calls from people who wanted to talk to a Jew.

"There also were a lot of people who wanted to sign up for our no frills hospital plan. We don't operate until we have two or three patients with appendicitis. The surgery is performed by medical students who are in closed circuit television contact with an actual doctor at his golf course. It's so depressing for doctors to be around sick people all the time."

Multi-talented Martin Mull is host Barth Gimball on "Fernwood Tonight," the talk-show comedy spoof seen Monday through Friday at 10 p.m. on Channel 32.

Mull, who feels right at home in the semi-improvisational mood of "Fernwood 2-Night," in which he has more experience than the straight acting he had to do in "MH, MH," says the show has one great gimmick going for it.

"If everything is perfect, great. If the camera work is blurry or the show is boring in spots, well, that's just what you might expect of a show originating in Fernwood, Ohio. If we're dull, people think we're doing it on purpose.

Marty Feldman

Where was Marty Feldman born, and how did he get started in show business?
S.W.

Marty, who hails from Canning Town in the East End of London, once tried careers in painting and poetry. But, he says, "my pictures were terrible," and "my poems earned nothing." From there he graduated to Music Halls with a comedy trio. Later he became a staff comedy writer for the BBC, creating shows with titles such as "Bootsie and Snudge."

Americans were first exposed to Feldman's humor when he served as a regular on "Dean Martin Presents the Golddiggers." He had his own show, "The Marty Feldman Comedy Machine," a few years back. Since then he has graced the screen in "Young Frankenstein" and "Silent Movie."

Cheryl Ladd

Would you please print something about Cheryl Ladd, Charlie's new Angel? Please give her address, too. Thanks. D.P.

You're welcome. Cheryl, who this fall will earn her wings as Jill's younger sister, Kris Munroe, is not a newcomer to television. Seven years ago she landed a job as a singing voice in the Hanna-Barbera cartoon series "Josie and the Pussycats." Since then, she has racked up over 100 TV commercials and has appeared in several series.

Cheryl was born and raised in Huron, South Dakota, and has been married for four years to actor David Alan Ladd (son of the late actor Alan Ladd).

You can write to her (as well as the other "Angels") in care of ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027.

Marty Feldman

Where was Marty Feldman born, and how did he get started in show business?
S.W.

Marty, who hails from Canning Town in the East End of London, once tried careers in painting and poetry. But, he says, "my pictures were terrible," and "my poems earned nothing." From there he graduated to Music Halls with a comedy trio. Later he became a staff comedy writer for the BBC, creating shows with titles such as "Bootsie and Snudge."

Americans were first exposed to Feldman's humor when he served as a regular on "Dean Martin Presents the Golddiggers." He had his own show, "The Marty Feldman Comedy Machine," a few years back. Since then he has graced the screen in "Young Frankenstein" and "Silent Movie."

Cheryl Ladd

Would you please print something about Cheryl Ladd, Charlie's new Angel? Please give her address, too. Thanks. D.P.

You're welcome. Cheryl, who this fall will earn her wings as Jill's younger sister, Kris Munroe, is not a newcomer to television. Seven years ago she landed a job as a singing voice in the Hanna-Barbera cartoon series "Josie and the Pussycats." Since then, she has racked up over 100 TV commercials and has appeared in several series.

Cheryl was born and raised in Huron, South Dakota, and has been married for four years to actor David Alan Ladd (son of the late actor Alan Ladd).

You can write to her (as well as the other "Angels") in care of ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027.

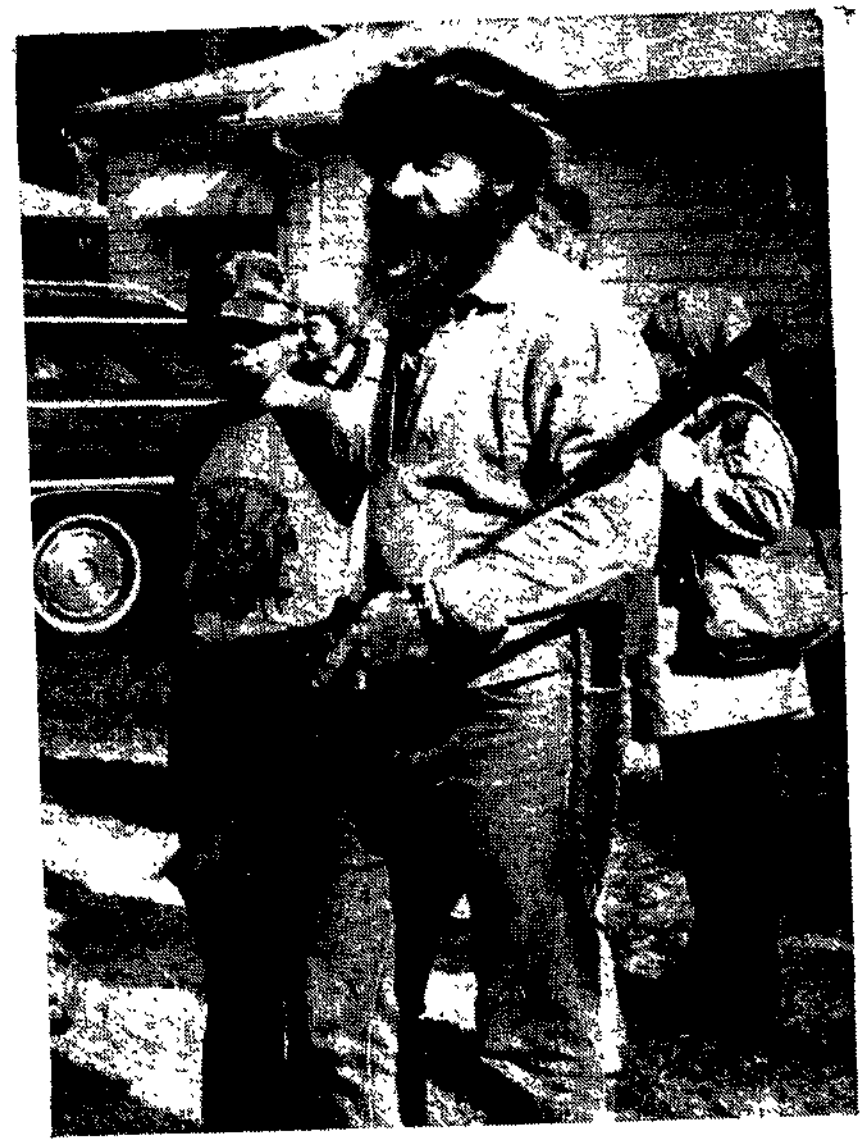
Burgoo serves up pioneer hospitality

Story and photos by Dorothy Oliver



UTICA, ILL. You can smell it as you round the bend into this small, population 800, town of Utica. An aroma ever so tantalizing — a cross between a hearty stew, chicken soup and a juicy pot roast.

In cauldrons fit for the Wicked Witch of the West simmers the burgoo, a sticks-to-the-ribs meal that is as old as its legends.

They say it's a soup but the thick, gravy colored mixture of beef, chicken, vegetables and potatoes looks more like a stew on its second serving with its hunks of meat cooked down to tender morsels and nary a whole potato remaining.

About 10,000 people turn up each year for Utica's burgoo festival. It takes about 150 volunteers, some working through the night, to stage the annual event and that doesn't count the artists and craftsmen who line the streets and storefronts selling their creations or demonstrating soapmaking, quilting and the like.

Constance Fetzer brought the idea for the burgoo with her when she came to Utica in 1965 to work with the LaSalle County historical Museum. Ms. Feltzer, currently executive assistant of the museum, came from downstate Illinois near New Salem where little country churches held burgoos yearly to raise money for their projects.

Holding a burgoo to raise needed dollars for the county museum seemed like a natural and eight years ago the first was staged. Whatever proceeds are raised (You would be disappointed to know how little we raise," said Ms. Fetzer) are directed to the museum, which holds the history of the county in its assembled documents, maps and displays.

One of the projects the historical society took on was the renovation of the town's original blacksmith shop that was in continuous use until the owner died about six years ago. The burgoo provides nearly the entire operating budget for the museum, which has an impressive collection of maps, family papers dating back 100 years and Indian and pioneer artifacts.

Townsfolk are quick to remind you that part of the historical significance of the region is religious as it was just south and west of Utica where Father Marquette gathered the Indians and said the first Christian service in Illinois.

Although the museum is heavily trafficed during the festival the focal point of the day is the row of rendering tubs wherein simmers the burgoo. Food is purchased by the crate, barrel and ton for the mixture, that was a staple in this country during pioneer days — a meal designed to feed a crowd.

One old timer stirring a kettle maintained that the German settlers can be credited with inventing the dish. Another argues it came from the old Country with the German immigrants and was traditionally served after a house or barn raising. Ms. Fetzer says burgoo came to Illinois from the hill country of Tennessee and Kentucky and that its name is French, meaning both the stew and the community event.

"It's more than food," she said. "It's a fellowship thing, a community thing and a historical thing."

The people of Utica make the most of this day. Everyone from Phil Bailey, Civil Defense Director for LaSalle County, to high school students join in to stir the mixture, serve and clean-up afterwards. The town takes up the pioneer spirit at the festival. Ladies from all over the county bring in a full range of handmade crafts to sell and some sit in little booths tatting, stringing tiny beeds into flowers or spinning for the tourists.

Preparations begin at 6 p.m. the night before when the cast-iron kettles are prepared to cook the feast. At 9 p.m. the first of the ingredients — the beef — goes in the pot. Two hours later the potatoes are added and from there on, until the last morsel is emptied the stirrers take over.

Tim Huey comes each year to Utica from Arenzville, Ill., an even smaller town about 250 miles south of Chicago near Springfield. Huey is a burgoo expert, an organizer of Arenzville's annual festival, and one of the chief cooks in Utica. He glosses over the contents of the soup, or stew, saying only that it contains beef, potatoes, carrots, onions, celery, cabbage, tomatoes, corn, chicken, salt, pepper and "other items."

"The recipe is a secret that you don't spread around. A guy 75 years old taught me how to make it and I don't know who taught him. The big thing is to keep the stuff moving around," he said. Pointing to the row of men and boys gently rotating long wooden stirrers through the big cauldrons, he added, "Burgoo has to have the right consistency. You have to stir it through the night to keep it from getting scorched and you have to add things just at the right time so it won't be runny or too thick."

Arenzville has had its burgoo for about 100 years, Huey said. "The event originated in Arenzville. Our town has about 450 people and we had about 10,000 come for the burgoo. There are lots of little burgoos in Southern Illinois. There's one big one at Chandlerville and ours." I come here to Utica just to help out, for the fellowship of it."

Two-hundred fifty gallons are cooked up in Utica, located about an hour and a half west of here. The stew is complimented by bread and butter, cole slaw, beverage and a homemade dessert. Visitors are charged $3 for adults and $1.25 for children for the meal. The festival is annually held on the second Sunday in October. "It's a high color time in this area," said Ms. Fetzer referring to the fall splendor that descends around the rolling Western Illinois countryside. Many tourists stop at Starved Rock State Park, just outside of Utica, staying in the lodge there and make a weekend out of the festival.

Arenzville's festival is annually held on the Wednesday and Thursday following Labor Day, this year Sept. 7 and 8. In addition to the hearty food entertainment is provided with a bingo stand operating both days and nightly shows. Wednesday will feature bagpipers, barbershop quartets and a local group, "Two For The Show Trio." Thursday will bring the Country Western Johnny Carver Show and a teen dance. Twenty-two, 50-gallon kettles will be on the fire in Arenzville with proceeds going to the Arenzville Community Club, Anti-Theft Assn. and the American Legion for community projects.

Chandlerville, Ill., located about 15 miles north of Arenzville, will hold its Burgoo Day from 11 a.m. to midnight Aug. 27. Smaller burgoos are held throughout Southern Illinois. Contact the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development, Office of Tourism for more information. §

You have to stir it through the night to keep it from getting scorched and you have to add things just at the right time so it won't be runny or too thick."

Arenzville has had its burgoo for about 100 years, Huey said. "The event originated in Arenzville. Our town has about 450 people and we had about 10,000 come for the burgoo. There are lots of little burgoos in Southern Illinois. There's one big one at Chandlerville and ours." I come here to Utica just to help out, for the fellowship of it."

Two-hundred fifty gallons are cooked up in Utica, located about an hour and a half west of here. The stew is complimented by bread and butter, cole slaw, beverage and a homemade dessert. Visitors are charged $3 for adults and $1.25 for children for the meal. The festival is annually held on the second Sunday in October. "It's a high color time in this area," said Ms. Fetzer referring to the fall splendor that descends around the rolling Western Illinois countryside. Many tourists stop at Starved Rock State Park, just outside of Utica, staying in the lodge there and make a weekend out of the festival.

Arenzville's festival is annually held on the Wednesday and Thursday following Labor Day, this year Sept. 7 and 8. In addition to the hearty food entertainment is provided with a bingo stand operating both days and nightly shows. Wednesday will feature bagpipers, barbershop quartets and a local group, "Two For The Show Trio." Thursday will bring the Country Western Johnny Carver Show and a teen dance. Twenty-two, 50-gallon kettles will be on the fire in Arenzville with proceeds going to the Arenzville Community Club, Anti-Theft Assn. and the American Legion for community projects.

Chandlerville, Ill., located about 15 miles north of Arenzville, will hold its Burgoo Day from 11 a.m. to midnight Aug. 27. Smaller burgoos are held throughout Southern Illinois. Contact the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development, Office of Tourism for more information. §

A dog's life: tender loving care and healthy meals produce a canine paradise in Downstate Illinois

KANKAKEE, ILL. One hundred and ninety acres of rolling, green, scenic land in Kankakee has literally gone to the dogs, but kennel life for the four-legged residents here couldn't be better.

After all, what Fido could complain about having his own indoor-outdoor kennel, room service, free medical care and house cleaning, and only be asked in return to eat well-balanced meals and let your servers know how you like it?

That's the principle behind the Gaines Dog Research Center where 550 purebred canines of twenty-seven different varieties daily earn their keep.

The center, which opened in 1951 and expanded in 1974, has the sole purpose of testing Gaines dog food products on the "panel of experts" housed here to determine if the food is nutritionally balanced, meets government standards and, most important, is tasty and appetizing to dogs.

"It's quite an active place," Dr. Merl Parlin, chief veterinarian at the center, said. "Dog food is unique in that we need dogs to test it and that's the reason for the center."

A wide variety of food testing is done daily at the center, 60 miles south of Chicago, with the help of the thirty-eight staff members headed by Willard Vollink, manager of the center. Government standards require a constant check of the quality of dog food as well as proof that claims of "new and improved" or "totally balanced meal" be true.

For nutrition tests, six dogs are selected and given complete physical examinations to make sure they are in top condition. Food is weighed and dogs fed once a day. They are allowed to eat as much as they want and a record is kept of how much they consume.

The test is run for 26 weeks during which time the dog's condition is constantly monitored. He is weighed weekly and blood tests are taken every two months. After the 26 week period, each dog again receives a complete physical to determine if the food he has been eating has indeed provided him a well-balanced diet.

Tests are also done on pregnant dogs to make sure Gaines products provide them with adequate nutrition. Similar procedures as the nutritional testing are followed and final results must show that 75 per cent of the females' one-day old puppies have survived through six weeks.

Puppies also are kept and tested to determine their growth rate and health from six to 16 weeks when they are then graduated to kennel life.

Preference or acceptance tests use a cross section of dogs who are merely given two types of food and monitored to see which they prefer. Data from this test is fed to a computer for results.

Flavor selection tests are done to make sure a dog can truly pick out his favorite flavor, be it beef, liver or cheese.

The center also studies generations of dogs to determine how the dog food products affect animals through blood lines. All the testing is aimed at improving the general health of dogs as well as their life expectancy.

Purebred dogs are used because their growth and weight is predictable and at the Gaines center, beagles are easily in the majority.

"We have gradually changed over to beagles because they have become the standard lab dog in universities and other places where dog testing is done," Dr. Parlin said. "Beagles are also easy to get and they are by far the most easy dog to take care of and they have a good disposition."

Dr. Parlin said most of the dogs at the center are short-haired and of the sporting variety. "Some animals do better in a house environment because they tend to associate more with one master or family," he said. "The German shepherd and dobermans are more like that. The hunting breeds do much better in this (research center) type of environment."

He added that short-haired dogs are preferred because they require less grooming than long-haired dogs. Yet the center does have one miniature poodle and a rough collie in its "colony," as Dr. Parlin refers to the center.

Any type of dog is suitable for test purposes, Dr. Parlin said. "There's as much difference between individual dogs within a

He added that short-haired dogs are preferred because they require less grooming than long-haired dogs. Yet the center does have one miniature poodle and a rough collie in its "colony," as Dr. Parlin refers to the center.

Any type of dog is suitable for test purposes, Dr. Parlin said. "There's as much difference between individual dogs within a breed as there is between breeds," he said.

The dog's health is of paramount concern at the center and each canine receives excellent medical care. Clinical labs with sophisticated equipment are the backbone of the center's medical facilities.

Dogs are watched daily for any signs of lethargy or illness and each receives at least a twice yearly physical, a yearly booster immunization and grooming and bathing as needed.

The "cold wet nose" theory of a healthy dog is "a good omen but I wouldn't rely on it," Dr. Parlin said.

The dogs live in kennels which include a 3 foot by 5 foot indoor pen with a swinging door to allow them to go outside to their 3 foot by 14 foot kennel run. Puppies are kept in a separate kennel area.

The kennels are heated by radiant heating in the walls and floor of each pen and each kennel is cleaned twice daily.

First aid is the biggest medical problem at the center, Dr. Parlin said, and occasionally dogs must be assigned new kennels if they cannot get along with their neighbor. Some canines are double-runned or placed two in a kennel if they are compatible.

Each dog is a registered AKC purebred with a registered name but at the center, identity is based on a number.

Many of the dogs have informal names which some of the employes give them because everyone has their favorite," Dr. Parlin added, "but for testing purposes, we refer to them by number."

Gaines is the leading dog food manufacturer of soft-moist food, Dr. Parlin said, but within the last year the company has entered the canned dog food market with its Cycle brand dog food.

The Cycle food, which is made in four categories for puppies, adults, older dogs and overweight dogs, took about three years to develop, Dr. Parlin said, and all the testing for the product was done at the research center.

Dr. Parlin admits that although dog food testing is the major work at the center, human taste preferences cannot be ignored in the dog food industry.

"We are selling to both the human and the dog," he said. "The dog has to like it but we also have to please the owner who buys the food, too."

Dr. Parlin said there is enough space at the center for future expansion if needed. "We have a lot of dogs but it seems like I'm always asking for more," he said.

The center's work is important because pets are an integral part of many families, he added. "More dogs are better taken care of today than ever before," he said.

And if you've got to live the dog's life, the people at Gaines are doing their best to make it enjoyable and healthy for both their product users and their product testers in Kankakee. §

movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments. Films reviewed by Genie Campbell are rated excellent, four stars; good, three stars; fair, two stars; and poor, one star.

"New York, New York" — He is a selfish saxophone player, she is a bright young singer in the big band era immediately following World War II. It is an ill-fated love story but director Martin Scorcese rarely allows the jazz-driven pace to falter. Great performances by Robert De Niro and Liza Minnelli among cardboard sets and golden glows that evoke the fashions and mood of the 1940s. ★★★

"The Spy Who Loved Me" — Roger Moore returns as 007 in a lavishly budgeted, rousingly constructed comic book come-to-life film. This time, Moore joins forces with a svelte Russian agent to quash Curt Jurgen's plans for world destruction. (PG). ★★½

"One on One" — Robby Benson co-wrote and stars in this college basketball story, a kind of "Rocky" on the courts, in which good guys finish first and love conquers all. The story doesn't have to be believed to be enjoyed, and the appealing performances help. (PG).

"Sorcerer" — Big, colorful, but impersonal suspense thriller about four outcasts trucking nitroglycerine through a South American jungle. Roy Scheider gives a strong performance, the visual effects are vividly convincing, and the tension groans to hair-raising proportions. But director William Friedkin forgets to clearly unravel the story as he manipulates your pulse. (PG). ★★★

"Star Wars" — Director George Lucas (American Graffiti") pulled out all stops in mounting this space fantasy about intergalactic warfare, and the dazzling filmmaking, technical wizardry and rousing adventure make for one of the most spectacular entertainments of this or any other year. Not a heavy, heady "2001" trip, it aims to entertain, and the sky is the limit. (PG). ★★★★

"The Last Remake of Beau Geste" — Marty Feldman directed and co-wrote this wildly uneven but funny send-up of Hollywood's Foreign Legion sagas. Essentially a string of gags and set pieces in the Mel Brooks vein, the film starts marvelously but progressively loses steam. (PG). ★★½

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments. Films reviewed by Genie Campbell are rated excellent, four stars; good, three stars; fair, two stars; and poor, one star.

"New York, New York" — He is a selfish saxophone player, she is a bright young singer in the big band era immediately following World War II. It is an ill-fated love story but director Martin Scorcese rarely allows the jazz-driven pace to falter. Great performances by Robert De Niro and Liza Minnelli among cardboard sets and golden glows that evoke the fashions and mood of the 1940s. ★★★

"The Spy Who Loved Me" — Roger Moore returns as 007 in a lavishly budgeted, rousingly constructed comic book come-to-life film. This time, Moore joins forces with a svelte Russian agent to quash Curt Jurgen's plans for world destruction. (PG). ★★½

"One on One" — Robby Benson co-wrote and stars in this college basketball story, a kind of "Rocky" on the courts, in which good guys finish first and love conquers all. The story doesn't have to be believed to be enjoyed, and the appealing performances help. (PG).

"Sorcerer" — Big, colorful, but impersonal suspense thriller about four outcasts trucking nitroglycerine through a South American jungle. Roy Scheider gives a strong performance, the visual effects are vividly convincing, and the tension groans to hair-raising proportions. But director William Friedkin forgets to clearly unravel the story as he manipulates your pulse. (PG). ★★★

"Star Wars" — Director George Lucas (American Graffiti") pulled out all stops in mounting this space fantasy about intergalactic warfare, and the dazzling filmmaking, technical wizardry and rousing adventure make for one of the most spectacular entertainments of this or any other year. Not a heavy, heady "2001" trip, it aims to entertain, and the sky is the limit. (PG). ★★★★

"The Last Remake of Beau Geste" — Marty Feldman directed and co-wrote this wildly uneven but funny send-up of Hollywood's Foreign Legion sagas. Essentially a string of gags and set pieces in the Mel Brooks vein, the film starts marvelously but progressively loses steam. (PG). ★★½

ARLINGTON — Arlington Heights — 255-2125 — "MacArthur" (PG).
CATLOW — Barrington — 381-0777 — "One on One" (PG).
MOUNT PROSPECT CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-7070 — Theater 1: "Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo" (G); Theater 2: "Star Wars" (PG).
DES PLAINES — Des Plaines — 824-5253 — "Murder by Death" (PG) plus "Lords of Flatbush" (PG).
ELK GROVE — Elk Grove Village — 593-2255 — "The Deep" (PG).
GOLF MILL — Niles — 296-4500 — Theater 1: "Fire Sale" (PG); Theater 2: "The Spy Who Loved Me" (PG); Theater 3: "Smokey and the Bandit" (PG).
PALWAUKEE MOVIES — Prospect Heights — 541-7530 — "One on One" (PG).
PROSPECT — Mount Prospect — 253-7435 — "The Deep" (PG).
RANDHURST CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-9393 — "The Last Remake of Beau Geste" (PG).
TRADEWINDS CINEMAS — Hanover Park — 289-6707 — Theater 1: "Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo" (G); Theater 2: "Smokey and the Bandit" (PG).
WILLOW CREEK — Palatine — 358-1155 — "The Spy Who Loved Me" (PG).
WOODFIELD — Schaumburg — 882-1620 — Theater 1: "March or Die" (PG); Theater 2: "Other Side of Midnight" (R).

Thoughts on a Mattress

What's in a name? "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet" is a famous quotation.

In mattresses, the magic name is "Orthopedic."

Did you ever ask yourself what an Orthopedic mattress is? Apparently, the Government experts couldn't figure it out either. A few years ago the Federal Trade Commission made the mattress manufacturers stop using the term "Orthopedic" on their mattresses and in their advertising.

So the big mattress makers started calling their mattresses, "This-A-Pedic," "That-A-Pedic," "Whose-A-Pedic," "What's-A-Pedic" — I guess they figured a mattress by any other name would smell as sweet!

We think our customers might like to name their own mattresses. If they want a glamorous mattress, we'll call it "Cleopatra." If they want a sexy mattress, we'll call it "Marilyn." If they want a famous orthopedic type mattress, we'll call it "Doctor Ortho." If they just want a famous name, we'll call it Napoleon, or Joan of Arc, or Einstein.

Whatever they call it, we will still make it with the same quality materials and careful workmanship that we put into all of our mattresses. We still think the first requirement of a good mattress is to give a comfortable night's sleep.

Joie de vivre dans les Laurentides

The good life in the Laurentians

Quebec's four seasons playground is a short hop from Montreal via l'autoroute

by Katherine Rodeghier

VILLE D'ESTEREL, CANADA — When you think of the Canadian countryside what images pop into your mind?

Do you see a tall, burly man sporting a cap, beard and red checked woolen shirt?

Or do you recall scenes from beer advertisements where sky blue waters and stately pines conjure up a thirst for the great outdoors?

If either of those two images flash into your head then you already have some idea what the Laurentian Mountains are like. The fellow in the red checked shirt would be at home here on these rugged wooded mountain slopes just an hour or two north of Montreal in the French-speaking province of Quebec.

But the Laurentians are more than just picturesque lake and mountain scenery, they are one of Canada's most popular resort areas, filled with hundreds of vacation accommodations from rustic back woods cabins to sprawling luxury resorts.

And the Laurentians are a vacation destination for all seasons: there are autumn color tours, ski weekends and special tennis weeks during the summer months. During warm weather there's golf and all manner of water sports and at various times of the year camping, hunting and fishing are popular activities for sportsmen and nature lovers.

The Laurentians are just 20 minutes from Mirabel International Airport located in the foothills of these mountains and almost all the resorts in the Laurentians are less than a two-hour-drive from Montreal or just minutes away by light aircraft.

After the lively atmosphere of Canada's largest city, a retreat to these nearby mountains is a relaxing and refreshing change of pace. The Laurentians are one of the oldest mountain chains in the world, dating to the Pre-Cambrian geologic age. Worn down over the years by wind and water the area is dotted with rivers, streams and lakes carved out by Ice Age glaciers. The tallest of the mountains in this range is Johannsen which towers 3,150 feet.

Just about every known type of summer sport is enjoyed here including one brand new one making its debut this summer. It's surf/sailing using a surf-board or water ski contraption that has been rigged with a sail. In addition to sports, summer also means festivals, carnivals and excursions on the rivers.

In autumn the mountains are laid with a blanket of brilliant colors. Golds and orange hues light up the forests making walking tours through these tunnels of trees an exhilarating experience. Hunters and fishermen come here in throngs for sporting vacations.

And in the winter snow is king of the hills and the vehicle for all sorts of winter sports from skiing to snow shoeing to sleigh rides. A number of international competitions are held here each winter and good ski conditions are virtually guaranteed since these slopes receive an average annual snow fall of 120 inches.

And in the spring the Laurentians come back to life as millions of trees sprout new buds and the hills are covered with wild flowers. This is "sugaring off" time when the sap runs from the maple trees to be captured and made into delicious maple syrups and candies.

Throughout the region there are villages with interesting French names. There are wooden houses, farms and covered bridges. Parks and nature reserves in these mountains offer room and board in charming French Quebec inns. There are also plenty of housekeeping cottages and sites for camping. The roster of outdoor recreation in these parks usually includes hiking, mountain climbing, swimming, canoeing, and in the winter there's cross country skiing. Hunting and fishing licenses may be obtained from outfitters, at government offices, sporting goods stores and game wardens.

One of the most enjoyable ways to explore these mountains is on your own by automobile. The Government of Quebec Ministry of Tourism has mapped out several different tours of the area most of which begin in Montreal.

One itinerary takes vacationers to the town of Saint-Jerome, known as the gateway to the Laurentians. The town and surrounding areas were developed by the famed parish priest Antoine Labelle. This legendary figure stood six feet tall and weighed in at 333 pounds and his dream was to open up a new country from north to west and as far as the Pacific. In Saint-Jerome attractions include parachuting at Sainte-Marie airport, horseback riding, snowmobiling, and curling.

Next on the itinerary is Sainte-Adele, a particularly active resort center, and the Village de Seraphin, a reconstructed early era village with about a dozen typical French Canadian style homes. Scenic attractions include a hill-top panorama of Sainte-Adele and a bridge over Chemin du Sauvage that has a cantilever structure unique in North America. Nearby Val-David has a museum of antiques including vintage cars and antique tools. The rocky escarpments marking the landscape in this area bear witness to the strong glacial erosion in these mountains.

Sainte-Agathe-des-Monts, known as the Metropolis of the Laurentians, is farther along the route. Here visitors take a chairlift up the mountains for a scenic panorama of the area. This is a popular ski area and on the second weekend of September there is an internationally recognized automobile rally.

Near the end of this itinerary is Mont-Tremblant Park which was established in 1894. The park was named for a legend that has been kept alive in the area. A group of Indians went hunting on the mountain, so the story goes, and after partaking of a meal they sat to rest on the ground. They heard the noise from streams tumbling down from the mountains and had the impression that the earth was trembling. Mont-Tremblant Park contains some 965 lakes, seven rivers and innumerable waterfalls and streams and the area is renowned as a ski centre.

Another itinerary takes tourists to the town of Lachute where woolen mills are the major industry. The falls on the Riviere du Nord which slice through the center of town give the community its name. Recreational activities in the area include golf on two eighteen-hole courses and two-nine-hole courses, horseback riding, alpine and cross country skiing. Another town on the route is Joliette, named for its founder who was a descendant of the explorer of the Mississippi River. The area contains industrial, commercial and farming communities and is famed for its production of tobacco.

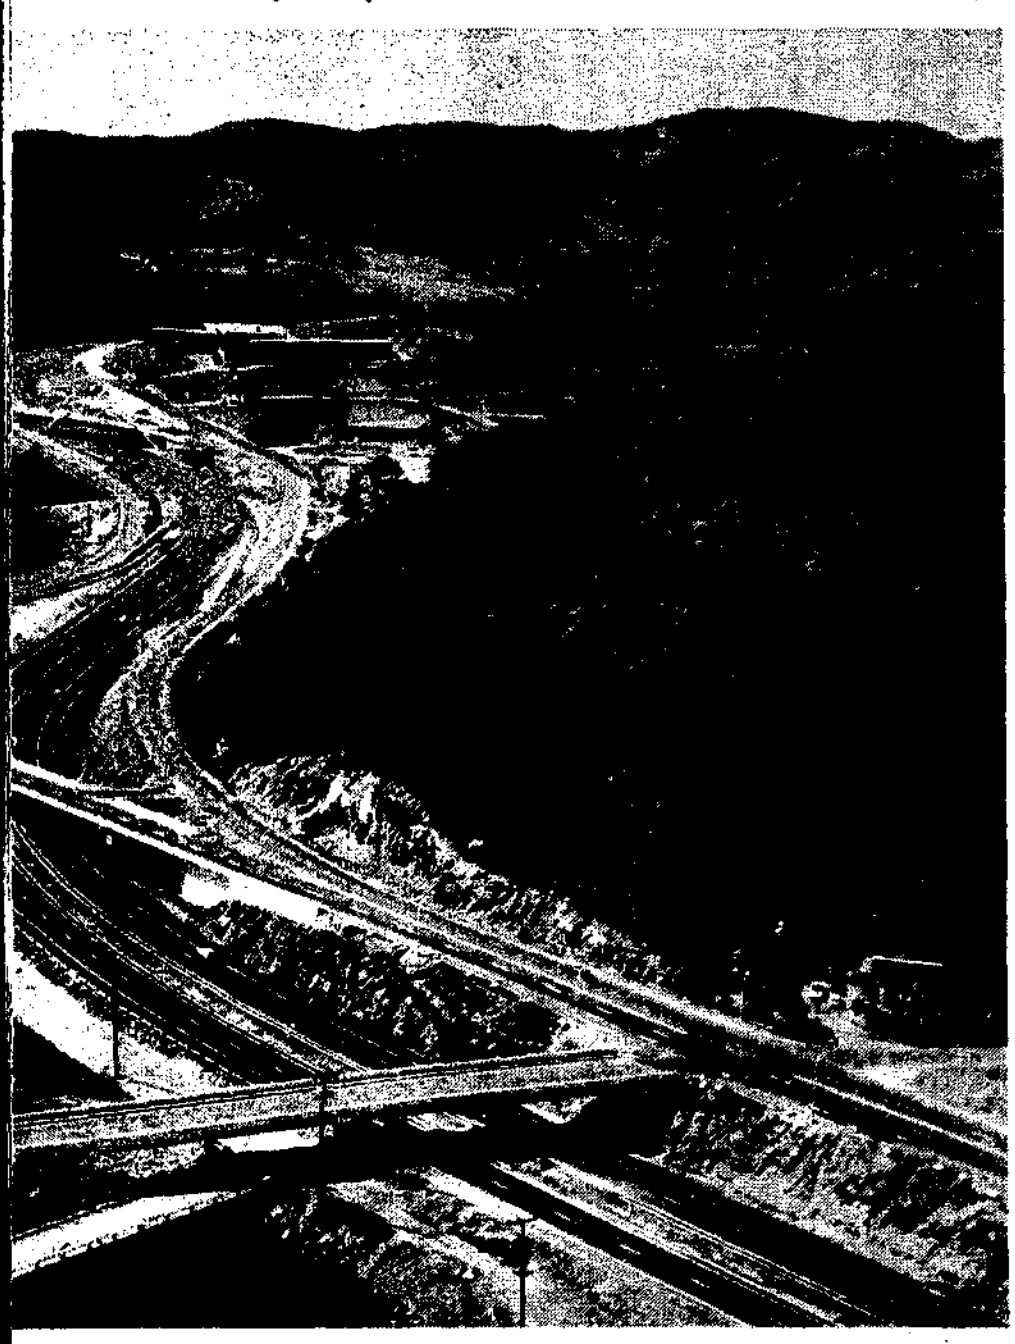
Other attractions in the Laurentians which are worthy of note are the Papineau Estate in Montebellow and the Papineau-Labelle Reserve.

Louis-Joseph Papineau was a leader of the revolt of the Patriots in 1837 in Canada. He was sent into exile and returned years later to build the manor which still exists today in a setting of century old trees. The manor is open to the public Wednesdays through Sundays at no admission charge. The Papineau-LaBelle reserve, located in the geological region of Grenville, overlooks the Montreal-Ottawa clay plains. Moraines and glacial deposits are present throughout the reserve and the area is covered with yellow birch. In the summer the reserve offers tourists canoe-camping on 75-mile circuits, fishing and hiking and in the winter snowmobiling is popular.

The attractions and accommodations in these mountains are so varied that a number of different types of vacations can be planned. In addition to camping in the province's parks and reserves families can rent family vacation cottages or share accommodations in private homes. Farm vacations are also popular in this region. Farm dwellers open their homes to visitors at reasonable rates and offer a variety of meal plans.



But this region is most well known for its year round resorts. Packed into this 40-square mile area is the greatest concentration of resort hotels in Canada. Between Montreal and the Saint-Jovite area there are close to 200 hotels and motels offering more than 4,500 rooms.

There are more than twenty golf courses and innumerable tennis courts. There is also a flying club in the Laurentians. There's sky diving, chairlift rides, antique and handicraft shops for browsing and summer theater. And tourists in these resorts dine on some of the finest food in Canada. The Laurentians are very proud of their reputation of "Home of Gastronomie Internationale" and several of the resorts have employed famous chefs from around the world to delight the palate of their guests.

One such resort is L'Esterel situated 51 miles north of Montreal in the heart of the Laurentian Mountains near the town of Ville D'Esterel. The resort's cuisine is under the watchful direction of Gold Medallist Chef Rudi Schneider, a graduate of the Berne School of Hostelry in Berne, Switzerland. Chef Rudi has a long list of culinary awards attached to his name but nothing is more a testimony to his culinary art than the bountiful luncheon buffet spread before guests at L'Esterel. It's a meal fit for a king featuring hearty main dishes, seafood salad, and fruit and vegetable salads, topped off by a tempting selection of French pastry delights.

L'Esterel sits on the shore of Lac Dupuis giving guests a view that's straight out of a beer advertisement. The clean, clear lake is accented by tiny islands overgrown with pines and it is rimmed by lush green forests creeping up the slopes of the mountains.

L'Esterel has an intriguing background. During the 1920s Baron Louis d'Empain of Belgium decided to invest some of his fortune in Canada and chose this site because the beauty of the autumn leaves reminded him of the sun setting over a range of mountains in the south of France. The Baron planned to build a hotel, stables, shopping center and Yacht Club but was forced to terminate construction when World War II was declared. All was forgotten until one day in the summer of 1958 when industrialist Fridolin Simard was piloting his plane toward Montreal. The control tower radioed a storm warning advising the aircraft to seek refuge elsewhere. Simard brought the plane down on the site and spent the night in the Baron's old stables. He saw a map of the region on the wall and noticed that the estate was for sale. Today Simard is president and owner of L'Esterel.

L'Esterel lies in a 5,000-acre estate of mountains, forests and lakes. It has an indoor heated swimming pool and whirlpool framed by a large picture window overlooking the outdoor sun deck and lake. There are sauna baths, game rooms, a nine-hole golf course, three floodlit tennis courts, and two lounges with dancing every evening to a live orchestra.

Summer activities at the resort include water sports such as swimming, pedal boating and sailing plus badminton, horseback riding, and summer theater. Organized sightseeing tours in the mountain area are also available. In winter the resort has a ski school and a cross country skiing program on 25 miles of groomed trails. The trails also give access to the famed Maple Leaf Trail which covers a vast area in the Laurentians. Snowmobiling is also popular and snowmobiles can be rented by the hour. Skates are at the disposal of guests free of charge and snowshoes can also be borrowed. There are organized evening sleigh rides.

Daily rates range from $27 to $39 per person per night based on double occupancy including breakfast and dinner. A five-night plan with ten meals ranges from $119 to $173. There are also special Alpine ski plans, tennis plans and golf plans.

Another fine resort is Villa Bellevue in the town of Mont Tremblant near Mont-Tremblant Park. The resort is situated on Lake Ouimet and has been owned and operated by the Dubois family since 1920. Villa Bellevue offers French and continental cuisine, dancing, weekend entertainment, and recreational activities including sailing, canoeing, water skiing, excursion cruises, badminton, volleyball, bicycling, mountain hiking, tennis and skiing. From 1 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. children's activities are provided free and are under the supervision of the hotel counselor.

Villa Bellevue offers a variety of accommodation plans. There's a two-floor mezzanine suite with living room, bedroom and private bath that ranges from $28.50 to $38.50 daily depending on the meal plan. Other motel and hotel and housekeeping units range from $19 to $33 depending on the meal plan. A six night plan is also available with rates ranging from $100.50 to $215.50.

Mont Gabriel is one of the resorts closest to Montreal. Just 39 miles from the city the resort sits on the top of a mountain with a panoramic view of the Laurentians. Mont Gabriel is best known for its skiing on eighteen slopes equipped with eight T-bars, a double chairlift and triple chairlift. Alpine and cross country skiing are featured along with ice skating and sleigh rides.

Daily rates at Mont Gabriel including breakfast and dinner range from $28 to $40.50 per person based on double occupancy. A special ski week package features six nights accommodation, breakfasts and dinners, ski lessons, use of T-bars and chairlifts, and barbecue lunch on the slopes ranging in price from $195 to $240 per person based on double occupancy.

Another famous resort in the Laurentians is the Gray Rocks Inn near St. Jovite. The resort is situated on a 2,000-acre estate with a private landing strip on the premises. There's an eighteen-hole golf course, fourteen tennis courts and free supervised children's programs.

During the summer Gray Rocks holds week-long tennis programs lead by tennis pros. Weekly rates start at $146 per person and the tennis week is an extra $135. The tennis package includes 20 hours of instruction with one instructor per four players, three hours of lectures and films, use of the fourteen courts, and a welcome and farewell party.

Accommodations at several of the resorts in the Laurentians can be reserved by calling toll free — 800-225-2550. Information on the Laurentians is available from the Quebec Tourist Office, 72 W. Adams St., Chicago 60603, telephone 726-0681 and from the Canadian Government Office of Tourism, 332 S. Michigan Ave., Room 410, Chicago 60604, telephone 782-3760.§

courses, horseback riding, alpine and cross country skiing. Another town on the route is Joliette, named for its founder who was a descendant of the explorer of the Mississippi River. The area contains industrial, commercial and farming communities and is famed for its production of tobacco.

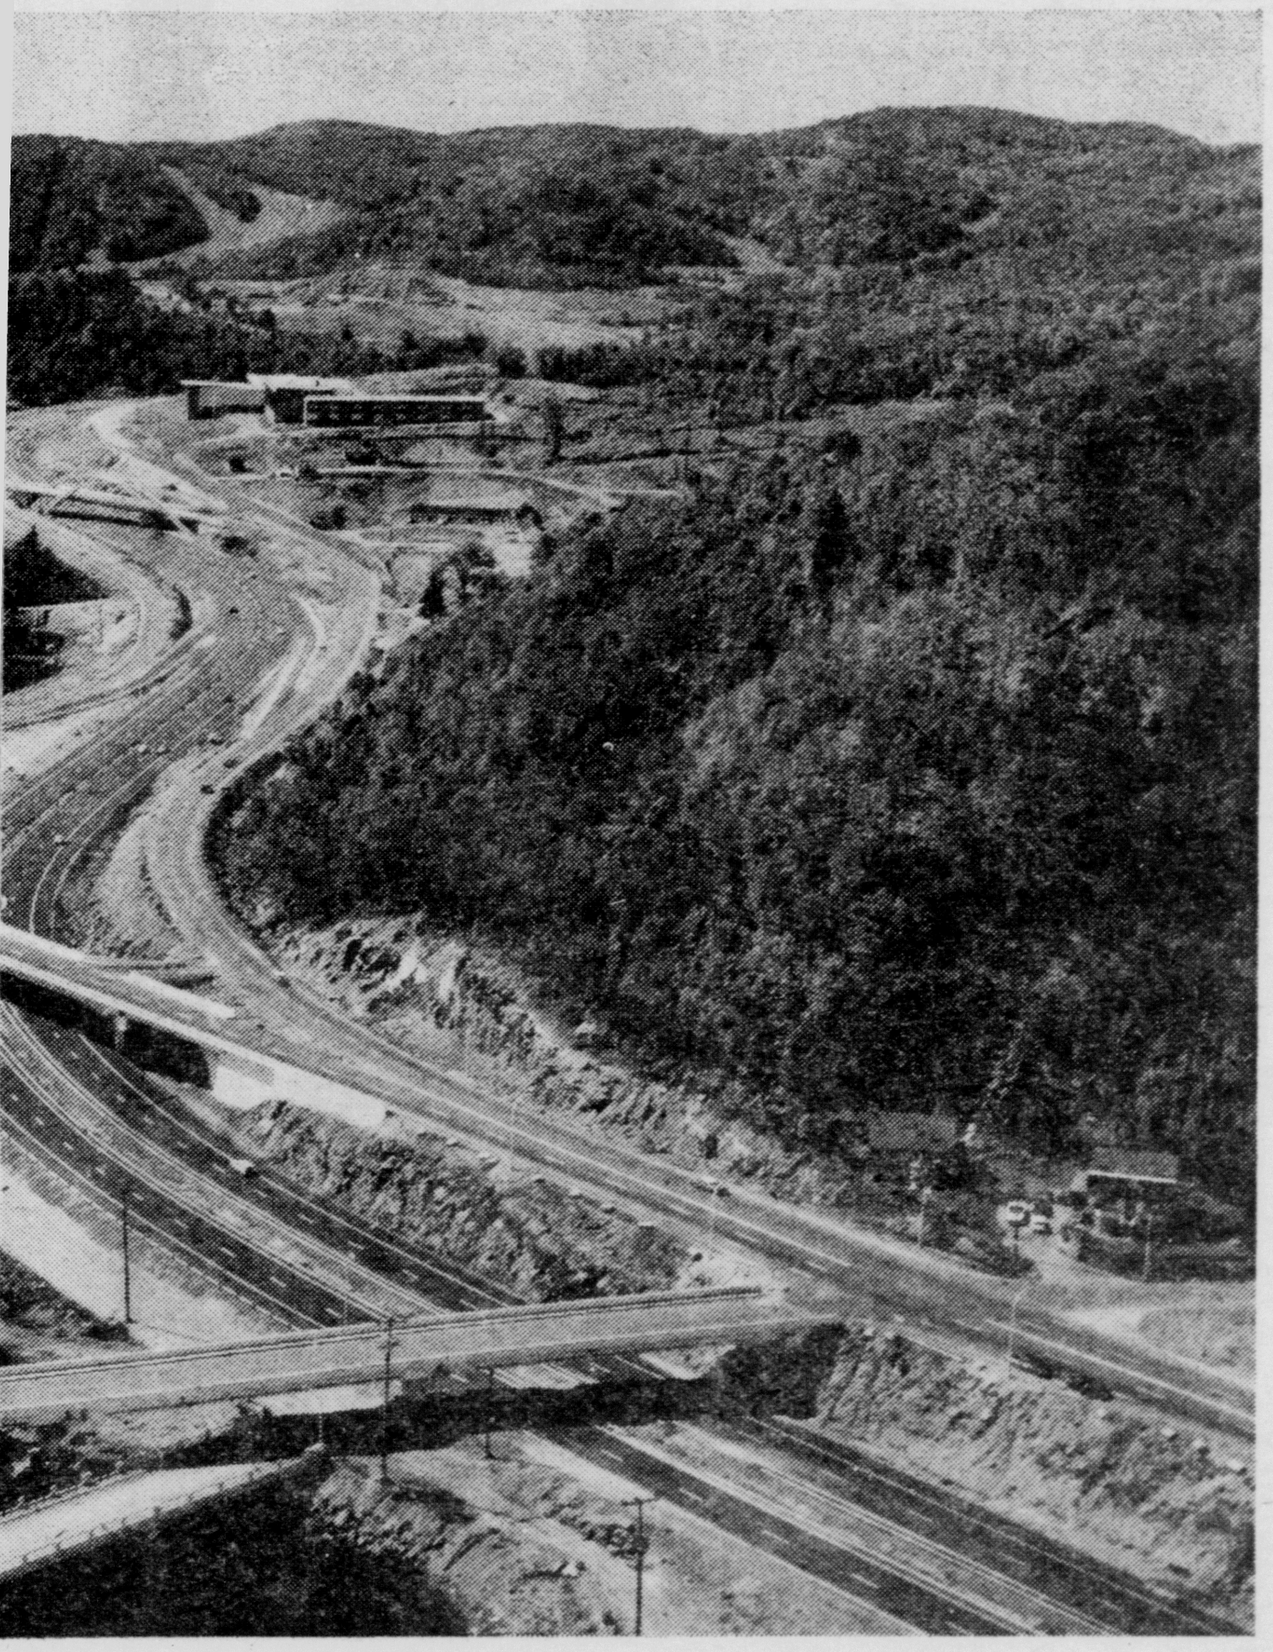
Other attractions in the Laurentians which are worthy of note are the Papineau Estate in Montebellow and the Papineau-Labelle Reserve.

Louis-Joseph Papineau was a leader of the revolt of the Patriots in 1837 in Canada. He was sent into exile and returned years later to build the manor which still exists today in a setting of century old trees. The manor is open to the public Wednesdays through Sundays at no admission charge. The Papineau-LaBelle reserve, located in the geological region of Grenville, overlooks the Montreal-Ottawa clay plains. Moraines and glacial deposits are present throughout the reserve and the area is covered with yellow birch. In the summer the reserve offers tourists canoe-camping on 75-mile circuits, fishing and hiking and in the winter snowmobiling is popular.

The attractions and accommodations in these mountains are so varied that a number of different types of vacations can be planned. In addition to camping in the province's parks and reserves families can rent family vacation cottages or share accommodations in private homes. Farm vacations are also popular in this region. Farm dwellers open their homes to visitors at reasonable rates and offer a variety of meal plans.

But this region is most well known for its year round resorts. Packed into this 40-square mile area is the greatest concentration of resort hotels in Canada. Between Montreal and the Saint-Jovite area there are close to 200 hotels and motels offering more than 4,500 rooms.

There are more than twenty golf courses and innumerable tennis courts. There is also a flying club in the Laurentians. There's sky diving, chairlift rides, antique and handicraft shops for browsing and summer theater. And tourists in these resorts dine on some of the finest food in Canada. The Laurentians are very proud of their reputation of "Home of Gastronomie Internationale" and several of the resorts have employed famous chefs from around the world to delight the palate of their guests.



One such resort is L'Esterel situated 51 miles north of Montreal in the heart of the Laurentian Mountains near the town of Ville D'Esterel. The resort's cuisine is under the watchful direction of Gold Medallist Chef Rudi Schneider, a graduate of the Berne School of Hostelry in Berne, Switzerland. Chef Rudi has a long list of culinary awards attached to his name but nothing is more a testimony to his culinary art than the bountiful luncheon buffet spread before guests at L'Esterel. It's a meal fit for a king featuring hearty main dishes, seafood salad, and fruit and vegetable salads, topped off by a tempting selection of French pastry delights.

L'Esterel sits on the shore of Lac Dupuis giving guests a view that's straight out of a beer advertisement. The clean, clear lake is accented by tiny islands overgrown with pines and it is rimmed by lush green forests creeping up the slopes of the mountains.

L'Esterel has an intriguing background. During the 1920s Baron Louis d'Empain of Belgium decided to invest some of his fortune in Canada and chose this site because the beauty of the autumn leaves reminded him of the sun setting over a range of mountains in the south of France. The Baron planned to build a hotel, stables, shopping center and Yacht Club but was forced to terminate construction when World War II was declared. All was forgotten until one day in the summer of 1958 when industrialist Fridolin Simard was piloting his plane toward Montreal. The control tower radioed a storm warning advising the aircraft to seek refuge elsewhere. Simard brought the plane down on the site and spent the night in the Baron's old stables. He saw a map of the region on the wall and noticed that the estate was for sale. Today Simard is president and owner of L'Esterel.

L'Esterel lies in a 5,000-acre estate of mountains, forests and lakes. It has an indoor heated swimming pool and whirlpool framed by a large picture window overlooking the outdoor sun deck and lake. There are sauna baths, game rooms, a nine-hole golf course, three floodlit tennis courts, and two lounges with dancing every evening to a live orchestra.

Summer activities at the resort include water sports such as swimming, pedal boating and sailing plus badminton, horseback riding, and summer theater. Organized sightseeing tours in the mountain area are also available. In winter the resort has a ski school and a cross country skiing program on 25 miles of groomed trails. The trails also give access to the famed Maple Leaf Trail which covers a vast area in the Laurentians. Snowmobiling is also popular and snowmobiles can be rented by the hour. Skates are at the disposal of guests free of charge and snowshoes can also be borrowed. There are organized evening sleigh rides.

Daily rates range from $27 to $39 per person per night based on double occupancy including breakfast and dinner. A five-night plan with ten meals ranges from $119 to $173. There are also special Alpine ski plans, tennis plans and golf plans.

Another fine resort is Villa Bellevue in the town of Mont Tremblant near Mont-Tremblant Park. The resort is situated on Lake Ouimet and has been owned and operated by the Dubois family since 1920. Villa Bellevue offers French and continental cuisine, dancing, weekend entertainment, and recreational activities including sailing, canoeing, water skiing, excursion cruises, badminton, volleyball, bicycling, mountain hiking, tennis and skiing. From 1 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. children's activities are provided free and are under the supervision of the hotel counselor.

Villa Bellevue offers a variety of accommodation plans. There's a two-floor mezzanine suite with living room, bedroom and private bath that ranges from $28.50 to $38.50 daily depending on the meal plan. Other motel and hotel and housekeeping units range from $19 to $33 depending on the meal plan. A six night plan is also available with rates ranging from $100.50 to $215.50.

Mont Gabriel is one of the resorts closest to Montreal. Just 39 miles from the city the resort sits on the top of a mountain with a panoramic view of the Laurentians. Mont Gabriel is best known for its skiing on eighteen slopes equipped with eight T-bars, a double chairlift and triple chairlift. Alpine and cross country skiing are featured along with ice skating and sleigh rides.

Daily rates at Mont Gabriel including breakfast and dinner range from $28 to $40.50 per person based on double occupancy. Mini-vacations on farms in Illinois

Weekend

You can wake up with the roosters this summer and enjoy it, according to a growing number of travelers who have opted for a special kind of Illinois leisure experience — staying down on the farm.

Featuring everything from hogs, cows and yammering goats to starry-night hayrides and country breakfasts, Illinois farms open to guests come in all sizes. Most include meals with any overnight stay as well as organized recreation programs and a wide assortment of traditional barnyard creatures.

And for those hearty earthbound folk who like bib-overalls and feel like shucking, plucking and milking their time away there are working family farms where you help with the daily chores.

The rates are reasonable and the rooms are clean. Here's a few of them:

• Hobson's Bluffdale — Located in Greene County about 70 miles northwest of St. Louis, Bill and Lindy Hobson's 427-acre farm dates from 1828. The original stone farmhouse built by Bill Hobson's great-great grandfather still stands and has been enlarged and modernized for the benefit of vacationers.

Visitors to the working soybean, corn and wheat farm don't have to worry about bedding down in the barn. Twentieth Century conveniences such as air conditioning, private baths and recreation facilities, however, don't detract from the traditional items you would expect in such a rural setting. Activities include: horseback riding through nearby hills, pony cart rides for the kids, canoe trips, hiking and fishing in the Illinois River.

In addition to pitching in with farm chores, guests can enjoy square dancing, hayrides and group activities that range from bonfire marshmallow roasts to evening sing-a-longs.

Not far from the Hobson's farm is the Koster Archeological Dig, where guests can take a side trip to watch scientists unearth relics from a civilization which flourished in the Illinois River Valley more than 8,000 years ago.

Meals at the farm are strictly home cooked, with a menu that ranges from oozing pies and fried chicken to baked hams and barbecued chops. Guests can arrange for a visit May through October. Accommodations include family rooms which sleep four, and two-room suits for five to seven guests. For information and current rates, call: 217-983-2854.

• Fresh Air Farm — Located near Camden, 255 miles southwest of Chicago in Central Illinois, the farm of Keith and Bonnie Vaughn can accommodate two families. The 800-acre grain and livestock operation also invites campers and is located within easy driving distance of five state parks. Activities include hunting, fishing, swimming, hiking and pony rides. Fully furnished, six-room country home includes cooking facilities and utensils. Open all year, the Vaughn's farm allows guests to help with chores as well as pick fresh produce and gather eggs. For more information and current rates, call: 217-322-3182.

• White Pines Guest Ranch — Specializing in children's programs and activities, owners Richard and Delores Little boast a complete schedule featuring hayrides, arts and craft events, swimming, fishing, horseback riding and hiking. An added treat for children includes a rodeo and the chance to feed and care for farm animals. Open June through September, the range can accommodate 225 guests.

It is located near Oregon and within driving distance of several state parks. For more information and rates, call: 815-732-7923.

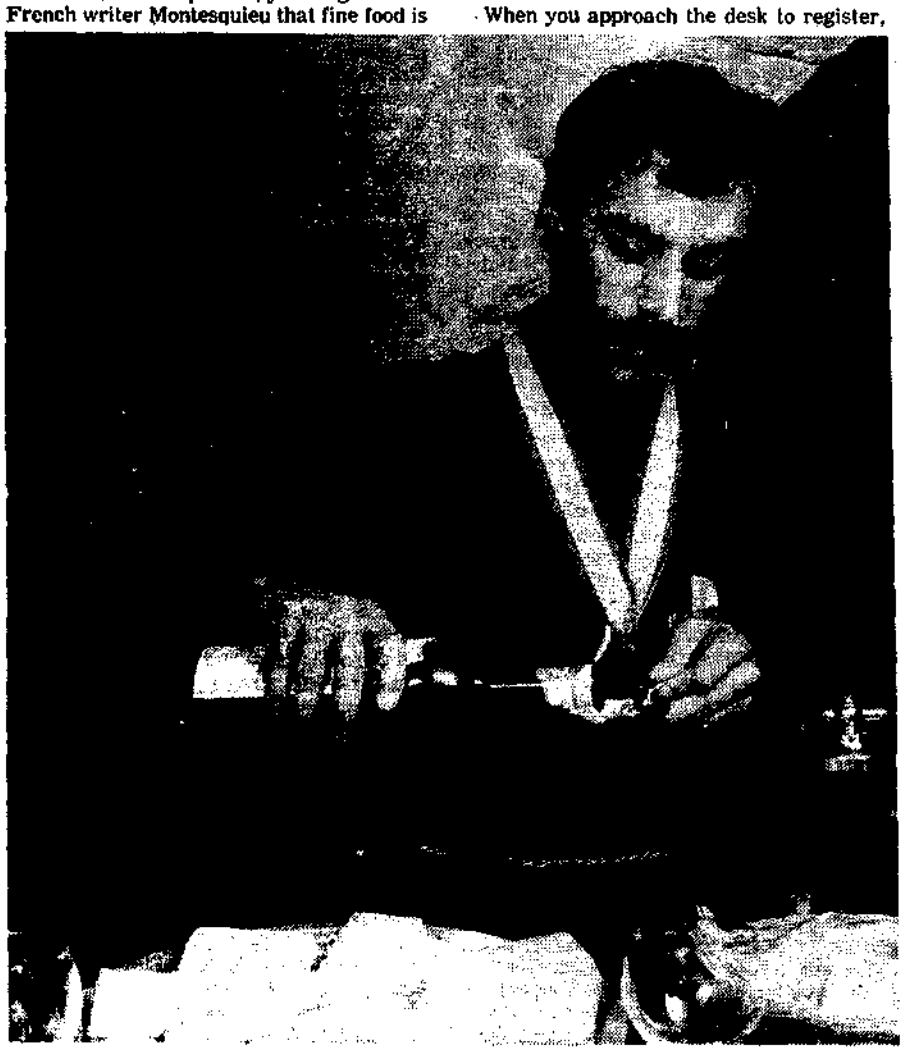
A taste of the good life at La Sapiniere

If you plan to forget your diet, at least temporarily, why not do it where such an act of defiance can be a real gastronomical delight? At La Sapiniere in Quebec's Laurentians, for instance.

Located in an idyllic mountain setting in Val David 50 miles north of Montreal, this Laurentian resort hotel has charmed gourmets since 1936. Following a stay, no matter how short, at La Sapiniere, you'll agree with French writer Montesquieu that fine food is an excellent antidote against melancholy.

La Sapiniere is an ideal place to relax in the convivial company of other guests who have chosen this hospitable inn for its cordiality, its comfort and especially its fine food. You feel La Sapiniere's warmth the moment you enter the grounds and notice the handsome stone and log building nestling cosily among tall evergreens.

When you approach the desk to register, you are made to feel more a guest than a client.



The 70 well-appointed rooms have all the modern conveniences of any large city hotel. This all-season resort offers a heated swimming pool, tennis, putting green and canoes in summer while winter visitors may enjoy skiing, snowshoeing, skating or sleigh rides. There's horseback riding, golf, hiking while La Sapiniere has its own playroom with ping pong, billiards and other games.

Following a sustaining gourmet meal, a walk among the tall evergreens or by the lake is all the exercise many guests can tackle.

It is not without reason that the prestigious international chain, Relais de Campagne, Chateaux-Hotels, has chosen only La Sapiniere, in Canada, as a hotel that meets its stringent conditions for membership. The chain lists 250 first-class establishments in twenty-one countries.

In Quebec's own classification, La Sapiniere rates five fleur-de-lys for its comfort and service. Only seven hotels in the province rate the top six fleur-de-lys and all of them are in Montreal or Quebec City.

When it comes to fine cuisine, however, La Sapiniere is one of fourteen places in Quebec to rate the top four forks.

Twice a day, at La Sapiniere, you can start your meal with something like an artichoke vinaigrette or a quiche suisse, follow this with a chilled vichyssoise or a potage petite marmite and you're ready for the piece de resistance. It could be roasted, boned and stuffed rack of Canadian lamb au jus or a civet of rabbit with mushrooms, or a braised duckling with olives, all served with fresh vegetables.

It goes without saying that such meals are incomplete without a good bottle of wine from the hotel's stock of 20,000.

By this time, your stomach may be ready to capitulate but your eyes will not be able to resist a delicious French pastry, or a black forest cake or the cheese tray.

This type of mutineering against your diet is worth the extra pounds that may result, and you can always show you have willpower by refusing a second helping.

From soap suds to street busts

by Diane Mermigas

The transition from soap opera star by day to New York undercover street cop by night wasn't all that difficult for Steven Collura.

There are a lot of similarities between the two jobs. Both professions require you to play roles and act out stories that help feed the ego and get the adrenaline flowing.

The rough-faced, leather-jacketed, street-wise kid grew up in New York to assume the role of Steve, the young intern at Hope Memorial Hospital on the NBC soap opera, "The Doctors." That was in the late 1960s — about the same time that Collura was first approached with the idea of becoming a street cop.

He was a member of the city's Special Investigating Unit from 1968 to 1973, quitting his acting career halfway through his stint as an undercover policeman to devote all his time to law and order.

But the acting talent he took with him made it easy for Collura to convincingly imitate a strung-out addict. His upbringing provided the background he needed to be successful in his work — in the dangerous, unpredictable back streets of the city.

And so, Collura now boasts a one-year record of 126 felony narcotic buys and the distinction of having been one of the force's youngest gold-shield detectives.

Today, his diverse, adventurous and often dangerous exploits as both a detective and an actor are recounted in "Collura: Actor With a Gun" (Simon and Schuster, $7.95).

Author Bill Davidson, a magazine writer who has also marketed eight other books, recounts Collura's experiences in the third person on the basis of some extensive conversations with the 31-year old who says his days as a cop, but not as an actor, are gone forever.

Collura quit his role in "The Doctors" in 1971 and resigned his spot on the special investigative unit in 1973. He currently is busy on a national tour to promote the book and is negotiating a film deal on the book in which he may star. He also tours the country with cast members of ABC's "Baretta," talking to junior high and high school students to discourage them from using drugs.

"There is no fiction in the book at all. As exciting and dangerous as it sometimes gets — it's all for real. There are just some people we don't name specifically in order to protect them," Collura said during a recent trip to Chicago.

Despite the precautions taken in writing a book about some big busts and big drug operations carrying on in New York City, Collura still lives each day under a veil of danger and intrigue.

"There are constant threats on my life so I travel with bodyguards. I've kept silent for four years since I left the special unit, but I feel that it's a story that needs to be told. I know, having grown up in Brooklyn, that any American kid can too easily get mixed up in this drug traffic on the streets. I want to warn kids against it," Collura said.

Certainly his efforts are gallant and noteworthy. But the book, at times, portrays Collura as the Clint Eastwood kind of modern day cop that he denies ever having been.

The author's references to Collura as an Italian Warren Beatty who wears a crotch holster device that resembles a jock strap and who has a different girl to spend the night with after every big arrest don't really present a picture of the man Collura says he believes he is.

"I think there is so much more meaningfulness to the book. There aren't many men or women who would do this kind of undercover work on the streets. It's a dirty job and it's a hell of a job — and it's their story I'm telling," Collura said.

"There is a certain excitement out on the streets and the thrill of a life-and-death situation that you win. I feel that my work as an actor and a cop has been fate. It just happens to be where my life has taken me — I

Warren's memoirs on court of social change

THE MEMOIRS OF EARL WARREN by Chief Justice Earl Warren (Doubleday and Co., $12.95).

by Brad Knickerbocker

School desegregation . . . one man, one vote . . . the rights of accused . . . school prayer.

For 16 years the United States Supreme Court under Chief Justice Earl Warren was a preeminent force for social change in the U.S. Its decisions were as far-reaching as they were controversial, touching the lives of virtually every American.

Early in this fascinating autobiography, the late chief justice explains the philosophy that underlay his years on the nation's highest court:

". . . in the Supreme Court, the basic ingredient of decision is principle, and it should not be compromised and parceled out a little in one case, a little more in another, until eventually someone receives the full benefit. If the principle is sound and constitutional, it is the birthright of every American, not to be accorded begrudgingly or piecemeal or to special groups only, but to everyone in its entirety whenever it is brought into play."

Much has been written about the "Warren court" and its chief justice. But these memoirs provide valuable new insight, not only into the workings of the court but, more important, into the upbringing and early career which molded Earl Warren the jurist.

"The life of the law has not been logic; it has been experience," Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once said. Chief Justice Warren puts it another way: "A jurist's mind cannot operate in a vacuum."

Most of this book recounts Warren's boyhood in California as the son of Scandinavian immigrants, his education at the University of California at Berkeley, the years as district attorney, attorney general, and governor of California.

He was a liberal Republican, an active politician, yet remained above the political fray and refused the support of special interests. He went after political corruption and underworld activities in his state.

A clue to his integrity is given in the story of how he publicly revealed and got rid of the bugging system in his office when he took over as governor. Later he would be pressured by Attorney General John Mitchell's office when the court was to decide an illegal wiretapping case. It was the only time during the chief justice's tenure that such undue influence was brought to bear, and the decision went against the government.

For the first time, Justice Warren's own feelings about the intense opposition to the decisions of the court and to him personally are made known. But even here, there is complete lack of rancor or vindictiveness.

He laments the fact that President Eisenhower lent no public support to the court's 1954 ruling requiring school desegregation. If the president had spoken out in favor of the decision, the former chief justice says, "we would have been relieved . . . of many of the racial problems which have continued to plague us."

The only resentment he felt over the years was when the American Bar Association overlooked and in some cases allowed itself to be used by "red-baiters" and other reactionary forces which attacked the court. But again, the chief justice notes, "so many times in life the only permanent satisfaction one can find comes from bucking an adverse tide or swimming upstream to reach a goal."

The only time he went with the tide, he later regretted it greatly. This was the internment of Japanese-Americans which he approved as California attorney general.

"It was wrong to react so impulsively, without positive evidence of disloyalty, even though we felt we had a good motive in the security of our state," he writes. "It demonstrates the cruelty of war when fear, get-tough military psychology, propaganda, and racial antagonism combine with one's responsibility for public security to produce such acts."

The decisions of the Warren court continue to generate controversy as they are refined, some would say eroded, by later court orders.

But as the former chief justice writes, it is to be hoped that "the court's decisions always will be controversial, because it is human nature for the dominant group in a nation to keep pressing for further domination, and unless the court has the fiber to accord justice to the weakest member of society, regardless of the pressure brought to bear on it, we can never achieve our goal of 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness' for everyone."

Coping with the frustrations of a tangled world

WHY NOTHING SEEMS TO WORK ANYMORE by Richard N. Farmer (Henry Regnery Co., $9.95)

Reviewed by Wandalyn Rice

Don't let the catchy title fool you. Richard Farmer is chairman of the Department of International Business at Indiana University and this book is about economics.

That shouldn't necessarily frighten a reader away, however, because Farmer's style is almost as readable as that of "Adam Smith," who popularized high finance and has most recently been writing about parapsychology and other things occult.

The chief problem with this book is not that it's dull, but that its scope is too broad. Farmer has a lot to say about a lot of things and many of his arguments are controversial. Unfortunately, the book flits from chapters on the "cost of control" to the politics of multi-natural corporations with barely a pause for the reader to catch his breath.

At base, Farmer's answer to the malaise implied in his title is simple: nothing seems to work anymore because circumstances have never been quite like this before. Never has mankind felt the goal of eliminating poverty within reach. Never has a society had to cope with the "demographic bulge" of a baby boom moving through the work force. Never has the world's economy been so interrelated. It's not a plot, Farmer says. Things don't work anymore because we are trying to do more things, accomplish more nebulous goals, than ever before in history.

Pervading Farmer's argument is a conservative anti-government bias of the sort that will strike a responsive cord among both Republican businessmen and anti-establishment free spirits. At base, Farmer sees the "solution" to many perceived problems (which he believes are not problems at all) in telling bureaucrats to butt out of our lives and let the market behave naturally.

That is an attractive argument, until Farmer begins to explain that the best thing about multinational corporations like International Telephone and Telegraph is that they are beyond the law of any one country. At that point, many thoughtful readers will pause. Because if bureaucratic tyranny is bad (and Farmer makes a persuasive case on that score), isn't corporate tyranny just as bad?

Also, the end result of Farmer's analyis is, if not despair, at least something like existential hopelessness. In a key passage, he writes, "So what do we do about it? Very little, really. Go fight for whatever sacred cows you think are important. If they involve serious interference with what people want to do, such as an antiabortion law or some pollution control that would shut down every major industry in your state, the law may get passed, but it will never be enforced . . . If you feel that companies or industries should be decontrolled, go fight for this. If it is important, everyone will be cheating so much already that it will not really matter much whether there is a law or not . . ."

Such a conclusion is not much encouragement for the world's reformers. However, Farmer's analysis should be interesting for those who have found such popular future-peering as "Future Shock" or "Greening of America" oversimplified.

One thing Farmer does not do is oversimplify. By the time he gets done explaining how each solution spawns dozens of problems and how every good goal will bring bad results, the reader has forgotten the original question.

Farmer seems to say we shouldn't worry about "Why nothing seems to work anymore." Instead, we should thank heaven that things work at all.

consider myself a victim of circumstance, and now I believe my work is in the schools," Collura said.

His story is an interesting one and the book profiles his experiences and acquaintances in vignettes.

The style at times is like an old detective novel.

It's the "cool guy" image that the author emphasizes and the almost obsessed thrill of undercover street work that sometimes downplays the importance of Collura's work.

Following Collura's first big street experience the author says: "Collura went home. For the next forty-eight hours, he was so excited, he couldn't calm himself down; it was like a strange sickness. He suffered acute insomnia, rapid breathing, unexpected tightenings in the pit of his stomach. His sexual appetites became enormous . . ."

The more vivid descriptions of Collura's reactions to successful street busts are in the book, but the sexual overtones and the thought patterns of a stud are something this book could have done without. They seem to be woven through Collura's otherwise fascinating and exciting story just for show.

From backrooms to bars in Chicago's 1890s

MR. DOOLEY'S CHICAGO by Barbara C. Schaaf (Anchor Press/Doubleday, $9.95)

Reviewed by Bernadine M. Rechner

In the 1890s, Mr. Dooley had an opinion on everything and, in the intricacies of his Irish brogue, expounded on local and national politics, sports, the immigrant experience and the new woman in the pages of the Chicago Evening Post."

Martin J. Dooley was a fictional character created by Chicago journalist Finley Peter Dunne to comment on life from the perspective of an Irish saloonkeeper on Archey Road (Archer Avenue) in Bridgeport.

In her first book, Barbara C. Schaaf, a native Chicagoan with an interest in history and politics, has reprinted the more memorable Dooley columns, prefaced them with explanatory background information, and written a biographical sketch of the author who became famous at the hands of his character.

Schaaf takes us back to the turn of the century and gives us an insight into the humor and pathos of the day through the conversations of Dunne's characters.

They begin, before the introduction of Mr. Dooley, with a Chicago Loop setting — a bar frequented by newsmen of the day. Dunne's Colonel McNeery tells his friend John McKenna how O'Connor had taken him under protest to the French art section at the World's Fair. "I told ye some time ago, Jawnny, me lad, never to go near th' Midway, but I take that back. I'm sorry I spoke, for th' Midway is like th' life iv th' good man in the christian duty compared wid that art gallery."

The proprietor of the bar ultimately complained about the resemblance of Dunne's setting to his establishment, and of Colonel McNeery to himself, so the author sent McNeery back to Ireland and moved his fictional locale to a bar in Bridgeport where McKenna renews his acquaintance with the owner, Martin J. Dooley.

From the rarefied air of Archey Road, Dooley and McKenna viewed the world — the Fair, the radicals, the national politicos, early life in Ireland, immigration and settling in this country and Chicago politics.

Of a visit to the aldermanic session, Dooley says "They was all there — th' la-ads. Th' little bald-headed man was in th' chair an' a big bald-headed man was down below r-readin' to th' aldhermin things some iv thim cudden't r-read without their glasses an' some cudden't r-read at all."

One of Dunne's characters was Molly Donahue who lived across the street from Mr. Dooley. Molly was a new woman, an early suffragette looking for the vote and equal rights. The Dunne columns sparkle with wit as the community and Molly's family struggle to cope with the rising feminist tide.

Schaaf precedes each of Dunne's articles with a summary of the events upon which they are based. These prefaces are essential and elucidating; without them those of us who come late to Dooley, from lack of age or education, would miss the full impact of Dunne's satiric commentary on his times.

This is not a book to be finished at one sitting. It is, instead, one that is read in bits and pieces, savored almost, for it is history and humor, front porch philosophy and nostalgia in small, easily edible slices.

If there is a problem with Dunne's works, it is in accommodating the modern eye to the written dialect but with only a little persistence one soon hears the lilt of Dooley's language and the eye serves only to transfer the written word from sight to ear. Our reward is a memorable trip through Mr. Dooley's Chicago.

Power plays — making it big in Washington

PLAYING FOR KEEPS IN WASHINGTON by Laurence Leamer (The Dial Press, $10).

Reviewed by Steve Brown

Writers always seem to be able to crank out books about different sub-groups in power in the nation's capital, and true to that tradition Laurence Leamer in "Playing For Keeps in Washington" has spun together eight interesting tales for the latest example of this genre.

Leamer has established no particular ground rules for inclusion in his collection of politicians, news media officials and those who find themselves in the swirl of activity in Washington except that they all play for keeps.

While the professions vary from Katherine Graham's inheritance of the prestige and power of the Washington Post empire to Ralph Nader's rise from unsuccessful lawyer-writer to king of consumerism, the common denominator in each profile is a relentless drive to the top.

The collection is interesting, because although each person fits into the mold, some are probably unknown outside of Washington.

There are probably only a handful who correctly identify U.S. Rep. Philip Burton, D-Calif., but Leamer devotes one section to Burton's rise from liberal congressional upstart to a man who oozes power.

A local product is also included in this book. Donald Rumsfeld, the new president of G. D. Searle, is another chapter. Rumsfeld comes across as a shrewd political practitioner who cast off the Nixon Administration soon enough to avoid the scandal of Watergate, but who returned from Europe to play a key role in the short-lived Ford Administration, finishing his current round of government service as Secretary of Defense.

Leamer clearly indicates that there was much more than good timing in Rumsfeld's climb from the congressional district that included the Northwest suburbs to the number one man in the Pentagon.

Besides being possessed by a relentless drive, Leamer's subjects all come across as less than total successes. In some ways, the author broadly implicates that total devotion to one's business does not always bring happiness.

Nader is portrayed as a near dictactor, scorning the slightest hint of criticism or dissension from the gifted group that has helped make him.

U.S. Senators Robert Byrd and Edward Kennedy are depicted as men who have achieved a certain fulfillment on Capitol Hill, but lead lives that are less than appealing.

The same is true for former Sec. of State Henry Kissinger and wife Nancy Hanks, the hard-driving head of the National Endowment for the Arts in the Nixon days.

Whatever the failings or faults in personality, Leamer has gathered an interesting collection of people and offered some insight into their lives that should make for popular reading in an age that seems preoccupied with knowing everything about everyone.

The reader might not know anything about Hanks, Burton or trial lawyer Edward Bennett Williams before reading "Playing," but when finished will understand that the influence wielded by the less well-known runs in the same league as that of the Kennedy-Kissinger group.

Leamer leaves little doubt that these eight notables, in their somewhat inter-related drives, play a major role in decision-making and policy implementation that affect all of our lives.

From backrooms to bars in Chicago's 1890s

MR. DOOLEY'S CHICAGO by Barbara C. Schaaf (Anchor Press/Doubleday, $9.95)

Reviewed by Bernadine M. Rechner

In the 1890s, Mr. Dooley had an opinion on everything and, in the intricacies of his Irish brogue, expounded on local and national politics, sports, the immigrant experience and the new woman in the pages of the Chicago Evening Post."

Martin J. Dooley was a fictional character created by Chicago journalist Finley Peter Dunne to comment on life from the perspective of an Irish saloonkeeper on Archey Road (Archer Avenue) in Bridgeport.

In her first book, Barbara C. Schaaf, a native Chicagoan with an interest in history and politics, has reprinted the more memorable Dooley columns, prefaced them with explanatory background information, and written a biographical sketch of the author who became famous at the hands of his character.

Schaaf takes us back to the turn of the century and gives us an insight into the humor and pathos of the day through the conversations of Dunne's characters.

They begin, before the introduction of Mr. Dooley, with a Chicago Loop setting — a bar frequented by newsmen of the day. Dunne's Colonel McNeery tells his friend John McKenna how O'Connor had taken him under protest to the French art section at the World's Fair. "I told ye some time ago, Jawnny, me lad, never to go near th' Midway, but I take that back. I'm sorry I spoke, for th' Midway is like th' life iv th' good man in the christian duty compared wid that art gallery."

The proprietor of the bar ultimately complained about the resemblance of Dunne's setting to his establishment, and of Colonel McNeery to himself, so the author sent McNeery back to Ireland and moved his fictional locale to a bar in Bridgeport where McKenna renews his acquaintance with the owner, Martin J. Dooley.

From the rarefied air of Archey Road, Dooley and McKenna viewed the world — the Fair, the radicals, the national politicos, early life in Ireland, immigration and settling in this country and Chicago politics.

Of a visit to the aldermanic session, Dooley says "They was all there — th' la-ads. Th' little bald-headed man was in th' chair an' a big bald-headed man was down below r-readin' to th' aldhermin things some iv thim cudden't r-read without their glasses an' some cudden't r-read at all."

One of Dunne's characters was Molly Donahue who lived across the street from Mr. Dooley. Molly was a new woman, an early suffragette looking for the vote and equal rights. The Dunne columns sparkle with wit as the community and Molly's family struggle to cope with the rising feminist tide.

Olga knows

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you, Ari, are in the mood for romance (and you usually are) stay alert. Shy admirer may send weak signals. Pick them up. Week ideal for illusion and need to join hands, forces or whatever.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Credit crunch best handled by honesty. Interesting newcomer may come tippy-tapping onto your horizon. Keep dance pants handy. End of week you feel wasted away. What do you expect, Taurus, when you spend so much time in Margaritaville?

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Concerning relationship with dear one, compassion is key which unlocks door to understanding. Important goals can be achieved if you do your part. Just don't expect your part, Gem, to be a paltry fifty percent. Get the drift?

CANCER (June 21-July 22): No silent brooding allowed this week, Moonbaby, for you have too much to do. Work, play, dance, sing and by last day your cup bubbles all over the place. All things considered a happy (but rather messy) week.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Change looms and career-family matters take a turn. Accept new role gracefully. Love is a bridge which spans chasm separating you from dear one. Cross it. On last day, Leo, you can pitch outmoded ideas into dustbin.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): Happy Birthday, Virgo! You are honest, shrewd, efficient and patient. In career matters there is precious little that escapes your careful scrutiny. Others may imply that you are aloof or perhaps even "cold." Not so. You are simply discriminating. You know your own worth and if others don't . . . well, that's their problem. September, March are memorable months in year ahead. As one door closes, another opens.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Don't waste time this week waiting for others to pat you on the back. Get on with business at hand and do it your way, by jing. You have the right to be different. You have the right to be you. Before week is over, Old Dan Cupid seeks you out, Libra. Don't hide.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): This week can be one of most important of entire summer. In spite of August heat, your creative talent surges. Trap new ideas. Nail them down on paper before they fly away. Dreams highlighted. Don't make riddle out of answer.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Put original ideas into motion, Saj, and don't fuss and stew about how others may react. You can take giant step forward. Simon says. Olga says. Jupiter says. Now get cracking!

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): You've plowed many a straight and narrow furrow, Cap, but this week you should relax and slacken your pace. Let the fields of your mind lie fallow. Fling your bones onto a hammock and do some creative dreaming. Week gently swings to a close.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Demands and challenges made this week, Aquari, and you'll need lots of old-fashioned fortitude just to muddle through. Concerning secret plans . . . pretend you're the sphinx. Week which began with a bang is very apt to end with a whimper. Sorry.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): Questions will be asked. One who probes should be given short shrift. You may be a fish, Pisces, but even fish can drown in a sea of their own words. I repeat ancient advice: Always tell the truth, but don't always be telling it.

BEGINNER'S CORNER — Hint and explanation: Set up a double attack.

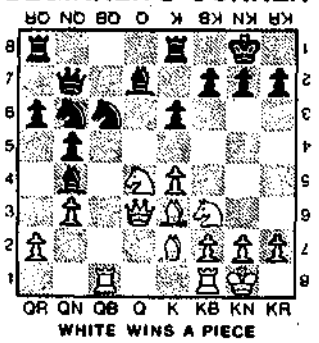
Kennoth Rogoff, age 24, is a chess master of phenomenal talent. Playing rarely since high school, he is nevertheless ranked 8th in the United States.

Last summer, competing with the best players in the world in the Biel (Switzerland) Interzonal, he managed a score of 4 wins, 5 losses and ten draws. Not bad if you consider that he drew games with Bent Larsen and ex-world champions Tigran Petrosian and Michael Tal.

BEGINNER'S CORNER



A measure of this future grandmaster's mettle was the draw with Tal. In that contest the usual solid-styled Rogoff ventured the very risky Nadjorf variation of the Sicilian defense, just to see if he could match the greatest attacking player of modern chess on his own ground.

Ken is currently a graduate student of economics at MIT. But he finds time for occasional exhibitions as well as tournament play. He is a prodigy of blindfold chess in which he has taken on as many as 25 opponents simultaneously. He also excels in his knowledge of chess literature:

"I'd say I have at least 30,000 to 40,000 games in active memory — that is, I could reconstruct the essential moves and strategies involved — and this helps me a lot."

* * * *

Characteristic of Rogoff's play is the game below. In the diagrammed position, Rogoff played 8 . . . BxNch! to wreck white's queenside pawns. He then expertly maneuvered to win one of them. Later, when he had built up a commanding position, his discouraged opponent prematurely resigned.

Stamp notes

The U.S. Postal Service on Sept. 9 will issue a 13-cent stamp marking the 200th anniversary of the first civil settlement in Alta California.

Settled by the Spanish, the area included the present states of California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and parts of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

Because the chain of eight missions and presidios (forts) established in the area before 1777 inadequately protected the territory from invasion and starvation, Spain initiated measures to establish a permanent civilian population capable of producing goods and food for the region. The pueblo system of government installed first at San Jose enabled Spain and then Mexico to remain in the area and provided the precedent for civilian authority in Alta California, which became a U.S. territory in 1848.

First Civil Settlement-Alta California-1777

The Alta California stamp was designed by Earl Thollander of Calistoga, Calif. It is his first stamp design and features dwellings reminiscent of the era.

Customers affixing their own Alta California stamps should send their covers to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, San Jose, Calif. 95101."

Collectors wishing the Postal Service to affix the new stamp should pencil in lightly in the upper right hand corner of their envelopes how many stamps should be applied. Mail the covers to "Alta California Stamp, Postmaster, San Jose, Calif. 95101" and include the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

* * * *

Later this year, the Postal Service will release two 'special' stamps urging energy conservation and energy development. The same design will also be used for embossed envelopes.

'Special' stamps are on sale for longer periods of time and are issued in larger quantities than commemorative stamps. The Christmas stamps and the "Love" adhesive of 1973 are issues in this 'special' category.

* * * *

The Irish Post Office on Monday will release two adhesives, in 8p and 17p denominations honoring the scouting and guiding movements.

Ireland is host this year to the European Scout and Guide Conference and the Catholic Boy Scouts of Ireland are celebrating their golden jubilee in 1977 also.

Collectors of Irish stamps are invited to open a standing order account to insure delivery of each new issue. Full information is available from "The Controller, Philatelic Section, General Post Office, Dublin 1, Ireland."

Stamp notes

The U.S. Postal Service on Sept. 9 will issue a 13-cent stamp marking the 200th anniversary of the first civil settlement in Alta California.

Settled by the Spanish, the area included the present states of California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and parts of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

Because the chain of eight missions and presidios (forts) established in the area before 1777 inadequately protected the territory from invasion and starvation, Spain initiated measures to establish a permanent civilian population capable of producing goods and food for the region. The pueblo system of government installed first at San Jose enabled Spain and then Mexico to remain in the area and provided the precedent for civilian authority in Alta California, which became a U.S. territory in 1848.

The Alta California stamp was designed by Earl Thollander of Calistoga, Calif. It is his first stamp design and features dwellings reminiscent of the era.

The adhesives will be printed by offset-intaglio with 50 stamps to a pane and one plate number.

Customers affixing their own Alta California stamps should send their covers to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, San Jose, Calif. 95101."

Collectors wishing the Postal Service to affix the new stamp should pencil in lightly in the upper right hand corner of their envelopes how many stamps should be applied. Mail the covers to "Alta California Stamp, Postmaster, San Jose, Calif. 95101" and include the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

All orders for first day cancellations must be postmarked no later than Sept. 24.

Later this year, the Postal Service will release two 'special' stamps urging energy conservation and energy development. The same design will also be used for embossed envelopes.

'Special' stamps are on sale for longer periods of time and are issued in larger quantities than commemorative stamps. The Christmas stamps and the "Love" adhesive of 1973 are issues in this 'special' category.

The Irish Post Office on Monday will release two adhesives, in 8p and 17p denominations honoring the scouting and guiding movements.

Ireland is host this year to the European Scout and Guide Conference and the Catholic Boy Scouts of Ireland are celebrating their golden jubilee in 1977 also.

Collectors of Irish stamps are invited to open a standing order account to insure delivery of each new issue. Full information is available from "The Controller, Philatelic Section, General Post Office, Dublin 1, Ireland."
